Police Ring Airport

Third Suspect In Murders

LONDON (AP)—Armed police sealed off London Airport today in the hunt for Harry Roberts, 30, "the third man" sought in the killing of three Scotland Yard detectives.

Every one of the thousands of passengers leaving the crowded airport was put under police scrutiny after a tip that Roberts had been seen in airport departure lounges.

The tip came from an airport employee who once shared a room with the fugitive. Other British and European airports were alerted in case Roberts had slipped through the net.

Across London, hundreds more police combed the undergrowth of Epping Forest, a 6,000-acre playground bordering the eastern suburbs.

A woman who spent Sunday night with Roberts in a Bloomsbury hotel told police she travelled with him to a pub in the heart of the forest.

She said Roberts told her he intends to hide out in the forest until the hunt dies down. Police established that before taking the bus out of London he bought a tent and other camping gear.

ROBERTS
. . . through net?

As spotter planes were called in police warned that Roberts almost certainly is armed and that private citizens should not try to bring him in alone.

A massive dragnet that stretched into Scotland Wednesday led to the arrest of another suspect, John Duddy, 37.

Duddy was grabbed without a fight in a Glasgow slum tenement just 27 hours after John Edward Witney, the first man arrested in the manhunt, was ordered held without bail on charges of murdering the three detectives "with others."

28 KILLED, 123 HURT BY VIET CAFE BOMB

SAIGON (Reuters) — A plastic bomb ripped through a crowded restaurant in the northern city of Hue Wednesday night, killing 28 South Vietnamese in the blast and during the panic-stricken rush for a single exit. Reports said 123 persons were wounded.

Wildcat Strike Spreads In Montreal Rail Yards

WINDSOR WALKOUT LIMITED

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A walkout by members of Local 185, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers Union, today seemed to be confined to the city of Windsor, and even three freight and passenger services were continuing, a Canadian National Railway spokesman said.

One hundred and twenty members of the non-operating rail union struck Windsor facilities at 12:01 a.m.

A company spokesman said workers at Chatham and Wallaceburg, members of the same local, had voted to remain in the job for the time being.

1,000 Non-Ops Start Picketing

MONTREAL (CP)—Some 1,000 non-operating railway employees left their jobs here today, swelling the ranks of a wildcat walkout that began Wednesday when 95 members went on strike at the CNR Point St. Charles yard to protest slowness in contract negotiations.

Picketers from the yard, watched closely by police, walked up and down before yard entrances calling on other of Pointe St. Charles 3,000 employees to join the strike and set up lines before the railway's 800 - man Bonaventure freight centre.

The strike spread after lunch-time to 100 electricians at the Canadian Pacific Railway's Angus repair shops who refused to return to work saying they were fed up in delays in contract negotiations.

Work at the CPR's 200-acre depot which normally employs 4,000 workers, continued as usual despite entreaties from the electricians who milled around outside the gates.

A CNR spokesman said none of the railway's daily operations at either yard had yet been disrupted by the strike since half of the basic day staff of 2,000 have so far failed to join the walkout.

Most of those on strike are members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers or of seven unions belonging to the associated shop-craft unions and are not concerned with day-to-day maintenance of railway services, he said.

BOO LABOR MAN

CBRT spokesman J. A. Pelletier who went out to the Pointe St. Charles yards earlier in the day in an attempt to persuade the strikers to return to work was booed off the premises after he had been there only about five minutes.

"I was called every name under the sun," he said later.

"I won't go back there again. These men are behaving foolishly and there is no use trying to reason with them."

Mr. Pelletier said he was disappointed the men did not wait for the results of a meeting between union leaders to be held here Monday to set an official date for a nation-wide rail strike.

He said he hoped a walkout begun by some 120 men at the CNR's Windsor, Ont., depot early today will end soon as union officials there seemed to be having more luck in talking to the men.

VIET NAM HEARINGS TOLD

'Yellow-Bellied Cowards' Trying to Stop Trains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the U.S. House Committee on Un-American Activities said today Americans who try to stop troop trains and munitions shipments to Viet Nam are "yellow-bellied cowards."

Rep. Edwin Willis (D—La.) sat in on the third day of hearings on legislation to make it a federal crime to impede military operations or to aid forces opposing U.S. troops.

In contrast to the first two days of tumultuous hearings in which some 40 persons were taken from the committee room and arrested, today's morning session was quiet. There were no incidents before the panel recessed for lunch after hearing two hours of testimony by a California law official on the war protest movement in his state.

Willis commented during testimony of Edwin Meese, deputy county attorney for Alameda County, Calif., who resumed testimony on the Viet Nam Day Committee of Berkeley, Calif.

Meese said the VDC steered clear of actually urging law violations in preparations for demonstrations Oct. 15-16, 1965, but made clear in their discussions that such incidents might be planned.

Willis interrupted Meese to say he wanted to make clear that the committee was not aiming its hearings at dissent against the Viet Nam war, but against overt acts.

"In my humble opinion people who do those things fall short of loyalty to the United States," he said. "Let's call them what they are — yellow-bellied cowards."

Orbiter Gets Shot Of Moon's Back Side

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Lunar Orbiter clicked its shutter at the bright surface of the moon today and snapped additional pictures as it ducked around the mysterious dark side to process the film.

Telemetry from the spacecraft confirmed that the 90-minute processing was satisfactory and that the film had cycled through the sensors.

"The processing went well but the proof of the pudding is in seeing the pictures when they come back this afternoon," said a spokesman at the jet propulsion laboratory.

He said the camera snapped about four degrees of what is considered the back side of the moon.

Hydro Reinstates Driver, Others Out

B.C. Hydro has reinstated one truck driver whose dismissal caused two work stoppages on the Arrow Dam project but will not rehire 29 others who supported him.

The reinstatement of Thomas Easton, on the order of an arbitrator, was announced Wednesday by Columbia Hydro Constructors Ltd., representing the crown corporation and Foundation-Dravo Ltd. which is building the Arrow Dam on the Columbia River.

Mr. Easton was fired July 26 for an alleged infraction of the work hours and 29 other teamsters subsequently walked off their jobs July 27 and July 29.

The company said "Mr. Easton's reinstatement will not affect their position."

E. R. Peck, general manager of the company, said he was not unhappy with the decision "as I believe that Tom Easton's reinstatement is a vindication of the grievance proceedure.

"In other words, by following the agreed proceedure for settling disputes, the union has achieved something which the men failed to achieve through wildcat action."

TEXAS FIGHTS MOSQUITO WAR IN EPIDEMIC

DALLAS (UPI) — Three air force planes will take off Friday in an assault on the culex mosquito, the carrier of encephalitis, a fatal disease that has spread across Dallas county in epidemic proportions. Three persons have died and at least 64 others have been stricken with the disease.

Inventor Torpedoes Own Story

LONDON (CP) — The Daily Mirror says Joseph Papp has confessed that his tale of crossing the Atlantic in a home-made submarine was a hoax.

The paper, in a Paris report, says the 33-year-old Hungarian-born Canadian flew to Amsterdam on the Dutch airline KLM last week, then travelled by rail to Brest, France, via Paris.

It says he dreamed up the stunt because he couldn't bear to admit to his friends that a submarine, which he had spent six years of his spare time and all his savings building, wouldn't work.

Another London paper, The Daily Express, says in an editorial Papp will leave Europe "a little more exhilarated for his visit."

Papp turned up in a rubber dinghy off the French coast Friday and made his submarine claim.

The Express says:

"A story so bold and so engaging, backed by such an unblushing lack of evidence, puts Mr. Papp in the class of the great hoaxers of the past. And, like them, he has caused much hilarity and done no harm."

HOUSE MEETING

Union Leaders Present Case To Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Five railway union leaders presented the labor viewpoint to Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday night as he and his cabinet began planning to meet a threatening national railway strike.

Mr. Pearson spent two hours with the group at his Sussex Drive home following a full day of cabinet conferences on the impending crisis, expected to break within the next three weeks.

A joint strike date will be announced next Monday or Tuesday by 18 unions representing almost 120,000 railway workers. Demanding wage increases averaging about 90 cents an hour, they have rejected conciliation board reports recommending a 40 - cent increase spread over two years.

About 100,000 of the workers involved are in non-operating categories with a present day average of $2.22 an hour. The rest are conductors and trainmen paid between $6,500 and $8,000 a year.

Mr. Pearson, Labor Minister Nicholson and the five union leaders emerged from the prime minister's residence just before 11 p.m. EDT.

"We had a very informative and helpful discussion," the prime minister told reporters. "No, we weren't talking about a settlement. It was just an informal exchange."

DECLINE COMMENT

The union leaders, who requested the meeting, declined to enlarge on Mr. Pearson's remarks.

On hand were Frank Hall, executive assistant with the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks; William J. Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers; W. P. Kelly, Canadian head of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; R. C. Smith, chief negotiator for one of the three non - operating union groups; and T. W. Read, negotiator for the shop craft unions.

PGE Employees Vote On 50c Wage Boost

About one-quarter of the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway's work force began voting today on a conciliation board recommendation that they receive a 50-cents-an-hour wage increase spread over two years.

The report delivered by board chairman Magistrate Les Bewley of Vancouver was handed down in a dispute involving the railway and its 400-member federation of PGE employees including carmen, machinists, pipefitters, clerks and electricians.

There was no immediate comment from either side regarding the report's suggestion aimed at ending the traditional pattern in which PGE wages were automatically tied to those paid by the national railways.

Magistrate Bewley said there were "no easy answers in this dispute" because both sides had valid but irreconcilable arguments.

He summarized the crown corporation's position as being a willingness to pay the national railway scales but no more because it would harm the PGE's already damaged competitive position.

The company pointed out it could not unilaterally raise its prices to meet higher costs and that it suffered a built-in disadvantage as Canada's third-largest railway because it did not share in the $105 million annual grants to the CPR and CNR by the federal government.

The report said that after careful examination of a recent wage survey and recent settlements for woodworkers and longshoremen, it recommends a 25-cents-an-hour wage increase retroactive to Jan. 1 and another 25-cent boost next Jan. 1.

Other recommendations called for: Annual vacation of two weeks after one year service and three after 10 years; union dues check-off; eight statutory holidays; overtime at 1½-time for the first three hours and double-time thereafter with 2½-time for work on statutory holidays; and accumulative sick leave allowance of one day per month to a maximum unused accumulation of 120 days.

POLICE DOG CAUSED FATAL PANIC

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) —A magistrate said today that police taking a dog into a packed dancehall caused a stampede of the Negro crowd in which 10 persons died.

At an inquest, Magistrate L. W. Moster found that 10 persons, including six women, died of asphyxia in a mass exodus down the stairs of the club in February.

He found there had been illicit dealing in liquor by the organizer of the dance and many people in the hall at the time were under the influence of liquor.

But the situation had not justified police taking a dog into the crowded hall nor ordering it to bark at and bite people present, he said.

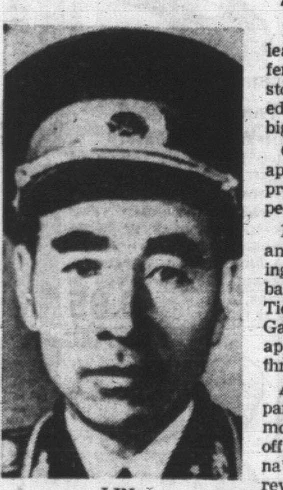
Lin Only Second, Trying Harder



LIN

Observers said the occasion appeared to have been staged to present 59-year-old Lin to the people as Mao's heir-apparent.

It was the first time Lin was among Chinese leaders addressing a mass rally from the high balcony of the golden - roofed Tien An Man (heavenly peace) Gate and also his first public appearance in the capital for three years.

About 1,000,000 persons took part in the rally which lasted more than seven hours and was officially held in honor of China's "great proletarian culture revolution" — the campaign of criticism of alleged opponents of Mao's ideology which has been accompanied by sweeping purges of Communist party officials and intellectuals.

The army and its official newspaper have played the role of pace-setters in the campaign during which Lin, one of the Communist party's five vice-chairmen and first-ranking of China's 16 vice-premiers, has emerged as Mao's righthand man and supreme interpreter of his ideology.

FOREIGNERS BANNED

Contrary to usual practice, foreign correspondents were not invited to today's rally and those who tried to approach the Tien An Man Square to get glimpses of the proceedings were turned back by lines of civilian officials.

The entire rally was televised, with closeup pictures of Mao and Lin, invariably close together, each of the dozen or so times they came out on the balcony to spend a few minutes with other Chinese leaders.

Both wore army uniforms and both looked in good health.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

Disgruntled salmon fishermen may find comfort in knowing that complaints at the fishing in local waters were being registered 120 years ago.

Captain, the Honorable John Gordon (whose name was given to Gordon Head), commander of HMS America, 50 guns, was bitter.

"What a country," he said, "where the salmon will not take the fly."

And when a deer escaped him in the woods of Cedar Hill, he said he "would not give one inch of the barren hills of Scotland for all he saw around him."

The historian Walbran said his views were significant in the subsequent treaties which resulted in Oregon and the San Juans being ceded away by Britain. Gordon had sent unfavorable reports home on the whole west coast area.

The moral of the story is directed at the powers who permit destruction of spawning beds and over-harvesting of salmon by commercial interests. Never underestimate the anger of a skunked fisherman.

Vancouver Island can now claim it is the hometown of four movie stars. There they were on the screen at Capitol Theatre the other night, C. C. "Carpy" Carpenter, Victoria businessman who "ranches" at Prospect Lake, and Dave Bowron of Duncan and their horses, Fanny and Quiz. (Quiz actually was borrowed from local trainer and farrier Roy Jewel.)

The foursome appeared in Run Appaloosa Run, a Disney production about the famous spotted Indian horses. California friends led Carpy and Dave into rough-riding parts in a suicide race sequence—a chance they jumped at—and the filming was done some months ago at Omak, Washington.

Grass, Brush Fires Busy Fire Fighters

Saanich firemen battled a stubborn outbreak on Oak Hill in the vicinity of Cedar Hill and Cedar Hill Cross Road for five hours.

They had kind words today for high school students who helped them run about 1,500 feet of hose around the blaze.

A department spokesman said today one of the problems in fighting fire in such rocky and brushy land is that it requires such a thorough soaking to ensure no further outbreak.

There were no damages nor injuries. Children are suspected of starting the fire.

FOUR IN CITY

City crews fought four grass fires in Victoria Wednesday, two of them on Gladstone.

About one acre was burned over at Merritt and Cook and firemen were almost two hours dousing it. The other fires, in the 1200 block and the 1400 block on Gladstone and at Fernwood and Kings, were minor.

Deputy chief Eric Simmons said today children are probably responsible for most of the outbreaks "but nobody talks."

The occasional fire will be set in tinder-dry brush by the sun reflecting through broken glass, he added.

A false alarm at The Bay department store on Douglas late Wednesday brought four fire trucks and police to the scene. The alarm was blamed on a faulty circuit.

Yellowhead Closed

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A B.C. highways official said today the Yellowhead route through the Rockies from Jasper, Alta., to Kamloops will remain closed to tourists this summer and possibly next summer as well.

He said construction on the new 151-mile road is progressing well but most of the route is still under heavy construction with no gravel on the old road. Scheduled completion date for the highway is October, 1968.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Warm sunny weather was the order for southwestern B.C. again today. Meanwhile, only brief cloudy periods marred an otherwise bright day elsewhere in the province. Scattered showers were predicted in the northern interior this afternoon. The large area of high pressure responsible for the generally fine weather is expected to hold firm off the B.C. coast for at least the next two days.

Transport Minister Pickersgill, meanwhile, held a dinner meeting in the Chateau Laurier with President Donald Gordon of the CNR, CPR Chairman N. R. Crump, CPR President Ian Sinclair and Norman MacMillan, CNR executive vice-president.

None of the men would comment on the subject of the meeting.

Following the cabinet meetings Mr. Pearson told a press conference no effort would be made at this time to bring union and management sides together. But the cabinet was making preparations for "various contingencies."

Asked whether Parliament would be called to deal with the situation, he replied: "I hope not. But if it is necessary, that will be done."

PM 'Suspects' Viet on Agenda For LBJ Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson and President Johnson are expected to discuss the Viet Nam war and other topics in Sunday talks at the site of the late president Roosevelt's summer home.

The leaders are to meet on Campobello Island, N.B., and participate in ceremonies laying the cornerstone of the new visitors' pavilion on the island, now an international park.

The park was selected as a memorial to Mr. Roosevelt by Mr. Pearson and the late President Kennedy.

The meeting has no formal agenda but will cover many bilateral and international subjects, Mr. Pearson told a press conference Wednesday. He said he "suspects" the Viet Nam situation will be discussed.

The Sunday meeting was initiated by Mr. Johnson who for some time had scheduled a trip to New England, Mr. Pearson said.

It was reported the two leaders will attend church together at 10 a.m. Sunday at Campobello.

The report said they would fly together by helicopter to St. Andrews, N.B., for lunch and their conference, returning to Campobello later in the day.

The prime minister's office said he would leave Ottawa by transport department Jetstar early Sunday and return Sunday night.

Mr. Pearson told the press conference he welcomes the opportunity to discuss international problems, although he is busy at the moment with the threat of a national railway strike.

He said there is no formal agenda for the talks.

China Danger Exaggerated Says Envoy

TOKYO (Reuters) — Retiring U.S. Ambassador Edwin Reischauer today belittled fears of the possible military might of China within the next 10 years.

The influence of China in Asia was more in the mind than a real thing, he told a farewell press conference preceding his departure from Japan Friday.

"I would not expect Communist China to exert a very great influence in the future," Reischauer said. ". . . It is fundamentally a very weak, backward country, although it does in its revolutionary zeal give grave problems to neighboring countries."

Stressing that his opinions were personal and not those of the American government, Reischauer said he considered China's military strength in relative terms.

"Obviously a huge country can squeeze military power out of a low-level economy and obviously they are," he said.

However, he said, China's military strength could not possibly be compared with that of the U.S. or Russia, and as the surrounding countries became more stable even this limited strength became less and less significant.

"I think in 10 years the world will have much less to fear of Chinese military power than it does today," he said.

Iroquois Scrapped

HALIFAX (CP) — The Canadian destroyer Iroquois, veteran of two wars, left this naval port for the last time Tuesday—under tow to a Spanish scrapyard. Iroquois, completed in 1942, served in the Second World War and in the Korean War before being paid off in 1962.

KOSYGIN WARNING ON VIET NAM:

'Soviet Ready to Help'

LONDON (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Kosygin was quoted Wednesday as warning the U.S. that further escalation of the Viet Nam war could bring "the immediate danger of military conflict beyond the limits of Southeast Asia."

The warning was contained in a letter from Kosygin to British philosopher - pacifist, Bertrand Russell, and released by Russell's Peace Foundation.

Russell, 94, has asked that the Soviet air force defend Viet Nam against American air attacks.

In his letter Kosygin said: "If the Americans do not give up their criminal policy and proceed in increasing their aggression, there will be immediate danger of military conflict beyond the limits of Southeast Asia."

A foundation spokesman said Soviet charge d'affaires, Vladillen Vasev, told Russell Wednesday Kosygin's letter means the Soviet Union stands ready to supply North Viet Nam with planes and military personnel if requested by the North Vietnamese.

The spokesman added that Kosygin offered full support for Russell's plan to stage a tribunal in Paris to try U.S. President Johnson for war crimes.

Boy Plunges to Death

KITIMAT (CP)—An exploring adventure by three 15-year-old boys ended in tragedy here Tuesday when one of them plunged to his death in a canyon. Robert Griffin apparently missed his footing after climbing almost to the bottom of the canyon and plunged the remaining 50 feet into the swift waters of Hirsch Creek.

Jump Kills 2 Women

PRAGUE (AP) — A woman leaped from a 200-foot tower in Ceske Budejovic and struck another woman walking below, the news agency Ceteka reported Wednesday. Both were killed, it said.

AROUND THE SUN IN 404 DAYS

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The United States' Pioneer 7 satellite, carrying instruments to check on the perils of interplanetary travel, zipped along on a near-perfect orbit around the sun today.

The gleaming 140-pound satellite carried six experiments to monitor deadly solar radiation, measure a wind-like stream of charged solar gases and map magnetic forces in deep space.

Pioneer was launched Wednesday atop a delta rocket from Cape Kennedy. It was expected to take 404 days to circle the sun.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Inflation Top Enemy Says NDP Chieftain

STRACHAN
. . . price spiral

VANCOUVER (CP)—Provincial NDP Leader Robert Strachan said Wednesday his party will combat inflation and seek increased government control of industry if elected in the September 12 British Columbia election.

Mr. Strachan outlined his party's election platform at a nominating convention at which economist Paul Phillips and insurance agent Chris Huddleston were unopposed as NDP candidates for Vancouver Centre.

Mr. Strachan said old age pensioners and low-income groups in British Columbia have a hard time "just existing" and workers are being "robbed" of their take-home pay.

He told 75 supporters consumer prices are rising faster than ever and continue to spiral even as production costs go down.

He said the NDP would set up a price review board to ensure all future price raises are justified.

He also promised the NDP would nationalize automobile insurance and the B.C. Telephone.

He criticized oil companies who buy petrol-bearing property and cap wells for up to 40 years. He said the NDP favors extensive government regulation of the oil industry.

Liberals Name Two Entries, Socreds to Tussle Tonight

The nomination spotlight shifts to the Social Credit dilemma in Victoria tonight after Liberals picked their city candidates and New Democratic Party selected its contestant for Saanich and the Islands Wednesday night.

Greater Victoria school board chairman John Porteous and Frank Preston, 1962 Victoria centennial co-ordinator, were nominated as the Liberal contenders for the two Victoria seats.

Mr. Porteous, 40, is an accountant at St. Joseph's Hospital and Mr. Preston, 34, is a member of the city engineer's department.

They were picked by some 75 persons who attended the meeting in War Amputees Hall.

Edwin Haw, longtime executive officer in the International Woodworkers Union here, was chosen over Mrs. Monte Phillips by 28 members of the NDP in Saanich and the Island constituency association who met in Royal Oak Women's Institute Hall.

CURTAIN UP

But the most interesting race for nominations in this area is scheduled to start at 8 tonight in McPherson Playhouse where the curtain will go up on three Social Credit incumbents and come down with two or less still running.

The candidates for one more chance to extend their legislative careers will be Pulbic Works Minister W. N. Chant, first elected in 1953; J. Donald Smith, first elected 1956, and Waldo Skillings, first elected in 1960.

Hugh Ramsay, president of the Victoria Socred Association, will be chairman of the event and an unusually large turnout of about 400 persons is expected to witness the battle.

Rhodesian Students 'Not Free'

NAIROBI (Reuters) — Vice-President Joseph Murumbi of Kenya told a students meeting here the only freedom open to students in some Rhodesian and South African universities was the freedom to conform.

Addressing the inaugural session of the 12th international student conference Wednesday, Murumbi said:

"I am glad we are providing a forum here in Kenya where this international student body can focus attention on the plight of students in some so-called universities in Rhodesia and Southern Africa."

Attending the conference are Patrick Keniff of Montreal, president of the Canadian Union of Students; Rivard Good of Winnipeg, vice-president of the union, and Paul Ladouceur of Montreal, associate secretary of international affairs for the CSU.

GEORGE QUOTES BIBLE

Beatles Lack Faith in War

TORONTO (CP) — Have the Beatles put their foot in it again?

Just as John Lennon is wiggling out of his remarks about Christianity, out comes George Harrison with implied criticism of the Viet Nam war and support for draft dodgers.

Asked about Viet Nam at a press conference in Toronto, Harrison replied:

"Thou shalt not kill means that — not amend section A. We all just don't agree with war for any reason whatsoever. People have a right not to go into the army."

At the conference Lennon once again explained his remark about the Beatles being more popular than Jesus.

Lennon said he likes the "basic idea" of Christianity and recommends it to anyone.

The Beatles fly to Boston today after two performances here Wednesday to enthusiastic but less-than-capacity crowds.

The quartet drew 15,000 to a matinee performance and another 17,000 to an evening show. Total attendance fell about 4,000 short of capacity at Maple Leaf Gardens.

St. John Ambulance had 122 persons on duty and treated 167 teen-age girls. Fifteen were sent to hospital with severe cases of hysteria. Officials said casualties were less than in previous visits by the group.

Floods Hit Austria

Nazis Incite White Hatred In Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Nazi Party, newest force in the spreading conflict over open housing for Negroes here, said Tuesday it hopes to unite white people in an organized unit.

"Our specific purpose is to rally the whites and teach them self defence; to organize a cohesive, organized unit," said Christopher Vidnjevich, area commander of the Nazis.

The Nazis appeared in Marquette Park on the southwest side Sunday, when a crowd of white persons taunted police and stoned Negroes passing through the area. Cmdr. Martin O'Connell, whose police district encompasses the park, said a Nazi orator incited the white demonstrators.

GAINED MEMBERS

Asked about reaction to the entry of his group into the housing turmoil, Vidnjevich replied: "We made more new members in the last two weeks than in the last five years."

He declined to give the number of new recruits. But he did say the party has "roughly 300 actual members" in the Chicago area. It is a branch of the national organization headed by George Lincoln Rockwell.

The motive, Vidnjevich said, is opposition to Communists.

"We say the Reds started this whole civil rights thing," he added.

PERRAULT

AFTER 14 YEARS IN POWER

Socreds Fat, Sleek—Perrault

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Liberal Leader Ray Perrault promised an "agenda for a new generation" at a nominating convention here Wednesday night.

Mr. Perrault was nominated by acclamation to represent the party in the new riding of North Vancouver-Capilano.

He told the crowd of about 150 the Social Credit government has grown fat and sleek in office.

Mr. Perrault said the Liberal target in the campaign is — "A government grown sleek, fat and rich in office over the last 14 years; a government saturated with arrogance bred by 14 years in power. Our target is a government which tolerates frightful conflicts of interest . . . whose remarkably successful fund-raiser moonlights as a key man on the B.C. Hydro board of directors, the ferry system and is in several other key posts of influence."

He said the Liberals' "agenda for a new generation" would implement reform in industry and trade, social welfare, child care, old age care, fitness and youth.

"The new agends of the Liberal government will establish a department of youth affairs, a separate government portfolio.

"B.C. is a young province, and more than 800,000 of our citizens are under 25. This vast resource of youth is underdeveloped," he said.

YOUTH GAMES

As far as fitness, Mr. Perrault said a Liberal government would sponsor Canada's first annual youth games — a summer competition contributing to national unity and physical fitness.

Mr. Perralut promised the building of low-cost golden age homes for pensioners and establishment of new payment levels for pensioners.

"In a high cost province like British Columbia, a maximum of $105 a month is not enough," he said.

The Liberal plan will include tax reform, a new charter of civil liberties, hospital development and scientific development, he said.

Vancouver Man Out, Says Price

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bert Price, veteran Social Credit MLA, said Tuesday Health Minister Eric Martin does not think his successor should come from the Vancouver area.

Premier Bennett has suggested Mr. Martin's successor would be Dr. Lawrence Ranta, the medical director of the Vancouver General Hospital. Dr. Ranta has been nominated a Social Credit candidate in Vancouver-Point Grey.

Mr. Price told his Vancouver-Burrard nominating meeting Mr. Martin's reason is that it would be impossible to create enough bed space in Vancouver hospitals "because no matter how many are built, the doctors will fill them."

Two Win Nominations, Lose Jobs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two civil servants have lost their jobs because they were nominated to contest seats in the Sept. 12 provincial election.

Edward Lavalle, an administrator in the attorney-general's department, was nominated NDP candidate Wednesday in Vancouver Point-Grey, the same riding Attorney-General Bonner will contest for the Social Credit party.

He left his job because civil servants are prohibited from taking part in politics.

Robert McMath was asked to resign his position as office supervisor at Shaughnessy Hospital here after his nomination Tuesday night to contest the Richmond riding for the NDP.

MLA Loses Nomination

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — Stanley Carnell, the Social Credit MLA who held the Peace River South seat for the last 10 years, lost his bid Wednesday night for nomination as a candidate in the Sept. 12 provincial election.

The 63-year-old Carnell, a former newspaper editor, was first elected to the Legislature Sept. 19, 1956 and was returned in the 1960 and 1963 elections.

Supporters of Mr. Phillips believe age was the deciding factor in his successful bid for the nomination.

You Must Stay High To Drink in Alberta

EDMONTON (CP) — Air Canada officials said today their airline is serving liquor only on trans-Canada flights which do not land in Alberta because the province's liquor laws do not provide for drinking on domestic flights.

Jack Dronin, sales representative for Air Canada in Edmonton, said so far there appears to be no complaint with the service, which went into effect last Wednesday.

MUST NOT LAND

The airline does not prohibit serving drinks on through planes while they are flying over Alberta, provided they do not land in the province. Bar service is also available on DC-8 flights to the east originating in Winnipeg.

Liquor laws in other provinces from British Columbia to Quebec allow drinking on flights landing in their provinces. Alberta law allows drinking on international flights and this practise has been in effect for some time, Mr. Cronin said.

Air Canada has three flights daily from Vancouver with bar service. Four trans-continental flights landing in Alberta have no such service, Mr. Cronin said.

FLOODS DESTROY HOMES

MOSCOW (UPI)—Torrential rains drenching the Asiatic Russian frontier with Communist China for the last week, have left at least 2,000 Soviet families homeless, it was reported Wednesday.

The reports raised speculation there was probably heavy flooding in border areas of Red China as well.

No Taxation For War, Say Quakers

NEW YORK (AP) — Quakers in the New York area have been encouraged to refuse to pay taxes or hold jobs that contribute to the war effort in Viet Nam.

The Society of Friends office here made public Monday a "message to Friends on Viet Nam," a document approved last month at an annual meeting at Lake George, N.Y.

The document promised financial aid through special committees if Quakers changed jobs or refused to pay taxes in protest against the war.

The regional group also approved a letter to President Johnson urging him to "bring hope to the world by breaking the vicious circle" in Viet Nam and to use "every imaginative and creative method to immediately end the war," adding:

"We are confident that if you take such positive steps, you will have the overwhelming thanks of mankind."

LAWNS
A beautiful, well-groomed, year-round, green lawn is a valuable asset to any home and neighborhood. That's why so many homeowners spend every year much effort and expense for fertilizers and weed-killing ingredients in order to obtain a first-class looking lawn. Unfortunately the results are, as a rule, disappointing because lawns, even when constantly well watered and looked after, can only stand up to the impact of hot, dry summer weather if they are protected by a heavy layer of turf. Top-dressing of existing lawns is the only way to obtain such a layer of turf.
Contrary to general belief summer is the best time for lawn top-dressing. For a free estimate and expert advice regarding the top-dressing of any particular lawn area, we suggest you contact the Layritz Nurseries. If they take on a job they guarantee results.

Two Prime Hazards

TWO MAJOR CONSIDERATIONS put the threatened railway strike into a different category from the usual run of industrial labor negotiations. One is the vital influence that the settlement could have on the national economy by restraining or fostering further inflationary tendencies at this critical point. The other is the question of necessary public services and the extent to which they should be halted by strikes or lockouts.

The Quebec longshoremen's settlement and the later government decision in the case of the St. Lawrence Seaway workers set the pace for large wage increases with their inevitable effect on costs and prices. The railway settlement will determine whether those settlements were in fact special cases not to be interpreted as a trend in current policy, or whether they were merely samples of what will follow in the determination of other wage disputes. In other words, will the inflationary surge now be given more or less free rein so far as wage increases are concerned, or will the railway settlement establish a more restrained and sober approach to the problem.

The same basic problem has faced the United States with its airline mechanics' strike, and Britain in its attempt to hold spiralling costs through control of wages and prices.

The second consideration in Canada's predicament is not a new one, nor is it seasonal. It is the long-standing problem of how far society may go in permitting sections of the nation to curtail or totally halt essential services such as transportation, communications, health or security in support of demands for higher wages. The right of organized labor to strike is firmly established, but the present system whereby the public welfare may suffer serious harm is obviously a wasteful and imperfect method. Some means of guaranteeing workers their rights without reverting to a cessation of vital services must be found. The present system is much too costly to all concerned and too harmful to the nation's well being.

Mr. Pearson is right in his stand that the government can take no action before the normal negotiation procedures set out by law have been completed. But he is equally right to prepare for immediate government steps if those procedures do not result in a settlement. Too much depends on Canada's being able to maintain the flow of exports to allow a halt in the procession of freight cars east and west, and the railways still remain the lifeline of our domestic economy as well.

Modern wage negotiations must become more than merely an application of the maximum grab by either side. Too heavy an increase in wages across the country cannot do other than result in inflationary pressure, which ultimately must reduce the value of every pay cheque. And a breakdown of so vital a service as rail transport, even for a short time, must harm the country and its people, including railway workers.

Almost every social field has progressed through improved methods in the past few decades, but the system of settlement of contracts between management and labor has not enjoyed a parallel progress. The federal government, business and organized labor might well devote large sums to a full-scale study of this problem and the investment would be well worth while. Strikes and lockouts in the rocket and nuclear age are as antiquated and costly as war as a means of settling disputes. It is time to move forward to something better.

An Expression of Confidence

OAK BAY LIBERALS HAVE again demonstrated their confidence in Mr. Alan Macfarlane. His unanimous selection as their candidate in the September 12 provincial election represents a clear recognition of the excellent representation he has provided during the last six years.

It will be viewed, also, with satisfaction by many residents who are not affiliated with the party but who appreciate the manner in which he has applied his talents and energies in their interests. In his remarks following the nomination, Mr. Macfarlane reaffirmed his desire to speak for Oak Bay as a whole.

The nomination, moreover, is significant beyond the boundaries of the constituency. Candidates of Mr. Macfarlane's calibre and point of view are essential if British Columbia is to develop a strong non-Socialist opposition capable of assuming government as an alternative to Social Credit. A provincial voting public, disillusioned by many questionable aspects of the government it has received since 1952, is entitled to a choice other than that offered by the NDP.

Oak Bay is fortunate in having a candidate of the proven abilities of Mr. Macfarlane as the prototype of the legislator so necessary for British Columbia at this time.

. . . Protest Too Much

SCHOOL TRUSTEE PETER Bunn has earned himself some criticism from city council through a spate of harsh words about what the city might do if it were given control of Craigdarroch Castle. The fact that for the many years in which the city did have control of the castle none of these things happened is perhaps beyond Mr. Bunn's experience.

But equally unacceptable to many persons is Mr. Bunn's publicized comment on a proposal to inaugurate a modest businessman's project among high school students. Under such a plan, common in many schools across the continent, a group of students organizes a model company, issue shares and conducts its affairs as though it were a part of the commercial life of our era. This is surely an interesting and practical way in which to learn about the mechanism by which private enterprise operates and by which our wealth is produced—the wealth, incidentally, which provides revenue for school boards.

To Trustee Bunn this was a "singularly odorous" proposal, and bound to "promote worship of the almighty dollar." Mr. Bunn's adverse reaction was so extreme and his descriptive language so excessive that he seems to have more than curricula on his mind.

Pre-School Preparation

OPERATION HEADSTART, the American anti-poverty program designed to give disadvantaged pre-school children a boost in learning capacity before they begin school, has proved to be of considerable value, according to a progress report last week.

After a full year's operation, it was stated, the program had raised the IQs of some children as much as 16 points and, equally important, has uncovered and begun correction of physical defects in one-third of the more than half million participating children. Teachers involved in Operation Headstart were unanimous that it helped the children from poor backgrounds to become secure in the school environment.

While the program is still in the experimental stage, it has demonstrated that to the degree poverty problems can be ameliorated by education, a reasonable hope of success is possible only when children are prepared — mentally, emotionally and physically — for the educative process.

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

Kennedy Round—Shoe on Other Foot

THE growing realization that the trade negotiators in Geneva are now approaching the decisive months of the Kennedy Round is reflected in some rather frantic warnings being addressed to the Canadian government by interested industrial groups. The most recent, and possibly the least reasonable, is a submission to the Canadian tariffs and trade committee by the Shoe Manufacturers' Association of Canada. No concessions is the demand of this group, which insists that footwear be placed on the reserve list because of the danger of disruption in the industry and "bearing in mind the fact of interchangeability" of the product because of its "functional purpose."

Western

One cannot argue with facts. There is no doubt that shoes are functional and interchangeable in the sense intended by the shoe manufacturers. Because of the availability of other footwear, many consumers do find it possible to go through life resisting the temptations of the Canadian shoe. If it were not so and if it was a choice between buying Canadian or going barefoot, there would never have been a case for tariff protection.

But other products are functional and interchangeable too; among them wheat. If all such goods are to be placed on reserve lists, the scope for negotiations in Geneva will be too meagre to justify the effort.

The manufacturers, however, have another argument and one that will be as familiar to readers as an old shoe. It is that their share of the Canadian market has declined over the years. Since 1951 our population has increased by 39 per cent but footwear output is up by only 35 per cent.

From a study of per capita statistics, the shoe men unhappily conclude that, over the past decade and a half, consumption has declined from 3.38 pairs to 3.27. In far-off days when patriotism was still alive in the land, we used to get by with 0.18 pairs of foreign shoes. In the last recorded year of national decadence, we slouched around in 1.4.

Vested Right Claim

We are thus back to the old claim: that an industry has a vested right to some particular share of the Canadian market. Why is it essential to our survival? It would be interesting to have this elaborated. Is it an industry in which we have achieved particular renown? If so, why are consumers so easily tempted for example, by British shoes?

Why should the shoe industry, in this period of general inflation, be spared the rigors of competition which must be the lot of other if there is to be expansion of world commerce? Do we exist for the shoe industry or does the industry exist for us and by virtue of its ability to satisfy our needs?

The shoe manufacturers protest, however, that they are up against the lower wage structures and living standards of overseas countries and they point with particular alarm to increased imports from Japan. Although Japanese wages have been rising rapidly, it probably is true that living standards in that country are still well below our own.

U.S. Comparison

But what does this argument amount to? If it is proper that a Canadian industry should be protected against low wage rates in foreign countries, the United States, which has the highest wage rates in the world, would be perfectly justified in maintaining high protective tariffs against everybody, including ourselves. With no concessions the watchword in Washington, there could be no Kennedy Round. In fact, there could scarcely be much world trade.

The shoe manufacturers are not, of course, alone in the view that the government owes them a living. There is likely to be a great clamor in coming months from protected groups, especially if it appears that progress of consequence is being made in Geneva. It would seem important that consumers be heard from too. Their freedom of choice is threatened and they are the people who pay.

FROM SINGAPORE

Elements in China's Class Struggle

THE current vast attempt at country-wide "socialist education" in Red China—the core of Mao Tse-tung's doctrine—is all part of the class struggle, the mingling and stirring that is to take the lumps out of China's political porridge and leave a smooth puree of classless Maoist orthodoxy. But is Mao really the instigator of the fantastic scheme?

News that the 72-year-old revolutionary had recently swum nine miles in 65 minutes finally persuaded even sympathetic Chinese political observers, well accustomed to the split-level mentality of their countrymen where appearance and reality are concerned—that Mao was probably declining physically and no longer in full command of affairs. Surely, some asked, if Mao were at the wheel he would simply have sacked the men he distrusted. He would not have allowed his deification as the infallible Communist sage to be marred by a public exhibition of internal division and treachery reaching into the Politburo itself.

Sinister Light

The canonisation of Mao—his "Thought" can now vanquish floods and disaster, notes the People's Daily—is seen by many in a slightly sinister light. You can kick a man upstairs to be chairman, they say, but where do you kick the chairman? Is deification the answer? The more he is glorified, the more authority Mao's seal carries. Who is responsible for glorifying him—and so using his seal more effectively for his own ends?

At first glance the obvious answer seems to be Marshal Lin Piao, whose ostensibly rigid loyalty to Mao's thought is such that their names are frequently coupled. But if the army is the lead horse of the current revolution, it is still the party that holds the reins, and Lin Piao's pre-eminent position comes from his military career rather than from his political history.

Power Explanation

On the other hand, Teng Hsiao-ping, secretary-general of the party, has been regarded for at least five years past as an ally of Lin Piao against Liu Shao-chi, president of the republic, in whatever infighting has been taking place at the cusp of the Communist cone. This may explain Lin Liao's apparent political power. For in the army he has the mass organization that Teng lacks if it comes to carrying the furtive struggle within the politburo to the millions in the provinces.

More than one can play the game of usurping the "Thought of Mao," the aging emperor's seal, however, and some argue that the orders to turn the army into a minor state in itself, with its own industry, agriculture and trade, are designed to dilute it with civilian officials and party cadres so that it loses its kick. The instructions might therefore have come from Liu Shao-chi.

Reaction in Question

The full reaction of Mao's masses to current changes, which so readily evoke memories of the disastrous "great leap forward" of 1958 and the unpopular regimentation of the entire rural population in people's communes, still remains in question. The people are beginning to learn that, in keeping with his flexible guerrilla strategy, Mao reins in the revolution when times are bad and the millions are grumbling, only to gather it for another great leap when times are better and the masses have caught their breath.

However, the central committee of the party has just issued a long 16-point directive—the first for five years—which indicates that the "cultural revolution" has run into stubborn resistance. While on one hand the directive attacks the party's enemies, it stresses that although "assassins, poisoners, arsonists and thieves of secret information" must be dealt with under the law, "it is intolerable that any kind of pretext should be used to stir up struggles among the masses of the students." This seems to constitute a stern warning to anti-intellectual zealots, who have been trying to turn the revolution into a nation-wide purge. It is also noticeable that Mao's works and the People's Liberation Army receive unusually little mention.

Outstripping Crops

In fact, it is by no means certain that China can stand the strain of more radical reorganization at this moment, especially if it threatens to touch agriculture and industry. Since the disastrous year of 1958, the population has risen by about 100,000,000, but the overall grain output has hardly budged and the gross national product is down by 20 per cent.

The horrifying possibility that the 700,000,000 people of China, even in these circumstances, are being used as pawns in a power struggle at the apex of the party, must be considered. But there is no margin for major mistakes here, and if any are made China may once again have to turn to those technical experts and pragmatical "authorities and specialists" who are today denounced by the sectarnias as "monsters and demons."

Looking Back

From The Times of August 18, 1906:

The largest real estate deal ever consummated in Victoria was completed here last night. By it, H. H. Jones and Co. acquired 1,000 acres in South Saanich, within six miles of the city. Included is the absolute control of Prospect Lake. Price paid for the property has not been revealed but it is believed to be in the vicinity of $50,000. About 150 acres of the land are already in crop. Much of the rest is well-populated with game.

Friendlier To Johnson

By CHARLES BARTLETT
From Washington

A SIGNIFICANT meeting of Latin American presidents in Bogota over the past weekend attested the notable improvement which has taken place in relations between President Johnson and the nations south of the border.

Two of South America's conscience-keepers, Raul Leoni of Venezuela and Eduardo Frei of Chili, joined the leaders who met in Bogota to plan with enthusiasm an agenda for a summit meeting in the fall of all the presidents of all the countries in the hemisphere.

If the meeting could have been held at all a year ago, it would have been a reluctant undertaking because the Latin leaders, especially Frei and Leoni, were extremely wary of Lyndon Johnson. The Dominican intervention had confirmed suspicions that he was a Yankee hard-liner and liberal politicians feared they would be hurt by associating with him.

The success of the Dominican intervention is of course an important factor in the Latins' change of attitude. Within a month all alien troops will be off the island and even bitter critics of Mr. Johnson can no longer deny the integrity of American intentions or the brilliant quality of the diplomacy practised for 13 gruelling months by the special American emissary, Ellsworth Bunker.

Improved Relations

Thomas Mann, a dour Texan who saw the American businessman as the ultimate savior of Latin America, has been replaced as the controlling State Department hand on hemispheric policies with a non-dogmatic Harvard professor, Lincoln Gordon. This change has brightened hemispheric relations because Gordon represents a practical and flexible approach.

Similarly the political leadership in South America has tended recently to turn from a doctrinaire emphasis upon liberalism for the sake of liberalism into more practical channels. The change has been reflected in several elections, particularly in Mexico, and experience shows that as the economic growth rate improves in these countries, the ideological gulf narrows between their capitols and Washington.

The talk of revolution has subsided with a growth of respect for the potential of democracy as it has been demonstrated in Venezuela. Eight years after shaking off an ugly dictator, Venezuela has a society strong enough to withstand and put down a rigorous attack by Communist guerrillas and an economy surging already beyond goals which were set for 1971.

Clouds Forming

The cloud over plans for the 1966 summit meeting is the new and erratic move away from democracy in Argentina. A lesser cloud is the difficulty which Brazil has encountered in attempting to regain popular government. These are the two largest countries in South America and their fall from democratic grace casts a long shadow.

But American policy-makers are now sufficiently assured in their Latin dealings to work constructively with these governments. A tough and able American ambassador, Edwin Martin, will keep his post in Buenos Aires to warn the unconstitutional rulers off a course of folly.

The Latin presidents will not agree to meet with President Johnson unless they can set a firm agenda. They remember too well the humiliating experience of 1956 when John Foster Dulles patronized them and gave them appointments to see President Eisenhower for short visits after they had promised they would not talk any politics.

But now there is progressive motion and the presidents have concrete matters to discuss. A tentative agenda has set the ambitious aim of utilizing the summit to proclaim the integration of the hemisphere into a free trade area. This would make the meeting a major event.

Place To Demonstrate

Ottawa Citizen

THERE have been reports that the government is studying the idea of banning demonstrations on Parliament Hill. Let us hope these are nothing more than the idle musings of someone who finds time hanging heavy on his hands during the August doldrums.

The Hill is the seat of Canada's Parliament. It is very much the centre of Ottawa, and in many ways of the nation. As such, it is the natural site for protests against government policies. No other location is as appropriate.

Further, the Hill is well suited to demonstrations. There is space enough for them, and they cause little disruption. The same could not be said if they were staged outside 24 Sussex Street or on the Mall. Such alternatives as Major's Hill Park would be quite unacceptable because no one would know that anything was happening.

It goes without saying that such affairs should be orderly. The participants themselves are aware of this and usually take pains to prevent incidents. Here again, the Hill has the natural advantage of a permanent police force because of the presence of the RCMP detachment.

There was some criticism when literature against the Viet Nam war was handed out to U.S. tourists recently. But any American in this day and age should be accustomed to it. He should be no more surprised at finding a demonstration outside the Parliament Buildings than a Canadian would be at seeing pickets outside the White House.

Yugoslavia Trying Evolution To 'Open' Communist Society

By ANATOLE SHUB
The Washington Post

BELGRADE — Yugoslavia today is on the way to its most important changes since the break with Stalin in 1948.

The country and its "revisionist" Communist party are simultaneously in the throes of a political purge, a socio-economic reform, a change of generations and an ideological crisis.

A "revolution from above," with Marshal Tito personally giving a strong lead, has now begun to gather momentum "from below" from the thousands of honest Communists and ordinary citizens hurt and disillusioned by the crimes and blunders committed over the years in the name of Communism.

The great question in the months ahead is whether the "liberal" Communist faction, now in clear command after six years of bitter inner-party struggle, will be able to control the process. Can they, as they hope, gradually combine one-party tutelage with an open society and the rule of law? Or will they have to yield, as in Hungary and Poland a decade ago, either to resurgent hard liners or to a popular movement for western-style democracy?

Yugoslavia is already far more open, in nearly every way, than any other Communist country. The Western tourists now enjoying the glories of the Adriatic coast are being counted in millions. Hundreds of thousands of Yugoslavs cross back and forth daily into Italy, Austria and other neighboring countries. Nearly 300,000 are now working in Western Europe.

Western newspapers, magazines, books and films are freely available. In June, too, the regime made peace with the Roman Catholic church by restoring relations with the vatican.

The Yugoslav federal assembly has increasingly been criticizing the executive branch, rejecting or amending government proposals, and voting along lines of regional and economic interest. One amendment, the press reported casually the other day, was passed by a vote of 68 to 51 with 13 abstentions.

Private enterprise, too, has gotten a new deal. On the coast, banks are giving "privatniks' loans to spruce up their rooming houses, restaurants, fishing boats and other tourist facilities. In the fertile valleys, individual farmers finally encouraged by higher prices, easy terms for fertilizer, and the promise of new credits for tractors — have just produced a record wheat harvest.

Yet all of these developments essentially preceded the two decisive victories of the "liberal" faction.

● At the third plenum of the party central committee on March 11, there came the decisive breakthrough for the long-disputed economic reform — which provides greater independence for enterprises, strengthens the localities and regions against the Belgrade bureaucracy, welcomes Western capital into Yugoslavia, and pledges a convertible dinar by 1970.

● At the fourth plenum on Brioni Island July 1, the central committee formally ousted "heir apparent" Aleksandar Rankovic, declared war on the "invisible government" and "strong-arm methods" of the UDBA (State Security Service), and appointed a blue-ribbon commission to rethink the organization of the party and its role in society.

MARSHAL TITO
. . . strong lead

The fall of Rankovic itself remains a mystery. Particularly in Serbia, which was his home base and which traditionally has controlled the police in Yugoslavia, the feeling is strong that "we have not yet heard the real story." There is skepticism with regard both to the charges — that Rankovic's UDBA planted microphones in Tito's apartment — and to the official timetable, according to which the anti-Rankovic movement began only a month before his outer.

High Communists privately have already begun to de-emphasize the "bugging" story as "unimportant" and to insist that Rankovic was ousted primarily because of his resistance to a political and economic "new course."

Whatever the causes, the consequences of Rankovic's ouster have already been considerable. The high drama on Brioni has been followed by dozens of lesser dramas almost every day. Meetings all over the country have exposed, attacked and removed a host of alleged petty tyrants and racketeers. The charges have included rape, police brutality, smuggling, forced labor and a hundred forms of corruption.

Many Cases

The cases are breaking thick and fast, as the initial probe of the UDBA has uncovered links with Communist party functionaries, government officials, directors of factories and other enterprise. A very conservative estimate is that hundreds will be prosecuted and jailed, thousands will be removed from office and expelled from the party, and tens of thousands of others (who "went along") will be demoted, pensioned, warned or otherwise diseiplined.

It has been announced that the UDBA itself will be sharply reduced in size — although neither the old nor the new figures have been disclosed. The biggest changes, however, are due in the economy, and an index of how sweeping they may be was the first set of re-elections this month for factory directors in Serbia. Of 546 directors, 70 were removed. "Far too few," a high Serbian Communist remarked. "We'll do much better in the next round."

The stated purpose of the purge movement is to replace primitive, inept old partisan warriors whom "life has passed by" with professionally qualified younger men who enjoy the workers' genuine confidence. Yet the dramatic meetings also appear to have begun to break the spell of fear instilled by the UDBA over the years among rank-and-file Communists, workers and ordinary citizens.

The movement thus clearly works two ways. On the one hand, it has opened a Pandora's box of old injustices and resentments which may get out of Communist control. On the other hand, it has also, undeniably, released a surge of new hope, idealism and critical thinking among sincere Communists long discouraged by bitter compromises.

The reformers themselves stress that the scandals and purges "are not the main point." The real task, thev say, is to create new conditions in the country and inside the party itself which will make the old bossism, fear and corruption impossible and fulfill the old Titoist promise of "workers' self-management."

Only 118,185 'Canadians' According to the Census

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA—Our national census is taken every decade. The last was in 1961. Until the subsequent one, a shelf-bending series of reports issues slowly from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This week there came one of the reports with information which blights one of my nationalistic hopes.

Fisher

The report is titled: The Origins of the Canadian Population. Remember that is refers to the situation in 1961. Our total population then was 18.2 million.

Before the 1951 census, that is from 1870 to 1941, the census taker asked the citizen what the ethnic origin of his or her father was. For example, if the citizen's mother was English in origin and the father German, he would be classed as having a German ethnic origin.

This is all in the feudal tradition: From father to son to son. Knowing as we do the influence of mothers on children, we tend to discount this kind of tracing of ancestral origin. But, wait, it isn't as superficial as it seems.

Beginning in 1951, DBS made it acceptable for a citizen to reply that his ethnic origin was "unkown." This makes sense, especially for the native born with several generations of forefathers who were native born. In addition, if a citizen insisted that he was a Canadian, the census takers were instructed to accept it.

OK! So the census planners wanted this analysis of ethnic origin. They sought it through this question of what your father was. In addition, they asked what your mother tongue was, i.e., the first language you learned.

* * *

How did we respond to this opportunity we had to insist we were Canadian? Not worth a damn! In 1961, over 84 per cent of our people had been born in Canada. In numbers, some 15.4 million. Only 118,185 reported their origin as Canadian. This figure does not include Indians and Eskimos.

That is, much less than one per cent of Canadians had the persistence to assert their Canadianism. Another 70,163 claimed their ethnic origin was unkown.

This is striking evidence to support the old mosaic jazz about Canada. We accept the hyphenated Canadian line so thoroughly that those of us who deplore it or who long for a clean identity are obviously baying at the moon.

It's understandable why the French Canadians are touchy about this aspect of the census. There was a pre-census hassle in 1959 and 1960 over the census forms. It was created by French-Canadian nationalists who insisted that this question must be retained so that their input to or share of the total population could be clearly marked. On the other hand, the rest of us did have the chance to wipe out hyphenated status and rejected it.

* * *

This rejection is even more discouraging when you look at the dropping percentage of our people with a British ethnic origin. In 1871 it was 60.5 per cent, in 1911 55.5 per cent. In 1961 it was down to 43.8 per cent. The French have hung fairly steady at the 30 per cent range.

Thus the two striking changes in ethnic composition, i.e., a dwindling British stock and a growing European stock, particularly Italian, German, and Dutch, has not increased the demand to be unhypherated.

This contradicts a feeling I got as a politician that the strongest clamor for a straight Canadian identity, for something like the embracing American which covers everyone in the U.S., came from non-British stock people, especially the Italians. In contrast I'd felt that those of British origin, especially the Scots and Irish, were the most intent on remembering the old traditions. It is clear now that almost everyone remembers and prizes them.

* * *

Another factor is apparent from the statistics on mother tongue. A definite minority (I'd guess about one-third of those born in this country of other than British and French stock) had a mother tongue other than English. Only the Italian Canadians born here had over a 50 per cent figure of learning Italian as their mother tongue.

That is, the integration by language into the dominant two languages goes very well with second and third generations. But this integration doesn't apparently encourage them to slough off their ethnic origin.

I tried to soften the blow of these figures by arguing to myself that since adults answer for children and wives so often for husbands when the census taker comes around, therefore the emphasis upon the older tradition was bound to have an inordinate influence.

But I keep returning to that measly 118,185 conscious Canadians. There's no use being despondent. Those of us who assert Canadianism must begin to spread the word for the next census. In 1971, next time; insist on Canadian, be Canadian!

Pacific Intertidal Areas Exceedingly Rich in Life

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Intertidal areas and adjacent parts of our coast are often exceedingly rich in marine life, richer even than the depths of the ocean. The main reason for this is that food in some form or other is abundant in these shallow waters. Even in quiet places such as lagoons and estuaries where the bottom tends to be muddy life is prolific for here great quantities of organic debris collect to form an almost limitless supply of nutriment.

Dr. Carl

Here the disintegrating animal and plant remains from mats of scum on the surface of the mud or become mixed in the bottom deposits. Layered material is easily gathered by creatures equipped with scraping devices or with sticky tentacles; buried substances are extracted by those which swallow mud and sand during the feeding process. Thus most of the organic detritus is harvested by mud inhabiting animals after it has settled.

Material still in suspension is also utilized but only by animals that have special devices for filtering out the fine particles. Most clams are adept at this and depend to a large extent upon this source of food. Associated with clams is another group of filter feeders including the mud shrimp and ghost shrimp which are often found in burrows in these muddy habitats. Since these are crustaceans and much more complex in body organization than molluscs they have evolved an entirely different system of food gathering.

Both kinds of shrimps are lobster-like in general appearance but small in size; the ghost shrimp, the larger of the two, seldom exceeds four inches in length and many mud shrimps are less than two inches. They each bear a pair of pinchers or claws but in the ghost shrimp these are rather large, particularly in the male, and one is very much bigger than the other.

The exaggerated structure is a multi-purpose tool. It can be used in offence and defence, probably in sparring with rival males, and in this connection it may serve to identify males from females as in the case of fiddler crabs in which the husbands also have outsized hands. The big claw also functions as a digging tool in excavating the burrow much as a cutting blade or scraper on a bulldozer. Finally this extraordinary appendage can be used for plugging the entrance-way to the tunnel to keep out intruders.

Other structures associated with the mouth and the gill chambers combining to form a pumping and filtering system used for gathering the microscopic bits of food suspended in the water above the burrow. Of course a certain amount of circulation is maintained to bring dissolved oxygen to the gills, but when feeding the flow of water is stepped up by increased activity of the pumping mechanism. This creates a visible current of water carrying food particles into the burrow and into the mouth region where the edible material is extracted by specially designed appendages. The water is then forced through the gill chamber exit shaft constructed by the shrimp for this purpose.

Ghost shrimps are usually dead white in color, hence their common name, but sometimes individuals may be pinkish or iridescent. Their cousins, the mud shrimps, are fairly drab and live up to their name in general appearance. Both are edible but have a definite muddy flavor. Since their body covering is relatively soft both species are preyed upon by fishes and other searchers of the mud flats. Consequently they seldom leave their individual burrows.

Air Pollution and Man

By Dr. P. J. LAWTHER
An Article in Spectrum, British Science Review.

Dirty air has been blamed at one time or another for causing almost every ill suffered by man.

Today we know it to be capable of producing distress, or even death, in patients suffering from advanced diseases of lungs or heart and it is suspected of playing an important part in the development of chronic bronchitis. It may also be a factor in the production of lung cancer. It certainly causes annoyance and material damage and the pollution which was accepted during the last century as a sign of affluence is now regarded by society as an intolerable nuisance.

The nature of air pollution is hardly less complex than its known or suspected effects on health.

"Traditional" pollutants are the smoke and sulphurous compounds which are the result of burning coal and oil. Newer pollutants arise from chemical industry and from motor vehicles.

Figures representing the gross emissions of various pollutants from different sources are often quoted but these are of much less relevance to clinical effects than are the ground level (or lung level) concentrations.

Most coal, coke and heavier oils contain compounds of sulphur as impurities. When burned most of this is emitted as sulphur dioxide, a small percentage comes off as sulphur trioxide and in the case of coal and coke some remains in the ash. In high concentrations all these pollutants can irritate the breathing passages.

Lid on Town

Usually turbulence in the air ensures that the pollutants put into it are rapidly diluted and removed. This scavenging mechanism fails during temperature inversions when, in still weather, cold air near the ground comes to underlie warmer air aloft. The effect of this is to put a lid on a town; under this lid accumulate the smoke and gases emitted from fires, industrial processes and motor vehicles.

During such fumigations the effects of air pollution are most clearly manifest. Pollution, usually measured in terms of smoke and sulphur dioxide (which are but indicators of pollution by a myriad compounds) rises to heights oved twenty times the "normal" winter average.

Fog often appears, too. During these "smogs" (smoke polluted fogs) death rates rise sharply. Analyses of the deaths show that the brunt is borne by the infirm, the very old and very young.

People suffering from advanced respiratory or cardiac disease may find the irritation provided by this pollution to be a final intolerable burden; the inadequate systems of such people, of the aged and of premature infants, fail under the stress.

Less dramatic increases in pollution produce measurable effects on chronic disease. When statistics, such as applications for hospital beds or sickness absence, are studied in relation to indices of air pollution it can be seen that increase in morbidity follow increase in pollution to over 1mgm.-cu. metre smoke and over 0.25 perts per million SO2 fairly consistently.

From clinical observations it would seem reasonable to attribute much of the effect of pollution to its ability to cause increase in the resistance of the airways. In other words, people start wheezing.

Obviously it is of prime importance to identify the pollutant or combination of pollutants which cause this. Much experimental work is being devoted to the search. Sulphur dioxide and sulphuric acid are corrosive chemicals which in high concentrations, and in sensitive subjects, can produce acute respiratory irritation and distress. Not unnaturally, there, these compounds have been held suspect for many years and much research has been done on their effects.

More Subtle

However, no experiemental work published to date has demonstrated consistent effects when these compounds have been inhaled in concentrations such as are found in town air. The irritant is likely to be a more subtle compound or combination of contaminants.

Air pollution may be an important factor in chronic bronchitis. This disease shows itself by a chronic cough which at first produces clear mucoid phlegm. Later the phlegm becomes purulent and the patient suffers from recurrent bouts of acute bronchitis. Ultimately irreparable damage is done to the lungs from which emphysema and heart failure result.

There is good reason to believe that cigarette smoking is the most potent factor in producing this hypersecretion of mucus and that the changes described die down if this irritant is withdrawn.

The second stage in the development of chronic bronchitis — the establishment of bacterial infection — is serious because changes take place which cannot be reversed. The damage to the airways and to the lung is accompanied by increasing breathlessness and, ultimately, by strain on the cardio-vascular system.

Urban Factor

There is good evidence from epidemiological studies that this phase is related more closely to some urban factor than to the smoking of cigarettes. The urban factor may well be air pollution in which case it would probably act by facilitating the establishment and persistence of infection of the respiratory tract. The effect of various pollutants on the behaviour of bacteria is being studied.

Lung cancer is found more commonly in towns than in rural districts and coal smoke has properly been suspected of causing the disease because it contains polycyclic hydrocarbons. Some epidemiological studies supported this view. Thy demonstrated a close relationship between the smokiness of some towns and the mortality from lung cancer in them.

There are, however, some serious obstacles to the acceptance of the hypothesis that air pollution is the cause of lung cancer we see in our midst. The relationship between lung cancer and benzopyrene content of town air is far from uniform even in Britain; high figures for towns are also seen in countries such as Norway and Finland where the cities are relatively unpolluted by polycyclic hydrocarbons.

Probably the most serious blow to the argument is the fact that lung cancer has become increasingly common as pollution from coal smoke has been declining. The disease has rapidly increased in prevalence in this century as pollution has gone down and it is so closely associated with the habit of smoking cigarettes as to leave little reasonable doubt as to its main cause.

Many have sought new pollutants which might be blamed for causing this recent rise in lung cancer deaths. Some have accused the diesel engine, with little reason. The smoke from badly adjusted or ill-kept diesel engines may contain traces of polycyclic hydrocarbon but there is no evidence from extensive surveys of people and environments that this engine is a cause of lung cancer.

Good Candidate

The petrol engine is a better candidate for suspicion in that it has been in use longer. Yet there is, happily, no evidence from the study of mortality or morbidity statistics to associate the petrol engine with lung cancer.

The petrol engine, unlike the diesel, emits carbon monoxide which is a dangerous asphyxiant which, in concentrations too low to cause dramatic symptoms may yet cause impairment of judgement and the performance of skilled tasks.

LONER

He Took Only Way To Escape

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—Earl Francis rebelled at civilization for all his 33 years. His lonely fight seemed impossible to win. It ended Tuesday when he blew himself to bits.

A thin, balding man who held a variety of white-collar jobs, Francis left Washington, D.C., to flee the turmoil of 20th-century life.

"I'll never work another eight-hour, six-day week for any man," Francis said in 1964.

He picked a mile-high peak in the Catalina Mountains, overlooking Oracle, Ariz. For a year Francis, five-foot-five and weighing 125, worked night and day on a stone-and-glass cabin.

COSY PLACE

Up the mile climb where there was no road Francis hauled his building materials, and he built a cozy place with electricity supplied by a power generator, running water and other conveniences. Then, he settled back to read, paint and meditate.

It happened to be on land in Coronado National Forest. An eight-foot hole in his backyard was called a gold mine by Francis but the U.S. Forest Service said he trespassed on public lands. Francis replied he would never move.

The law permits construction of a dwelling near a claim but states the claim must contain gold to warrant a patent or title to the land. This wasn't so with Francis' mine.

Discouraged and expecting eviction from his castle, authorities said, Francis sat down on a case of dynamite Tuesday, lighted the fuse and blew himself to bits.

Ballet Fans Cheated On Seating?

A ticket mix-up Wednesday night at the McPherson Playhouse was blamed on patrons by the sponsoring women's committee of the Victoria Symphony Society today.

"We bought just the amount of tickets needed" for the McPherson's seating capacity for the one-night appearance of the Banff Festival Ballet, said committee president Mrs. H. Thirlwall.

But some $1.50 ticket holders, who were supposed to be sitting in the upper balcony, moved lower down to the $2 seats.

"You can't go to every person in every seat and say 'Show me your stub'," protested Mrs. Thirlwall.

'NOT OVERSOLD'

"We weren't oversold," she said, and no one with a ticket was turned away.

Two front rows, which had several seats empty at curtain time, had been reserved for Banff Ballet patrons, not for Women's Committee members, said Mrs. Thirlwall.

"We knew some of them would be arriving late."

But next time the committee sponsors a show, they will have either reserved seats, or the same price throughout the theatre, she said.

At the Playhouse Wednesday night, patrons milled about trying to find their seats. Some $2 ticket-holders ended up sitting high in the balcony. They descended upon manager Jack Morgan, who blamed the women's committee.

He said the house was oversold and many patrons had to be turned away and their tickets refunded.

Oregon Honors Two Victorians

Two Victoria men were among 476 students receiving master's degrees from the University of Oregon Saturday.

Hugh Cowley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Cowley, 250 Douglas Street, was awarded his master of business administration degree.

John Price, son of Mrs. D. M. Price, 1075 San Marino, received his master of education degree.

The degrees were conferred by University of Oregon president Arthur Fleming.

VIET CONG DEFECTORS INCREASING

SAIGON (Reuters) — More men have defected from the Viet Cong guerrillas to the South Vietnamese government already this year than in the whole of last year, government statistics said today.

By this week 11,312 Viet Cong—military and civilian—had turned themselves into the government's "chieu hoi" ("open arms") centres.

In 1965, there were 11,124 of these "returnees."

Victoria's first all-emergency civic ambulance has started on the route home from eastern Canada factories.

It should be in service by the end of September.

Deputy fire chief Eric Simmons, whose department will care for an operate the $8,000 machine, said today the basic unit is being modified at St. Catharines.

Delivery here is expected the first week of September and as much as three weeks may be required to equip it.

Since gear such as stretchers, splints, bandages, oxygen and blankets will be assembled from different suppliers the deputy chief could not put a date on the first day of service.

NEW MACHINE

"But it won't go into service until it is fully equipped," the deputy said.

Having the new machine — to be painted fire engine red — represents a milestone in the extension of public safety services here.

Groups and individuals have campaigned at length for a fully-equipped 24-hour public ambulance under police or fire department control.

Up to now the only adequate service available to the public has been privately-operated. Emergency calls have been handled by police patrol wagons whose only refinements are blankets, stretchers and constables with some knowledge of first aid.

PANEL TRUCK

Recently, the fire department acquired a panel truck to transport oxygen tanks, smoke masks and similar equipment primarily for the department but also as an emergency inhalator truck on public call.

The new vehicle will mean more work but no additional staff for the fire department.

Deputy chief Simmons said "We will be answering traffic accident calls for the first time."

Last year the police handled more than 900 emergency calls including traffic accidents. The fire department attended nearly 200 calls requiring the inhalator where the police patrol also took part.

OTHER DUTIES

City council provided $10,000 to provide and outfit the new machine but drew the line at more firemen requested to ensure a full complement for other fire department duty.

Four two-man teams will be responsible for running the ambulance. They all are trained in industrial first aid as part of their fire department qualification.

Grenade Kills 6 Tots

KNIN, Yugoslavia (AP) — Six children, aged 5 to 13, were killed Wednesday with a Second World War grenade they found while hunting for berries.

HE'S ONLY A LITTLE GUY. But it took three burly firemen to release three-year-old Michael Little when his foot became trapped in a drainpipe Wednesday. Michael, of 1555 Westall, was released after about five minutes after the firemen chipped away pieces of drain around his foot. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Island Nurserymen Get Nematode Cash

Lower Vancouver Island nurserymen Wednesday received compensation ranging as high as $40,000 for loss of sales due to the federal government's golden nematode control program.

The federal department of agriculture had prohibited the exportation and in effect the sale of nursery stock when it learned that certain lands in the area were infested with the pest.

Nearly 20 members of the Vancouver Island Nurserymen's Association had entered claims to the department.

Local potato-growers also affected by government orders to destroy infested crops and to prohibit sale of potatoes liable to infection have not yet received payment in full.

It is generally felt 1966 crops are not endangered, although experience with golden nematodes on Long Island and Newfoundland, other chronically infested areas, has shown the pest to be practically ineradicable.

IN NEW LONG-TERM PLANNING

Renewal, Sewers Get Priority

By AB KENT

A second capital budget likely to cost millions more than the current five-year program looms before Victoria planners and taxpayers.

City hall administrators are doing preliminary work on it now, although the first program has just under 2½ years to run.

Nearly $2 million remains unspent out of $3,387,000 approved for the capital budget program in 1964.

But community development needs already point dramatically to massive capital spending in the capital region for the period following 1968.

Some projects can hardly wait that long and may have to be undertaken before the current five-year program runs out.

COMPLICATED

And according to both political and administrative viewpoints, the picture is complicated by the regional nature of some matters requiring large outlays.

There are big decisions to be made at local and provincial levels to establish whether responsibilities should be municipal, belong to the whole region or to the provincial government.

A broader provincial policy on roads, for example, could take a lot of uncertainty out of arterial street planning in Greater Victoria.

Meanwhile priorities for the next Victoria city capital budget are likely to be given to:

● The region's sanitary sewer program.

● Urban renewal schemes including downtown malls and beautification, Chinatown restoration, and public housing.

● A family court complex.

● Parks development and expansion.

● Traffic requirements and off-street parking facilities.

Development of recreational facilities could also be considered for inclusion, along with the possibility of local municipalities being saddled with public transportation services so far accepted by B.C. Hydro.

But two matters yet to be dealt with seriously as far as ascertaining responsibility for them are:

● Hospital construction.

● The emergence of new school costs embodied in Greater Victoria school district's appeal for public subscriptions to equip its Institute of Adult Studies.

The place to seek the local share of such money is in a capital budget.

It permits projects and priorities to be known far in advance of actual undertaking;

Borrowings can be made to suit the most favorable money market;

It tends to stabilize the tax rate;

Civic staff and department heads are enabled to plan their work in logical sequence for more efficiency and economy;

The public is in a position to be thoroughly aware of planned projects in a single program and to vote accordingly instead of in individual referendums.

STANDARDS FOR 1968 MODELS

U.S. Car Safety Bill Passed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives passed Wednesday, 371 to 0, an auto safety bill requiring federal safety standards for 1968 model cars, buses and trucks.

The measure is similar to the bill passed unanimously by the Senate on June 14. However, enough differences exist that a conference committee probably will have to meet to resolve them.

The bill requires the secretary of commerce to issue safety standards by Jan. 31, 1967, to take effect within one year after that.

The bill was expanded by the House to include used cars, left out of the Senate measure. The secretary of commerce would issue used-car standards within two years of final enactment of the law.

The first standards are expected to include most of the 26 safety features adopted by the general services administration for 1968 vehicles bought by the government.

The House broadened the Senate bill by adding a section that goes beyond a separate Senate bill by requiring that new autos be equipped with tires adequate to carry a full load of passengers and a reasonable amount of luggage.

Quebec Grabs Tight Control Of Information

MONTREAL (CP)—La Presse, in a report from Quebec, says the Union Nationale government, by order-in-council passed a month ago but not disclosed at the time, placed the provincial government office of information and publicity directly under the authority of the cabinet. When created by the former Liberal government, the organization was a responsibility of the provincial secretary.

The Montreal newspaper's chief correspondent at Quebec, Pierre O'Neil, writes that the change "would have only secondary significance if there were not other decisions that appear to be directly linked and to have disquieting consequences for the future."

He says the government is conducting a study of the whole system of official information and is making increasing use of an organization called Telbec, created some months ago in Montreal to distribute in the province information on behalf of clients—mainly commercial enterprises—subscribing to its facilities for transmission by teletype to newspapers and broadcasting stations.

DIFFICULT

Correspondent O'Neil says that at the same time it has been more difficult at Quebec to get information from government sources directly.

He writes that the situation indicates the possibility, "more or less remote," that the Union Nationale will create a French-Canadian press agency to act as "outlet for all official information from the government."

UNDERGROUND TEST BAN ADVOCATED

GENEVA (Reuters)—Eight neutral nations today demanded the United States and Russia stop underground nuclear weapon tests and investigate neutral proposals for a treaty banning such blasts.

The demand came in a joint memorandum from Brazil, Burma, Ethiopia, India, Mexico, Nigeria, Sweden and the United Arab Republic.

Guarantee Neutrality Of Viet Nam—Eden

LONDON (Reuters) — Lord Avon, former prime minister Sir Anthony Eden, today put forward a 12-point plan to bring peace to Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia, partly by strengthening the three-nation commission supervising the 1954 truce there.

In a book published today, Avon says the neutrality of Laos, Cambodia and both North and South Viet Nam should be guaranteed by the major powers, which would be forbidden to sell arms to the Indochinese nations.

Avon proposes that the U.S., Russia, China, France, Britain and the four Indochinese states guarantee the neutrality of Laos and Cambodia, and offer to do so for North and South Viet Nam, but that, if the terms of the agreement are violated, the guarantors have the right, in certain circumstances, to act without waiting for unanimity.

The proposals by Avon, who was co-chairman of the 1954 Indochina truce conference, are included in his 71-page book Towards Peace in Viet Nam, published by the Oxford University Press.

Smallwood Shifts Ridings; Out to 'Get' Tory Chief?

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood is leaving his native Bonavista North legislature district to run for a west-coast seat in the Sept. 8 provincial election he announced Wednesday, and Opposition Leader Dr. Noel Murphy claims the premier is "out to get me."

Mr. Smallwood has said one aim of this election, his sixth since coming to power with Confederation in 1949, is to bring "western Newfoundland solidly back into the ranks of Liberalism." Three Conservatives were elected outside the eastern Avalon Peninsula in the last election Nov. 19, 1962.

Besides 34 Liberals, that voting elected seven PCs, four of them from the traditional PC stronghold of St. John's. An independent was elected in Labrador West.

Mr. Smallwood will run in Humber West, a Liberal riding since 1949, which shares part of the city of Corner Brook with Humber East, Dr. Murphy's riding.

WAGE JOINT CAMPAIGN

Clyde Wells, 28, appointed labor minister Monday, will oppose Dr. Murphy in Humber East. Premier Smallwood says he will wage a joint campaign with his youngest minister "if I get the nomination."

"It's no Wells who's out to get me," Dr. Murphy said. He repeated earlier charges the premier wants to "obliterate the opposition. "I think he's my opponent and he's using a front."

It is the second time the premier has left his home riding. But he said "no great principle is involved" this time.

In 1959, Mr. Smallwood defeated then Conservative Leader Malcolm Hollett in St. John's West when Newfoundland was battling John Diefenbaker's federal government over a Confederation term providing an annual grant of $8,000,000 to the province. Mr. Diefenbaker wanted to review the term in 1962.

"I did it on a matter of great principle," Mr. Smallwood said Wednesday of his defeat of Mr. Hollett, now a senator. It was "one of the most urgent crises . . . that ever confronted Newfoundland."

The PCs also took the west-coast riding of St. Barbe South and Grand Falls in the central part of the province in the last election. William Smith, member for St. Barbe South, died more than a year ago. Mr. Smallwood said Wednesday Finance Minister Dr. Fred Rowe will leave his White Bay South riding to run in Grand Falls, now held by PC Ambrose Peddle.

When manifestos are revealed, Mr. Smallwood is expected to campaign on a long-range plan for the province, the youth injected into his cabinet by addition of five new ministers since July 19 and the 23 new candidates up for election on the Liberal ticket.

Dr. Murphy expects to fight a campaign on grounds of government failure to cut the cost of living, raise wages, produce industries or keep promises.

Standings at dissolution were 33 Liberals, six PCs and three vacancies. The independent joined the Conservatives in April. Two resignations and Mr. Smith's death account for the vacant seats.

Campers Drowned

TOKYO (Reuters) — Eight schoolgirls and their teacher on a camping trip in Japan's southernmost island of Kyushu were drowned Sunday in a mountain river flood, police reported.

PAYING THE FARE of foreign correspondents to visit Viet Nam was defended by Leonard H. Marks, chief of the U.S. Information Agency before the Senate foreign relations committee Wednesday. Marks contended there was no secrecy about the program. Three Canadian newsmen were among those whose fares were paid.

QUEEN MOTHER OPENS U.K.'S LONGEST SPAN

DUNDEE, Scotland (AP) — The Tay Road Bridge, longest in Britain and seventh longest in the world, was opened to traffic today.

The 7,356-foot concrete-pier bridge spans the River Tay from Newport to Dundee. It cost £6,500,000 ($19,500,000), and with the Firth of Forth road bridge at Edinburgh forms part of the shortened highway link up Scotland's east coast.

The bridge was opened by the Queen Mother. Half an hour before her arrival an anonymous telephone caller reported a bomb had been planted on the bridge. Police searched the roadway, found nothing and allowed the Queen Mother to proceed on schedule.

Mine Issues Take Beating

Dynasty skidded .75 to a new 1966 low of $8.55. Cascade Moly tumbled $1 to $2.45 and Brenmac struck a new low of .90, down .10 from Wednesday's close.

Brenda lost .35 to $8.35 and Croydon was off .04 to .80.

One of the few to gain was Native, up .10 to .90.

In the industrials MacMillan Bloedel was at a new 1966 low, dropping $1.12 to $24.87.

AT TORONTO losses widened with many key issues sagging to 1966 lows.

Loses were not confined to any single group but spread across a wide range of issues. Bank of Nova Scotia dipped 1 to 66½, Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce 1 to 58, CPR 1 to 57¾, Jefferson Lake 1½ to 26⅝, B-A Oil ⅝ to 30½ and Algoma Steel ½ to 27½.

In senior mining issues, Inco sagged 2½ to 87, Cominco 1¼ to 36, Falconbridge 1¾ to 89¼ and Denison 1 to 56.

Home A fell ⅝ to 21¾ and Hudson's Bay ⅝ to 17⅞ as western oils were weak.

AT NEW YORK the market fell sharply in late afternoon trading.

Airlines were among losers but prices weakened across the board.

Trading was halted in Xerox as it plunged 15⅜ points to 200⅛. IBM was down more than seven points. Fairchild Camera lost four.

Off two points or more were Texas Instruments, Mallory, American Airlines and U.S. Smelting.

AT MONTREAL the market drifted lower today after morning trading had produced a partial halt in the current decline.

International Nickel dropped 2 points to 87 and Bell Telephone ¾ to 49½. Home Oil A eased ⅝ to 21¾ and Alcan ¼ to 32.

AT LONDON the market lacked a positive trend today.

Gilts, however, went ahead, though sometimes appearing a little uncertain, with gains which ranged to ¼. Dollar stocks were mixed.

International Nickel was dull despite opening higher and other Canadians to ease by up to a point including Algoma, B.A. Oil and Consolidated Mining. Noranda lost 1½ points.

Firm spots included Canadian Pacific, Canadian Husky, Consolidated Paper, Hollinger, Trans-Canada Pipe and Brazilian Light and Power.

U.S. Housing Starts Drop

WASHINGTON (AP)—Housing starts in the U.S.—a major economic barometer — dropped again during July to the lowest level since the depths of the 1960 recession, the commerce department has reported.

Starts dropped 16.4 per cent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1,064,000, the lowest since December, 1960.

Soviet Advances Production Date Of Big Airliner

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia's projected supersonic airliner, the 120-passenger TU-144, is due to enter service before 1970, the Soviet news agency Tass says.

The jet aircraft, expected to fly at speeds of up to 1,500 miles an hour, will rival the Anglo-French Concorde, due to be test-flown in February, 1968.

Production of the TU-144 will form part of the plans by Aeroflot, the Soviet airline, to develop an all-jet fleet.

The plans were made public to Tass by Nikolai Bykov, deputy minister of civil aviation. All the new planes will have tail-mounted engines, he said.

PGE BOND ISSUE

Speculation On Interest Rate

Local bond dealers are divided on speculating Premier Bennett's interest offering for his PGE parity bond issue next month.

Some feel the $50,000,000 issue will have to bear a healthy 5½-6 per cent rate to be competitive in today's bond market.

Others believe there will be no problem selling the parities even at 5 per cent because they are secure.

"He's going to have to pay more on this issue," one said.

Another commented:

"I can sell them. The investing public has become attuned to them. They are a comfortable thing."

The dealer has already taken orders even though the interest rate will not be known until the premier announces it Monday and the bonds will not likely be available until Sept. 15.

HAS PROBLEM

"He's faced with the problem of deciding what interest rate to place on them," a dealer said.

"If he puts them out at 6 per cent people would sell the ones they are holding and he'd be no further ahead.

"An investor is better off with parity bonds than buying high-yield bonds in the market because the money is always there."

Another dealer pointed out the long-term yields of 6½ and 7 per cent on government and corporate bond issues are also attractive.

Whatever the premier decides must be attractive before it will sell, he said. "The bond dealer won't take it if he can't sell it."

A dealer spokesman pointed out a problem the premier faces in deciding to offer bonds at a high rate of interest.

"It would mean his outstanding parity bond issues of 1967, 1968, 1969 and 1970 would have to be raised, perhaps to 5½ per cent, in order to sell," the bond man said.

But the premier also could offer a premium to purchasers provided they held their bonds to maturity, he said.

Meanwhile, a bank securities spokesman said there had been no difficulty in disposing of the current federal government bond issues yielding as much as 5.9 per cent.

The three-year $250 million issue at 5¾ per cent has been especially attractive, he said.

Import Car Sales Boom Across U.S.

DETROIT (AP) — Import car dealers did record-breaking business in the first six months of this year as they topped the 300,000 sales mark in the United States for the first time.

The first-half registration total of 304,275 broke the old mark of 291,772 set in the January-June period of 1959. That year marked the current high for import sales as U.S. buyers bought 614,131 foriegn made cars.

Volkswagen maintained its pace as perennial leader in the import sales race. It sold 198,116 cars in the American market, compared with 170,652 in the first six months of 1965.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Grain prices showed considerable irregularities in active trading on the Winnipeg grain exchange today. Export interest was good.

All commodities rallied briskly in early trading aided by broad advances recorded in Chicago. Soybean prices in particular, recorded broad gains prompting good buying in flax and rapeseed.

However, early advances on U.S. markets were reduced or eliminated in later trading and the declines were reflected in the prices of commodities here.

Lakhead prices for IWA, class two and domestic wheat were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP)—Prices in the grain futures market moved rapidly and broadly today but mostly toward weakness.

August soybeans, which appeared to be the most heavily traded, ranged from 9¼ cents a bushel higher to 4¾ cents lower by early afternoon.

The grains traded in a mixed range most of the time but shifted quickly from firm to slightly weak on spurts of buying and selling which brokers said seemed to have been limited to a few relatively major speculators and commission firms.

GUIDELINES DEAD

U.S. Economy Faces Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy still faces some nagging problems—high interest rates and the threat of further inflation—despite assurances from the Johnson administration that it's strong and healthy.

Since the start of the year prices and interest rates have risen steadily. Wage - price guidelines, one of the administration's major tools against inflation, now have been left for dead by their critics.

Even the administration is reassessing their value in the wake of this month's steel price increases and an airline machinists settlement well above that prescribed by the guidelines.

Administration leaders expect a lessening of some of the economic pressures later in the year. But one government economist only Wednesday described the containment of inflation as perhaps the greatest challenge facing the administration in the year ahead.

William Shaw, assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs, urged not only restraint but also short-term sacrifices by both labor and management to keep inflation under control.

Anti - inflationary pressure was cited Wednesday by the federal reserve board as it tightened credit restrictions another notch, only one day after commercial banks raised their interest rate for favored customers to six per cent.

RAISE CEILING

The board raised to six per cent from five the legal ceiling that the commercial banks must hold against certificates of deposit left for a specified period.

The new requirement, which goes into effect next month at several hundred banks with time deposits exceeding $5,000,000,000, means that for every $100 a bank obtains through a certificate of deposit, it must set aside $6 as a reserve instead of $5. It can lend the remaining $94 to customers.

A similar boost to five per cent from four was voted by the board last June 27.

The new requirement, the board estimated, would reduce funds available for lending by banks by about $450,000,000.

The government noted, however, one beneficial effect of high interest rates in reporting a balance-of-payments deficit of only $163,000,000 for the second quarter of the year, the lowest quarterly figure in 12 months.

The commerce department credited the relatively good showing to an increase of foreign investment in high-interest deposit certificates.

The New York stock market is feeling the effects of tight money. It hit a new low for the year Wednesday and brokers blamed it on worry of inflation and uncertainty about the war in Viet Nam.

LEAK HINTED IN INTEREST RATE BOOST

NEW YORK (AP) — David Charnay, chairman of the board of Continental General Inc., an investment firm, has called for a federal investigation into the possibility that news of Tuesday's rise in the prime bank rate was leaked, causing an 11-point drop in the New York stock market.

Charnay said in telegrams Wednesday to President Johnson, the Securities and Exchange Commission and both the New York and American Stock Exchanges that there may have been a leak of "inside information" to "professionals," who unloaded stocks in advance.

Building Slump In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Key, president of the Toronto Real Estate Board, says the Metropolitan Toronto economy is threatened by a house-building slump.

In a statement, he said a critical shortage of new housing for middle-income families is retarding industrial growth.

Key was commenting on a survey released by the 4,000-member board which shows a decline in the total value of building permits issued from $59,590,608 in July, 1965, to $38,073,086 in July of this year.

Rand Report On Gas Stock Due Monday

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said Wednesday he expects a report from Ivan C. Rand next Monday on the acquisition of Northern Ontario Natural Gas Co. stock by Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. Rand, a retired justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, headed the royal commission which investigated the case. The hearing concluded in April.

The federal cabinet was requested by the Law Society of Upper Canada to remove Mr. Justice Landreville from his position. He came under fire after receiving free 7,500 shares of the gas company stock while he was mayor of Sudbury.

The company obtained a municipal gas franchise in the city when Mr. Justice Landreville was mayor there in 1956.

Stelco Offers Top World Scale

HAMILTON (CP)—A contract that would make 11,000 employees of the Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. plant the highest paid steel workers in the world was outlined to a mass union meeting Wednesday night.

The members of Local 1005 of the United Steelworkers of America will begin voting at 6 a.m. Monday on whether to accept the three - year contract which includes basic wage provisions of one - cent - an - hour higher than those in the United States steel industry.

The voting ends at 12:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The contract also provides for a pension plan which John Morgan, Local 1005 president, described as the best in North America.

Agreement was reached after company and union negotiators spent 15 days bargaining under the guidance of Judge Walter Little of Parry Sound, Ont., chairman of a conciliation board.

The board was set up after the workers staged a violence-ridden five-day walkout to protest the slow pace of earlier negotiations.

Some of the 4,000 union members who attened Wednesday night's meeting hooted and jeered as Mr. Morgan outlined the agreement. Employees working night shifts will be told of the contract provisions at a meeting today. Full details will be published in the union magazine Friday.

Mr. Morgan urged members to accept the cntract. He said targets of the union's negotiating committee has been reached.

Basic wage increases of 28 cents-an-hour are spread over the life of the contract. The first 10-cent increase is retroactive to Aug. 1, eight cents next Aug. 1 and 10 cents Aug. 1, 1968.

HIGHER THAN U.S.

Mr. Morgan said this will bring wages to one-cent-an-hour higher than equivalent jobs in the U.S. steel industry by August, 1967. The present U.S. contract expires at the end of 1967.

He compared the Canadians' August, 1967, job Class 2 rate of $2.455 with the U.S. rate in the same period of $2.445.

Company officials estimated the contract will cost Stelco about $22,000,000, or 66.7 cents-an-hour for each man.

The pension plan, effective Sept. 1, will pay $310 monthly to a 65-year-old employee with 35 years' service. After Dec. 1 the same amount will be payable at 62.

"Compared with a maximum of $126 a month benefits payable under the old plan, Stelco workers may now receive a maximum pension of $335 a month," Mr. Morgan said.

Pipeline Expansion Proposed

CALGARY (CP) — Alberta and Southern Gas Co. Ltd. said Wednesday it plans a $55,000,000 pipeline expansion program to make more natural gas available for export to California and Montana.

The company said it has asked the Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board for permission to increase exports by 240,000,000 cubic feet a day. National Energy Board approval also will be sought.

The export, which also would mean pipeline expansion in B.C., California and the Pacific Northwest, was requested by Montana Power Corp. and Pacific Gas and Electric Co. of California.

UPCOMING GENEVA NEGOTIATIONS

Anti-Dumping Measure Will Put Canada on Spot

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada will be on the spot when anti-dumping measures become a prime topic this fall at the Kennedy Round of tariff negotiations in Geneva.

An informed government source says Canadian negotiators expect strong pressure for an end to the automatic provisions of Canada's 62-year-old anti-dumping duty.

The automatic clause contradicts a formal principle adopted by the major trading nations as members of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The principle states anti-dumping duty should be levied only when it can be proved that domestic industry is damaged or threatened by the sale of imported goods at a price lower than the price charged in the exporting country.

CAN MAKE LEVIES

Canada's revenue department has the authority to make levies without proof of damage. It needs only proof that goods of a class or kind manufactured in Canada are being imported at a price lower than the price in the exporting nation "at the time and place of shipment."

The duty levied is the difference between the two prices.

The present round of GATT negotiations considers anti-dumping the most serious of several "non-tariff barriers" to international trade. The round is attempting to establish an international code on anti-dumping regulations.

The government source said Canada is "not really talking" about dropping its automatic provisions.

"We would have to be convinced that there were substantial benefits for Canada in what changes other countries make in anti-dumping procedures," he said.

Canada has argued from the start that its levies must be automatic because dumping from the United States must be dealt with immediately to save Canadian producers from serious harm.

Because the U.S. market is big and the Canadian market small, a relatively insignificant amount of goods dumped by a major producer could upset market coditions in Canada.

Invesitgations required for proof of damage in other countries can take many months. In the U.S. separate studies to provide dumping and damage can occupy two years.

A study for the Canadian-American Committee several years ago concluded that Canada has not deliberately restricted trade or affected the level of protection with its anti-dumping legislation.

But the study added that no one has yet found a meaningful way to measure the height of these classic invisible barriers. You cannot, for instance, find out how many exporters have been persuaded to stay out of the Canadian market by the tough regulations.

Many factors of quantity, exchange rates, time lag and business practices enter the picture to blur price comparisons and promp criticism of decisions which are not subject to appeal.

Students of anti-dumping provisions say they all pose one serious risk. Relatively cheap goods, shut out as temporary and disrupting imports, might hold promise as long-term supplies at a long-term bargain — and therefore of over-all economic benefit to the economy.

New Plant Planned By John Inglis Firm

HAMILTON (CP)—John Inglis Co. will begin construction within two months of a plant that will ultimately employ about 5,000 persons.

Initially a refrigerator and freezer manufacturing plant, the six-acre building would employ between 200 and 300 workers at the start. Production is to start around the end of next year. It has been estimated that the first stage of the plant will cost $2,500,000.

B.C. RATE SHOWS DROP

Unemployment Increases As Students Flood Market

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment showed an unusual increase in July, climbing to 244,000 from 230,000 in June as a record number of teen-agers flooded the job market. The July total matched the jobless level of July, 1965.

Regional unemployment rates varied from a high of 4.4 per cent in the Atlantic provinces, up from 3.8 per cent in June, to 1.7 per cent on the Prairies, up from 1.2.

The Quebec rate was unchanged at four per cent, Ontario's stayed at 2.7 per cent and the British Columbia rate dropped to 3.7 per cent from 4.4.

A joint report by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the immigration department's manpower division said the unemployment rate in July stood at 3.1 per cent, unchanged from June and slightly below the 3.3-per-cent rate in July of last year.

However, after adjustment to discount seasonal factors, the rate was 4.1 per cent compared to 3.7 per cent in June and 4.2 per cent a year earlier.

Teen-agers in the labor market reached a record 1,009,000 by mid-July with an estimated 284,000 students joining the ranks in the month.

BASED ON SAMPLE

	July 1966	June 1966	July 1965
Labor force	7,787	7,533	7,495
Employed	7,543	7,303	7,251
Unemployed	244	230	244

Employment showed an above-average increase of 240,000 between June and July but the labor force increased by a larger amount, 254,000, to cause the rise in unemployment of 14,000.

In four of the last five years, unemployment has registered declines of 11,000 to 17,000 during the same period.

The employment picture was brightest for women, although it was colored by the substantial number of married women who withdrew from the job market for the summer.

One Gets Fame But for Sandy It's Elbow Pain

By Associated Press

Willie Mays felt great; Sandy Koufax felt pain.

Mays' feeling came in the fourth inning Wednesday when he hit a home run that triggered San Francisco Giants to a 4-3 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

Koufax' came in the second inning of Los Angeles Dodgers' 5-1 loss to Cincinnati Reds when he hurt his arthritic left elbow.

The home run was the 535th of Mays' career and made him the second greatest homer hitter and the greatest right-handed homer hitter of all time.

The blast, on a 3-2 pitch from Ray Washburn, sailed over the right field fence at Candlestick Park and vaulted Mays ahead of Jimmy Foxx on the all-time list.

RUTH WAS TOPS

The Giant centre fielder, who tied Foxx the night before, now trails only Babe Ruth and his 714 homers. Ruth batted left-handed.

"I feel real great about it," Mays said afterward. "This is the first time anyone has achieved this in so short a time. The rest of those guys had 20 years, and I've had only 15."

Koufax was seeking his 20th victory Wednesday night but instead wound up with a sore elbow. He hurt it in the second inning when he struck out the side but didn't leave until the fifth.

"It's nothing different from what has happened to him before," said Dr. Robert Kerlan, Dodger team physician. "The elbow hurt him all season, but usually the pain is between pitching assignments.

"It's possible that Sandy will be able to warm up on the sidelines two days from now and then take his usual starting turn if the elbow is not swollen."

GETS AN INJECTION

Koufax, whose next scheduled turn would be Sunday, received a cortisone injection in the elbow, then placed it in a bucket of ice—the usual treatment he gets after a game.

In other National League games, New York Mets edged Pittsburgh, cutting the Pirates' lead to one-half game over San Francisco Giants, Chicago Cubs trimmed Philadelphia Phillies 5-3 in 10 innings and Atlanta Braves whipped Houston Astros 6-1.

In the American League, Baltimore beat Boston 8-4, Detroit defeated New York 4-2, Cleveland clipped Washington 5-3, Minnesota trimmed California 5-3, and Chicago swept two from Kansas City, 4-2 and 5-1.

Mays' homer, his 30th of the season, cut the Cardinals' lead to 3-1. The Giants then tied it in the eighth on run - scoring singles by Tito Fuentes and Willie McCovey and won it in the ninth on Jesus Alou's run-scoring single.

Koufax's elbow apparently hurt in the fourth inning as he loaded the bases on walks. Leo Cardenas then rapped a double, driving in all three runners. That was enough to hand the southpaw his seventh defeat against 19 victories.

METS STRIKE BACK

Pittsburgh took a 7-1 lead on homers by Willie Stargell, Bill Mazeroski and Don Clendenon, but the Mets struck back for five runs in the fourth inning. Bob Taylor accounted for the last four runs with the first pinch-hit grand-slam homer in Mets' history.

Ron Hunt then won it for New York with a two-out, two-run single in the sixth.

WITH LIONS

Rookie Getting Chance

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rookie Chick Graning, who won over fans as a quarterback, will try to impress British Columbia Lions as a defensive halfback tonight.

Graning, 28, will make his professional debut for the Lions when they play host to Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a Western Football Conference game.

Tonight's Lions - Winnipeg game may be heard over radio station CKNW (980) starting at 8. There is no television or cablevision presentation of the game.

Coach Dave Skrien decided to dress Graning tonight because he said B.C. "couldn't wait any longer" for Bud Spicer, another rookie, to live up to his potential.

Spicer, 25, cut from the team Tuesday, was part of a defensive backfield that proved vulnerable to the long pass as Lions lost two of their first three games this season.

He called a gambling game and made it pay as the rookies scored a 17-13 upset over the veterans, led by regular quarterback Joe Kapp. Graning passed for one touchdown and scored another himself.

APPS' SON PLACED

Bobby Apps, a rookie flanker, will also move into the regular lineup.

Apps, son of Syl Apps, the Toronto Maple Leafs' Hall of Fame centre, will be a replacement for flanker Sonny Homer. The veteran is in hospital under observation after being knocked unconscious last week in a game against Saskatchewan.

Fullback Bill Munsey has an injured ankle and half Willie Fleming a sprained toe but both will start.

Winnipeg, hoping to tie Saskatchewan atop the WFC standings with three wins in four games, will be missing offensive end Farrell Funston, out with a leg injury. Noel Dunford will take his place.

Dick Thornton, defensive back and quarterback, will take over punting duties for Ed Ullmer, who will dress despite a hand injury.

Casper Keeps Money Margin

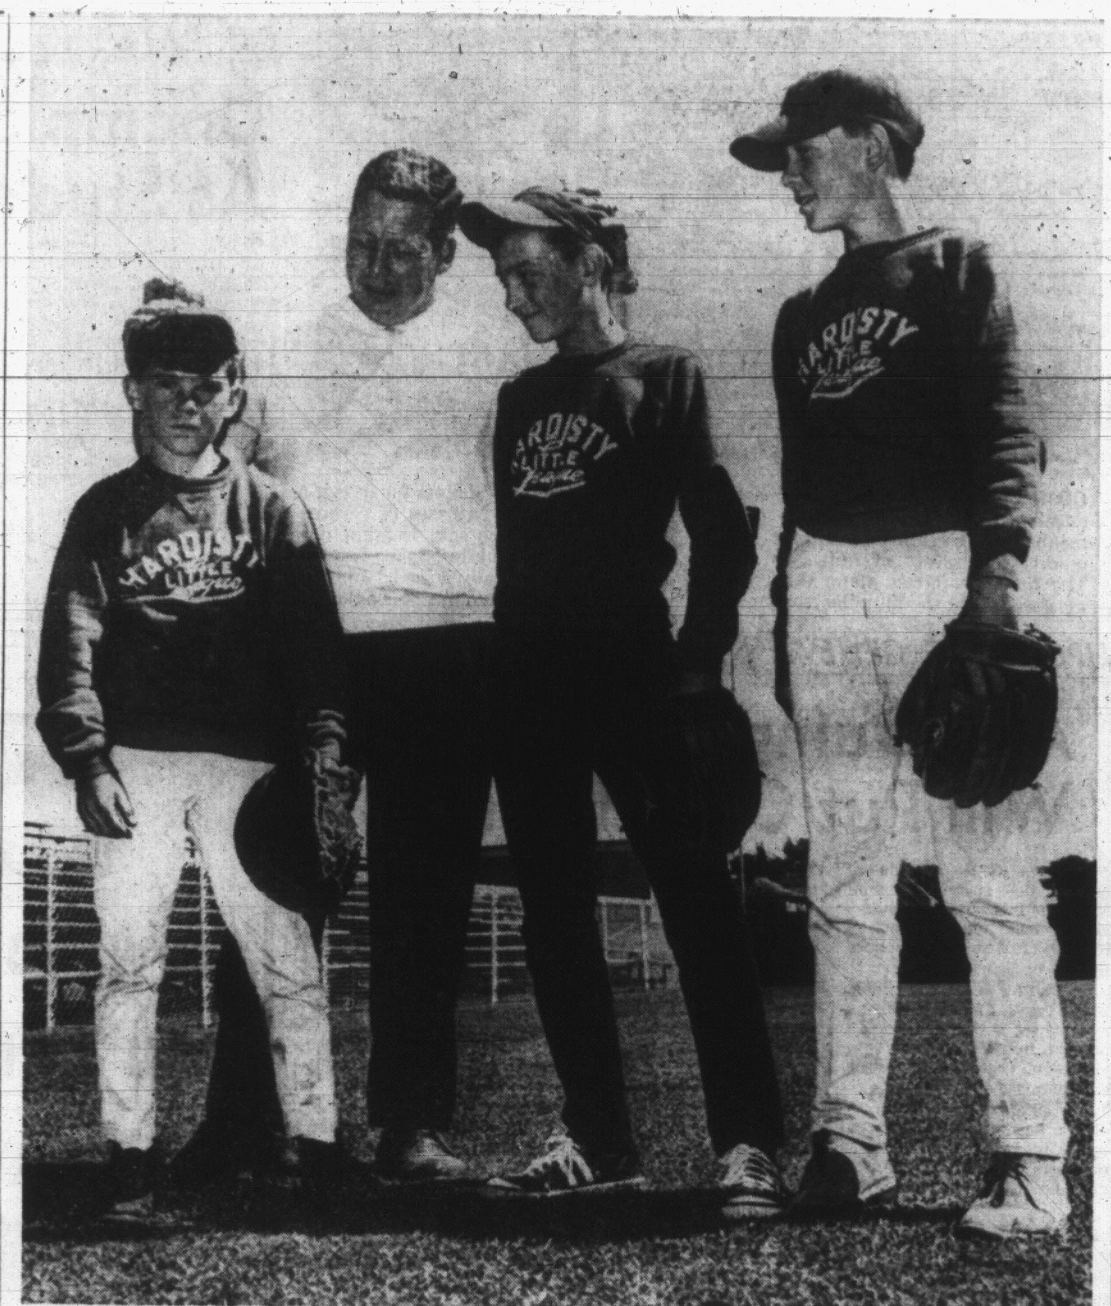
Casper has scooped up $99,315.90 in PGA-sponsored tournaments and $5,384.76 in unofficial winnings for $104,700.66.

The leaders:

Casper $99,315.90; Jack Nicklaus $74,953.33; Arnold Palmer $73,617.98; Doug Sanders $70,996.39; Gay Brewer $66,565.71.



FORMER FOOTBALL GREAT Frankie Morris keeps active in sports by coaching Edmonton-Hardisty team in Little League. If pitching is the yardstick, then a team from Sherbrooke, Quebec, may well be the one to be measured as the next Little League baseball champion of Canada.

The nation's first bona-fide "Canadian championship" tournament gets under way at Hampton Park tonight with Kelowna, B.C.'s champions, playing Edmonton-Hardisty, the Alberta-Saskatchewan standardbearers.

★ ★ ★

All four teams charged into Victoria earlier this week with perfect playoff records. Kelowna, Windsor and Edmonton each won six games while Sherbrooke ticked off four straight in provincial play.

But on the strength of pitching effectiveness, Sherbrooke stands alone.

Sherbrooke pitchers allowed only four runs in four games for a glossy 1.00 average. Windsor is next with a 1.5 runs-against average, Edmonton's record is 2.83 and B.C. follows with 3.83.

★ ★ ★

Mainstay of the bilingual Quebeckers is Andre Drouin. The brilliant youngster has lost only one game in two years of Little League play, that a 1-0 decision although he hurled a one-hitter.

Drouin's record includes a pair of no-hitters, one of them against Cowansville in the Quebec semifinals this year.

Richard Chase and Peter Barone are Windsor's "big two." Each won three games in this year's playdowns. That matches, exactly, the record of Edmonton's Ken Edmundson and Jonathan Shaw.

Kelowna's Greg Fox also sports a 3-0 record. Johnny Walker won two games for Kelowna and Reg Brantucci won the sixth game for the B.C. squad.

British Driver Killed

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Ken Miles, the dazzling British sportscar driver, was killed Wednesday in a fiery crash on the Riverside Raceway, where six racers have lost their lives since its completion in 1957.

A raceway spokesman said Miles, 47, apparently lost control of his test car on the ninth and final turn of the 2.6-mile track.

Miles' car plummeted end over end down a small embankment on the inside of the turn and ejected him before it burst into flames. Miles was killed instantly as the result of multiple injuries.

Secrecy shrouded the type of car being tested by Miles. Track spokesmen would say only that the answer would have to come from Carroll Shelby, owner of Shelby American, which designs racing cars.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals have recalled third baseman Ed Spiezio from their Tulsa farm club in the Pacific Coast League and also bought outfielder Ted Savage's contract from Tulsa.

School Player Football Fatality

EAST CHICAGO, Ind. (AP)— Benjamin Stur, a 17-year-old player, died Tuesday after suffering an injury while practising with the Bishop Noll high school football team.

Tuesday was only the second day of practice for high school football players in Indiana.

Juniors' Open Nearing Close

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian open junior tennis championships were to start into the home-stretch today by deciding finalists in most singles events and completing the bulk of doubles elimination play.

All Canadians were eliminated from the boys 18-and-under title race Wednesday when Robin Elliot, 17, of Vancouver, the reigning Canadian closed champion, and Stephane Vezina, 18, of Montreal, lost quarter-final matches.

But the girls 18-and-under title will stay in Canada, with four Canadians squaring off today for the two finals berths. The four are Janice Tindle, 16, Vancouver, Jane O'Hara, 14, Toronto, Nancy Green, 18, Toronto, and Susan Eager, 16, Vancouver.

Miss O'Hara upset Victoria's Theodora Booker, 6-3, 6-3, in fourth-round play Wednesday.

Miss Tindle, named Wednesday as Canada's most outstanding junior tennis player, scored an upset victory Wednesday by defeating Beverly Packard of Hewley, N.Y., the first-seeded foreign player in girls 18-and-under, 6-2, 6-0.

Elliot was eliminated 9-7, 6-4, by Carlos Deswarte, 17, Argentina's first-ranked junior player and fifth-seeded in the Canadian open. Vezina was defeated by Richard Stockton, 16, Garden City, N.Y., 8-6, 6-2.

The Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, responsible for the awards presentation Wednesday to Canadian closed champions, also resurrected a long-unused award for best sportsman of the closed tournament.

Geoff Dyer, 17, Fort Garry, Man., received the award from W. J. Reid of Toronto, a CLTA official who said Dyer had attended every closed tournament in Ottawa since the Manitoban was eight years old.

Greek Breaks the Ice In Tuna Tournament

YARMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — The Greek angling team took the lead in the international tuna cup match today when Marinos Costoletos boated a bluefin estimated at 500 pounds on Soldier's Rip off Wedgeport.

Less than an hour later, Louis DeVerteuil, captain of the Caribbean team, hooked a fish. The Greek tuna was hauled in after a 83-minute fight.

Today's first catch ended a two-day fish famine on the Wedgeport and Cape St. Mary's fishing grounds. It raised the anglers' hopes for a change in the luck that has dogged them up to Wednesday night.

The four-day 1966 international tuna cup match was half over Wednesday and for the fishermen from Canada, the Caribbean, Greece, Mexico and the United States, the score was dismal — no fish caught, two fish hooked and lost.

Several anglers said the bluefins appeared even more numerous Wednesday than on opening day. They played around the fishing fleet as if they dared the fishermen to come and get them.

Stamps Like, But Outburst Not Required

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders finally scored their first touchdown of the Western Football Conference season Wednesday. Developments showed they could have won without it.

Stampeders posted a 26-1 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders. Calgary had played 215 minutes and 36 seconds by the time flanker Terry Evanshen scampered into the end zone for the club's first touchdown of the season.

Calgary was held to 12 points, all on field goals by Larry Robinson, in three earlier defeats.

Evanshen later added another touchdown on a four-yard toss from quarterback Pete Liske. Jerry Keeling picked off a pass by Ron Lancaster for the other Calgary touchdown.

Robinson completed Calgary's scoring with three converts, a field goal and two singles. He had given Stamps a 4-1 lead before Evanshen broke the touchdown famine.

Calgary led 4-1 at halftime and 19-1 after three quarters. The first quarter was scoreless.

LISKE PLAYS WELL

Liske, obtained in the off-season from Toronto Argonauts, made his first start as a Stampeder quarterback a raging success. He completed half of 22 passes for 175 yards and directed a ground attack that totalled 102 yards.

Despite Liske's excellence, the victory was designed by defenders who intercepted four Lancaster aerials and held the potent Roughrider offence to 10 first downs. Lancaster netted 114 yards on eight completions in 17 attempts and the rushing game was held to 85 yards, more than half of it by Ed Buchanan.

The victory propelled Calgary into a tie with Edmonton Eskimos for fourth place in the five - team WFC. Saskatchewan, which had won its first three starts, retained sole possession of first place.

TURNING POINT?

A big play by Bill Gaskins started Calgary toward its first touchdown. He intercepted a pass in the end zone to give the Cowboys possession on their 10. Liske generated an attack that ended with his touchdown pass to Evanshen.

The nimble flanker stepped out of a tackle about the Saskatchewan 30 and romped into the end zone. A few plays later, Keeling intercepted Lancaster's pass and was unchallenged in a race to the goal line.

Liske's pass for Evanshen's second touchdown late in the final quarter was set up by linebacker Jerry Campbell. The 208-pound refugee from University of Idaho blocked a punt attempt by Jimmy McKean and recovered at the eight. Two plays later, Evanshen turned in front of Gene Wlasiuk to take Liske's perfect pass.

URGES CAUTION

General manager Rogers Lehew cautioned that the club has a long way to go.

Willie Ross, playing his first game in Canada, explained he had difficulty absorbing the system.

"I'd never played Canadian football before two days ago. But it was good to come up with a win. We could have been feeling bad if we had lost this one too."

Ross played part of the way as a replacement for Lovell Coleman at fullback, and did an exceptional job of blocking.

Coleman, halfback Ted Woods and punter-defensive end Jim Furlong were sidelined during Calgary's losses to Ottawa and Hamilton last weekend. Coleman and Woods are through for the season with injured achilles tendons and Furlong suffered a broken ankle.

Riders Down Larks

MONTREAL (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders came up with their biggest offensive output of the season Wednesday night as they downed Montreal Alouettes 15-3 in an Eastern Football Conference game here.

In two previous victories this season, the Riders had managed to score a total of 23 points —defeating Montreal 10-8 in the season opener Aug. 3 and beating Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference 13-6 a week later.

The Ottawa defence has allowed only one touchdown to be scored against it in three games. That touchdown came in the season opener against Montreal.

Wednesday's victory moved Ottawa into sole possession of first place in the EFC with a 3-0 record.

WATKINS SCORES

End Ted Watkins and fullback Jim Dillard scored the Ottawa touchdowns while tackle Moe Racine converted both major scores and added a single on a wide field goal attempt in the first frame.

Flanker Peter Kempf accounted for Montreal's three points with a field goal in the third quarter.

REPLACES FALONEY

George Bork replaced Bernie Faloney at quarterback for Montreal after Dillard's touchdown, marking his first appearance in 18 league games. Bork had been sitting it out as the team's extra import.

Bork guided the Als from their own 22-yard-line to the Ottawa nine-yard line on his first series of plays but the drive was halted and Montreal had to settle for Kempf's field goal.

Statistically, the Riders picked up 17 first downs to 13 for Montreal.

ANNUAL FISHING EVENT . . . . . . SCHEDULED FOR SUNDAY

Smile, You May Be on Derby Camera!

Like to see yourself on television?

All you have to do is catch a big one Sunday at Saanich Inlet.

There is one slight obstacle to overcome. That big one must be the heaviest salmon weighed in during the 21st annual Handicapped Children's Salmon Derby.

And there will be a little competition. Several hundred anglers are again expected to join the chase for prizes in Vancouver Island's biggest one-day fishing frolic.

But if you do happen to catch the derby winner, you should have a comfortable feeling when you settle down in front of the TV set because you will have received a $150 scrip for earning the first fishing prize.

However, there will be someone glowing with equal of even greater happiness. That will be the person who has received the derby's "consolation" prize of a 14½-foot boat, equipped with 35-horsepower outboard motor, trailer and water skis.

You don't have to go fishing in order to win the boat. Any person who purchases a $1 derby ticket is eligible to collect the fun-in-the-sun award.

Derby fishing will start Sunday at dawn and continue until 2 p.m. Prizes — about 30 of them, topped by script awards of $150, $100 and $50 — will be presented at the Anglers-Anchorage Marina about 3:15.

For those who can't make it out to Saanich Inlet, angling expert Bud Blackburn will broadcast hourly, on-the-spot reports of the derby's progress over CKDA, starting at 10 a.m. and finishing with the prize presentations.

Television cameras are also scheduled to appear on the scene, snapping pictures of the winners for showing on channels 6 and 8, probably Monday evening.

All proceeds from the derby, co-sponsored by the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association and The Daily Times — will again be divided between the Queen Alexandra Solarium, the Cerebral Palsy Association and the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded.

Since the event was started in 1946 as the Solarium Derby, it has raised about $90,000 for handicapped children and each ticket purchased for this event means another boost for the youngsters.

There is still ample time to make derby plans and obtain an entry ticket.

After all, you may be a big winner. It's not everybody who wins a boat or a fishing derby and then smiles for the TV cameras.

Admirable Bid For Admiring

The previous high for an individual horse was $235,000, a figure shared jointly by the brood mare Berlo, sold in February, and Solario, the great English stallion sold in England some decades ago.

Admiring, a brown daughter of Hail-to-Reason, out of Searching by War Admiral, is a stakes winner of seven major events, with winnings of $183,224.

She was purchased by Charles Engelhard, owner of the Cragwood Stable, with racing interests in England, South Africa and the United States, and Paul Mellon of Upperville, Va., a breeder and campaigner of the Rokeby stable.

Copper King Lost to Claim

VANCOUVER (CP) — Owner Fred Dyson's seventh-race combined entry of Combthrift and Copper King romped home first and second in the featured race before 5,808 fans at Exhibition Park Wednesday.

Combthrift, the winner with Jockey Bazil Frazier up, and Copper King each paid $6.10, $7 and $3.80. Copper King was claimed for $3,200 by Bob Dale after the race.

PALMER WINS

Moore Upset In Ladies' Play

HALIFAX (CP)—The field was cut to 16 heading into the second round of match play in the Canadian women's open golf championship today, but two standouts from Ontario and New Brunswick were expected to steal the spotlight.

Marlene Stewart Streit, 32, Fonthill, Ont., with a string of honors in Canadian and international competition, was to tee off against Mary Ellen Driscoll of Saint John, who placed second in last year's open.

Mrs. Streit, runner-up in the United States women's amateur open last week, scored an easy 4 and 3 victory over Susan Thompson of Winnipeg in Wednesday's opening round. Miss Driscoll defeated Mrs. Robert Lyle of Montreal 1 up.

Jocelyne Bourassa, 19, of Trois-Rivieres, Que., was to put the national open crown she won at Kitchener, Ont., last year on the line in a meeting with Kay Cartwright of Kingson, Ont., in the first of today's two rounds.

ELIMINATES MISS POST

Vicki Larsen, 21, of St. Davids, Ont., who scored the major upset of the opening round, was to be first off the tee in the championship flight against Cathy Galusha of Ponoka, Alta.

Miss Larsen came from behind to defeat favored Gail Harvey Moore of Scarborough, Ont., 1 up Wednesday and knock the 1965 Canadian close champion out of competition.

Marilyn Palmer of Kamloops, B.C., winner of this year's national close title at the neighboring Dartmouth last year, was to tee off against Helene Gagnon or Arvida, Que., this morning.

Only four players will survive today to enter the championship semi-finals Friday, with the two victors in that day's round meeting in the 36-hole finals Saturday.

Duncan Sparkles In Senior Ranks

By TONY COSIER

Pete Duncan, a 17-year-old Connie Mack standout, stepped into a Rawlings uniform for the first time Wednesday night at Hampton Park and didn't waste any time in proving he belongs in the Senior Amateur Baseball League.

Duncan effectively scattered eight hits and struck out eight batters while downing league champion Greaves 3-2 to give Rawlings a one-game edge in their best-of-five semifinal playoff series.

Duncan, who walked only one batter in the eighth-inning contest, was locked in a 2-2 duel with Greaves' starter Jerry Lister before Rawlings broke the tie in the eighth.

Pinch-hitter Pete Songhurst opened the top of the eighth for Rawlings with an infield hit. He advanced to second on a single by level-swinging John Martin. Barry Cosier then lofted a clutch double into short right field to score Songhurst with the winning run.

But Greaves weren't quite through.

Duncan walked Dave Rivers to open the bottom of the final frame. Rivers moved into scoring position on an infield out but the calm Duncan failed to rattle when the chips were down. The poised righthander, throwing quickly from a smooth delivery, fanned tough Bob Lumley and then retired Vic Skinner on a game-ending pop-up to first sacker George Brice.

Brice's game-ending catch was a fine play. He made the catch while running with his back to the infield.

Pete Duncan and Jay Rawlings; Jerry Lister and Bob Lumley.

Next games: Saturday—Rawlings vs. Greaves, 6:15 p.m. at Hampton Park; Transports vs. Courtenay, 1:30 and 3 p.m., at Courtenay.

Course Record Topples

CALGARY (CP) — Three men ripped apart the Willow Park course Wednesday to set a competitive course record in preparations for the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship which opens today.

Lyle Crawford of Vancouver, Bob Panasiuk of Tecumseh, Ont., and Bud Edwards of Vancouver each fired a five-under-par 66 to win special events. Panasiuk and Crawford were low pros in a pro-amateur preliminary and Edwards topped all rivals in a special tournament for players not entered in the pro-am.

A field of 152 is entered in the 54-hole competition, largest for any CPGA championship held in Western Canada.

Before Wednesday's performances, none of the record-setters were afforded much chance to match favorites George Knudson of Winnipeg, Moe Norman of Toronto and defending champion Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg.

Despite predictions that several low scores would be posted, census of entrants was that 205, eight under par for the distance, should be enough to win.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, who has won the CPGA eight times, received several sentimental nominations for victory this year. He said he has sharpened his game lately after a troublesome slump.

In the pro-am and special competitions Wednesday, Ron MacLeod of Jasper, Alta., Thel Scheifele of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Andre Gagnier of Terrebonne, Que., and Al Kennedy of Richmond, B.C. beat par, as did Knudson and Frank Fowler of Calgary. MacLeod, a native of Victoria, fired a one-under-70.

'Full Speed Ahead' For Football Club

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Victoria Steelers' entry in the Pacific Football League has been consolidated, and now it's "full speed ahead" in preparation for a season's opening game less than four weeks away.

Consolidation was strongly emphasized Wednesday at a press conference called to announce the signing of Pete Ohler as one of the team's coaches.

Ohler, backup quarterback with B.C. Lions until his retirement from the Western Football Conference after the 1964 season, joins a coaching staff that also includes Paul (Daddy) Rowe, former Calgary Stampeder great and a native of Victoria.

John Keresman, another experienced footballer, also will aid in coaching as well as serve as team manager.

Overshadowing Ohler's appearance at the Dominion Hotel meeting Wednesday was the straight-from-the-shoulder announcement that the team will definitely operate.

"Prior to this week," said Bert Nelson, one of several Victorians who worked behind the scenes in the formation of the Steelers, "even I had some doubts about this getting off the ground.

"We purposely stayed away from publicity media until we were certain that Victoria's entry was consolidated."

Serious Training Starts Sunday

The Victoria Steelers Football Club has been set up as a non-profit organization and registered under the societies act.

Victoria thus starts in a six-team league that also includes Seattle, Portland, Tacoma, Edmonds and Eugene.

Steelers' first game will be played Sept. 10 at Eugene. The first home game at Macdonald Park will be Sept. 17 against Seattle Ramblers. Other home dates are: Oct. 15, Eugene; Oct. 22, Portland; Nov. 5, Edmonds, and Nov. 12, Tacoma.

Steelers have the strings on approximately 18 players, said Nelson, but the coaches are "very anxious" to have a look at "all the local talent."

Two of the newest players ticketed for berths on the club arrived at the same time as Ohler. They are guard Lutz Keller and flanker Barry Taylor, both released by Calgary Stampeders earlier this week.

Taylor is a brother of Bobby Taylor, the flanker-back with Toronto Argonauts and a former Victoria Maple Leaf hockey player.

Nelson said a complete dossier on other players will be released in a few days.

Ohler was enthusiastic about his new coaching position.

"I can't tell you how the people of Victoria are going to take to this league," he said, "but I do know that Western Conference clubs are most interested. The fact that Calgary directed some of their cuts out here supports me in this respect.

"This league will fill that gap between junior and professional football. It's long overdue."

Adding stature to the league is the fact that it is affiliated with the American Football League.

Teams, incidentally, will play American rules.

Ohler, 26, "doubts very much" if he will play.

ENTERED IN NATIONAL CONTEST

Three Winners Hunt Higher Award

A dog, cat, sparrow, three children and an old man — these were the sum total of snapshot subjects which won the three grand prizes in the Times Photo Contest.

These, and a discerning eye and a click of the camera shutter at the right moment, earned the top honor for three amateur photographers in the 1966 contest.

* * *

Gerald Bowden of Lake Oswego, Ore., snapped his two young sons as they watched a sparrow feeding, then sent the photo to his father, in Victoria. It won first prize in The World in Which We Live.

The quickly-caught scenes have won each photographer $35 so far — $10 in the weekly contest, and $25 for grand prize.

And the photos may yet win them one of the fabulous prizes in the National Newspaper Snapshot Contest — an around-the-world trip for two with all expenses paid, trips to Hawaii, Mexico or the West Indies, or other prizes among the $50,000 in cash and travel awards.

Keep clicking that shutter — the prize might come your way in next year's contest.

EX-MINESWEEPER HUNTS FOR OIL

The former Esquimalt-based naval minesweeper Fortune started out on a different sort of search this week—for oil.

Now owned by Pan-American Petroleum Corporation of Calgary, the 890-ton minesweeper has been reconstructed in Vancouver for her new role.

Her first assignment in the oil-search field will be in the northerly Queen Charlotte Islands.

Built by Victoria Machinery Depot and commissioned into the navy in 1954, she and a sister ship, James Bay, were sold to the same company earlier this year.

HOME GARDEN

Shade of High Tree Best for Fuchsias

By HILDA BEASTALL

Hilda

Some of this is due to hanging the baskets in a place where the sun and wind spoil the leaves. We often see fuchsia leaves curl and become crisp.

Seldom does this happen in a commercial fuchsia garden. You may have noticed that the hanging baskets in best condition are those in dappled light and shade of high trees, or in a lath or shade house in a nursery.

Fuchsias are among the thirstiest of plants, and their health depends on a constant supply of moisture at the roots while the plants are growing and flowering.

A hanging basket containing a fuchsia can still be reconditioned by cutting off all dried or damaged portions and soaking the baskets in a tub of water containing a little balanced fertilizer.

Hang or stand the basket in a partially shaded spot out of constant wind, and spray with water on hot days to provide humidity.

This business of humidity in the atmosphere is something we know comparatively little about, but it is one of the chief factors in success with plants.

Many of the fuchsias we grow are native to the mountainous forest areas of South America, where humidity is high, night temperatures are cool, and high day temperatures are tempered by the shade of the forest trees.

This is possibly why we find them thriving near large bodies of water although the temperatures there will be several degrees lower than in drier spots inland.

Office Ransacked While Doctor Out of Town

A city doctor's office was broken into and ransacked, city police reported Wednesday.

Entry to the office of Dr. G. Scott Wallace, who is out of town, was made through a window sometime Tuesday morning. No money is missing, although it is not known if drug supplies were taken.

Man Fined $100 For Doing Favor

A garage employee "just doing someone a favor" was fined $100 in central court Wednesday for driving while his licence was suspended.

Wilfred Hollinger, 740 Kings, who pleaded guilty, told court he had driven a woman's car earlier this morning in the line of duty.

Her car, he said, had broken down.

Water Gun Reported

Have gun, will travel.

Because a tank is heavy. It weighs 59,000 lbs.

A tank has a rugged chassis. And heavy, thick body panels.

A tank's suspension is designed so that it won't break if you happen to run over a pothole.

And a tank simply won't let you enter drag races, because it isn't designed to be a drag racer.

If you get into a collision driving a tank, chances are, it wouldn't be you who came off worst.

But, even though you can't use a tank on the highway, wouldn't it be great if you could get some of the safety features of a tank into a car?

They made the Toyota Crown heavy. It weighs 2,900 lbs.

They built it on a rugged chassis. Bolted to a unitized body made with steel 50% heavier than in most North American cars.

They put it on a suspension that's heavier and stronger than the suspensions on most half-ton pick-ups.

They gave it an incredibly strong, incredibly dependable 4-cylinder motor that will only do 85 mph. And only cruise reliably at 80 mph.

But because Toyota are car makers and not tank makers, they didn't just stop at putting a lot of tank safety features in Toyota Crown.

They added ideas that you couldn't buy in a tank if you wanted.

A luxurious, quiet, ride. (Track and Traffic magazine commented: "One of the outstanding features of the Toyota Crown is its ride. It is one of the most comfortable riding cars we have ever tested").

And economy. The Toyota Crown gets over 28 miles to the gallon in city driving. It seldom needs oil between changes. And because it's incredibly strong, repairs are incredibly cheap.

However, if you must buy something safer than a Toyota Crown, write your nearest tank-dealer. And don't be surprised when he tells you that the price is around $125,000.

But if you'd like a great automobile with all the safety and all the luxury of the Toyota Crown, see your nearest CMI Dealer listed below.

And don't be surprised when the son of a gun tells you the price is just $2,598.*

SINGING WORKSHOP

Voice Teachers Enjoy Session

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Enthusiasm is white hot among Victoria singers attending the National Association Teachers of Singing workshop this week at the Empress Hoteel.

Several who have been eager subjects of teaching demonstrations by guest lecturers Gwendolyn Koldofsky, Hubert Kockritz and Ruth Miller Chamlee, are talking about the possibility of future master classes by these experts.

Mrs. Koldofsky's stay was limited to two days due to pressure of commitments in California, but the general feeling was that she packed the worth of a full week into her two sessions on the art of accompaniment.

Mrs. Koldofsky was given a standing ovation by the whole workshop as her sessions concluded.

The humanity and the humor of Mr. Kockritz turn his teaching demonstrations into delightful experiences for everyone.

At the same time his perfect knowledge allows him to place an unerring but kinkly finger on every fault of technique and style in his "guinea-pigs," who are avid for further opportunities to work with a voice expert who combines all the finest teaching attributes.

More sessions with Mr. Kockritz were held today and are scheduled for the final day, Friday.

HISTORY OF SONG

A comprehensive knowledge of the whole history of the singer's art with special reference to the field of opera have charged the lectures and teaching demonstrations of Ruth and Mario Chamlee with vivid interest.

Others whose presence has intensified and broadened the workshop field have been Henry Holt on opera, Edison Harris, 20th century repertoire and performance practices, and Harold Ramsay, choral work.

Question and answer periods moderated by workshop director Stanley Hoban have been lively and stimulation.

Wednesday night a group of students of some of the visiting teachers of the Cascade and Montana Chapters of NATS, presented a recital in the Georgian Lounge.

The lovely lyric soprano, excellent production, dramatic ability and personal charm of 20-year-old Eugenia Scarpelli of Marylhurst College, Oregon, indicate the possibility of a fine professional career.

Five other audition finalists appearing on the program, all with an impressive potential in voice quality, were tenors Charles Dean and Doug Dunnell, mezzo soprano Gloria Genivea Phillip, lyric soprano Pamela Patrick and bass-baritone Thomas Sherwood.

Tonight our-of-town NATS registrants will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ian Ross at Butchart Gardens.

Odd Sounds In Concert

a Highland piper,
and such conventional instruments as a piano, a violin, a bass fiddle and a set of drums.

A magic act, a song about Victoria's mountain view, and an exhibition of Highland dancing are also in store for spectators at another in the series of Sunday summer concerts presented by the city of Victoria.

Starting time for the festivities is 2:30 p.m.

Measles Vaccine

MONTREAL (CP)—The Institute of Microbiology and Hygiene of the University of Montreal Tuesday announced the development of a vaccine which it said could prevent 85 per cent of all cases of measles in newborn babies in Quebec province.

Dr. Aramdi Frappier, director the the institute, said a number of provincial health departments across Canada have expressed interest in the vaccine. It combines "killed" measles vaccine with the DPT vaccine now administered to infants to combat diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough.

Arthur Mayse

Out Colwood way, we have a recent arrival by the name of G. K. Martini ("like the drink, but without the olive," says he) who is trying hard to be a good Canadian.

When he observed a traffic crackup from the window of the apartment where he was visiting, he decided a witness might be needed and went to offer his services.

I could see myself in a car accident and needing a witness," Mr. Martini explained. "Besides, it seemed the right thing to do."

In due time, he continues, the RCMP notified him that a summons had been received.

"I offered to pick it up at their office, but the Mounty said, "Oh no, I have to deliver it at your door. It is very important'." So the summons was delivered, and on the day appointed, Mr. Martini took himself off to magistrates' court.

There, he claims, he was not only told that no such case was listed, but laughed at by a policeman.

"Later," he concludes, "they hunted around and discovered the case had already been disposed of. In common decency, they should have let me know. It is hard enough to get witnesses — and then to treat one like that!"

Most certainly, someone should have let him know. As for the laughter, though, Mr. Martini should be advised that the Canadian laugh is a ploy frequently used to cover embarrassment and confusion, or to gain time for thinking.

It is, so to speak, the olive in our national martini.

Into this quiet corner have bounced beefs of a sort which warrant speedy and thorough federal investigation.

There, while Canadian sport fishermen troll for springs and coho in accord with federal catch regulations and with the single-lure outfits required by our laws, a few American boaters are alleged to be having themselves a lawless jamboree.

"They whin over in fast boats," one disgusted witness told me. "Most of them come from Bellingham.

"On the grounds, they fish without regard for bag and size limits (four salmon per person per day, and no grilse under 12 inches) and with any number of lures or baits they can hang on a line."

Another informant asserts that while department officers can ask the outlaws to go ashore, they are not permitted to make arrests.

A call to Pacific area headquarters in Vancouver confirmed that while alien fishermen in Canadian waters must obey our laws, suspected offenders afloat can be detained only on justice department authority from Ottawa.

In the East Point foulup, we can only hope that fisheries patrols get a prompt go-ahead. This sort of cheating should be checked!

There are bounds to what a fellow can do in his back yard — unless, of course, it is occupied by a smoke-dispensing sawmill — but it does seem to me that Oak Bay Municipality has dealt roughly with boat-builder Harry Runer.

Mr. Runer, whose 32-footer is several months from completion, has been ordered to dismantle the shed that shelters his craft.

Far from dropping the boom, it seems to me that Oak Bay should lean over backward to oblige any citizen with enough skill and gumption to undertake such a glamorous and exacting task.

That is that his activities have interfered with neighborhood television reception. Personally, I think we could stand a lot more interference with the squawk-box, especially during these summer doldrums when most TV fare is gosh-awful.

That's it: and off now to Montreal for a preview of Expo 67. Be back, I hope, next Tuesday.

IT WASN'T there three days ago says 15-year-old Clarissa "Kis" Baxter of 2918 Lansdowne who found 13-inch across-the-crown mushroom in front garden. Specimen of highly edible agaricus augustus, is, says Provincial Museum fungi expert Adam Szczawinski, of near-record size. Baxter family has found others around house, including 12 incher last September. They also have puffballs in back yard, "but" says Kis, who likes nothing better than good mushroom breakfast, "they're poison." (Times Photo).

HIGH DRAMA?

That's Why They Call It Stage-Coach

By GLEN ALLEN

Galoop galoop went the mid-morning raider.

A daring young highwaywoman on a high horse named Charlemagne swooped down on B.C. Centennial Committee chairman Lawrie Wallace's office this morning, dropped a note on his desk, and galooped off into the wilds of James Bay.

A highly distraught Mr. Wallace held up a ransom note for the eyes of reporters minutes after the brazen daylight raid.

It told Mr. Wallace, in script cut out from magazines and newspapers, that his Bakerville to Victoria coach had this morning been hijacked in Burnaby.

"The Centennial stagecoach and its personnel are being held incommunicado," it said, further demanding a gold nugget for the coach's return.

REEVE JAILED

Man of action Wallace called the trusty RCMP and had Reeve Allan "Mark of Zorro" Emmott of Burnaby, whose Sons of Burnaby are known to have committed the foul deed, arrested and jailed.

And jail, says Mr. Wallace, is where Emmott will stay until the coach turns up.

"I'd love to see that man dangle," said Mr. Wallace.

A bit calmer later on in the morning Mr. Wallace had hopes for the coach's return and the continuation of it's 540 mile run, expected to end here Sept. 3.

CHURCH UNITY SOUGHT

Some Changes Needed, Island Catholics Tell Bishop

By DESMOND BILL

Catholics on Vancouver Island are fed up with fund-raising, bored by many sermons they hear, greatly concerned about birth control, and worried about the state of Catholic schools.

But they are enthusiastic about recent liturgical changes, delighted that their church is "on the move at last," and anxious to be better informed about developments.

A sizable number are mildly disturbed by some trends in the Catholic Church but most of them highly approve other developments, particularly the ecumenical movement and the search for unity among Christians.

The questionnaire was devised by Bishop Remi J. De Roo to "help us see where we stand."

He thought it was time to ask his people "What do you think?" of everything that is going on in the Church. He explained, "This survey will enable us to approach our problems from life, not from theory."

Bishop De Roo is now studying the answers, along with a group of clergy and lay people, at a conference this week in Duncan.

No one was required to sign the questionnaires but 497 of the 662 put down their names. They have been invited to public meetings Thursday and Friday night in Duncan at which they will be able to state their views more fully.

"The conference will likely result in study and action groups to deal with problems.

More than 6,000 questionnaires were distributed but only about 10 per cent were returned. Those who took the trouble to answer appear to be the more active Catholics: 286 of the 662 are members of church organizations.

About one third of the answers came from persons with a college education and 59 of them had done post-graduate study. The educational level of those answering is obviously higher than the average in the diocese.

●

While the answers came from a group that does not form a statistically accurate cross-section of the diocese, it is generally accepted that the survey does reflect the thinking and concerns of the majority.

The survey showed that one of the most unsettling aspects of Catholic life centres on the birth control issue. A majority expressed disappointment that this issue has not yet been settled.

It is under study by an advisory commission set up by Pope Paul which is considering whether advances in medical science and theology permit any development of the traditional thinking about artificial contraception.

Bishop De Roo said he has long known that birth control is a serious issue among Catholics "but this response shows the need to tackle it before we can come to grips with other problems of married life. It is a critical issue but it is also one of the most complex."

Some of the replies were inconsistent. Many admitted they are both pleased by some developments and bothered by others. For example, most approve the use of English in the Mass but some object to the priest facing the people during Mass. Until fairly recently he faced the altar.

The replies showed that the more progressive Catholics, those with a commitment to Church renewal — are the most critical of the clergy. Many suggested that priests do not seem to be as committed to the idea of renewal as some lay people.

Certainly, the laity want changes. Two-thirds of the answers came from people who agreed "it's time things changed."

Bishop De Roo said this is "an indication we have sat around too long. It gives a positive picture of forward looking people."

The overwhelming majority, 517, said they liked the liturgical changes which, among other things, involve the use of English instead of Latin in most of the Mass.

●

The survey showed that the Second Vatican Council had one big effect on 392 persons: it brought them closer to the Protestants. And 582 of those polled said they approve this.

One question asked was: Are Catholic schools doing a good job? A total of 334 answered "yes" but practically all of them qualified their approval.

Many referred to the financial difficulty in operating Catholic schools and said they do not have enough money to provide a really excellent education. Some questioned the wisdom of imposing a financial strain to educate only a limited number of the Catholic school population. Others wondered if separate schools are a good idea, even if Catholics can afford them.

●

The survey showed resentment of the time and energy spent on fund-raising, particularly by such activities as bingo. Everyone seems to be fed up with fund-raising but no one had any suggestions for alternative sources of income.

Many said they would like to be able to go to their priests to talk over problems but the priests are too busy to see them.

Several of the comments suggested more sermons to explain recent developments in Catholic thinking.

Several persons stated, the sermons need to be preached "by good preachers."

Death Reaches For Fisherman Asleep at Helm

Collision Averted When Engine Stalls

By TERRY IZZARD

Ten minutes meant the difference between life and death for fisherman Dick Ericson today, when he fell asleep at the helm.

With only 100 yards to go, the gillnetter Cynthia sank low in the water and stopped.

DAWN DRAMA

The timely end to what had been a two hour drama, came shortly before dawn.

It began at 2:20 when Chris Rhode, at the wheel of a Victoria pilotage boat, spotted the Cynthia circling about one-and-a-half miles off the Breakwater.

Keeping a parallel course with the fast-moving gillnetter, he tried whistles and a loud hailer to waken the sleeping skipper.

But his efforts were in vain.

'IT WAS HOPELESS'

"It was hopeless," he said today. "The boat was going too fast for us to even keep up with."

Carried by the strong current, the 35-foot fishboat edged closer and closer into shore.

With each turn, water poured over the stern and into the open hatch.

Ironically, it was the very water which threatened to swamp the boat, taking the sleeping skipper with it, that saved his life.

At the very moment when a collision seemed inevitable, the sea water got to the motors and stalled them.

Said Capt. Irving: "Another two turns and he'd have hit the breakwater. He's a lucky man."

"I didn't know what was happening," he said as he surveyed the damage later.

"The shore was only a hundred yards away and there were two other boats close by. I got the biggest shock of my life."

The New Westminster skipper looked sadly at water pouring out of the $10,500 vessel as it stood on the ways at McKay Cormack shipyard today and said:

"I was going to pay my last installment on it this weekend. Then it would have been mine."

A fisherman for the past 22 years, he is no newcomer when it comes to sinking boats.

Only last summer he sank his last vessel the Pat Lynn, when he ran aground.

And several years ago he sank the Pat Lynn I under similar circumstances.

However, he's not going to be discouraged and will set off again as soon as his boat is repaired.

Of his falling asleep, he said: "I hadn't slept for two days and I guess I just dropped off."

Sub-Trades Resume Work At University

Victoria carpenters today agreed to let sub-trades resume work on University of Victoria social sciences complex.

It will be available when classes resume next month.

But the two-week carpenter-contractor lockout dispute means continuing on a split campus basis for several weeks into the winter term.

Carpenter and university spokesmen met this morning to reach an agreement to avoid a critical classroom pinch when the university vacates its Lansdowne campus.

Work on the Gordon Head building program will proceed wherever possible without carpenters.

MEETING TODAY

Carpenters were scheduled to hold a similar meeting this afternoon with Greater Victoria school district representatives so that work could resume on nearly-finished public school additions in time for the new term.

Major contractors including Burns and Dutton Ltd. at Uvic have locked out carpenters in their dispute over a new contract.

When carpenters put up picket lines in protest, other organized trades were unable to carry on and projects came to a halt.

Union president John Schibli said pickets were removed on condition that no carpenters would be employed on the university projects until a contract settlement is reached, and that the union would have access to the site to ensure that no carpenters are working.

"What carpenter work remains to be done won't affect use of the building," he said.

Work on the unpicketted arts-education complex continues but occupancy will not be possible by term opening.

3,000 STUDENTS

Greater Victoria school district is committed to occupy the Lansdowne campus buildings known as the Paul and Ewing buildings as the university moves out.

"The university is delighted with the spirit of co-operation shown by the carpenters and joiners' local 1598 of the United Brotherhood in removing their pickets from the social sciences building," Uvic president Dr. Malcolm Taylor said.

"Although our second building will not be completed by the start of term we will be able to take other emergency measures to accommodate our classes and make it possible for the school board to move into Ewing and Paul buildings on schedule," he said.

UVIC SUMMER SESSION ENDING WITH TWO DAYS EXAMINATIONS

Nearly 1,000 University of Victoria summer students are facing the days of reckoning today and Friday.

A two-day exam session winds up the university's seven-week summer session. Students are writing exams in the Clearihue Building and the gymnasium on the Gordon Head campus, and in the Young Building on the old Lansdowne campus.

Academic activity resumes September 19 when fall term lectures begin.

Girl Guides Become Girl Guards

They were among 52 girls in the province to receive four days of specialized conservation instruction at the camp and take part in special tests and manoeuvres.

Camp activities included tree identification, map and compass work, nature trail activities, weather forecasting and fire prevention.

The girls also practiced rifle safety and target shooting as well as taking part in canoeing, hiking and swimming.

CRANBROOK SITE?

Uvic Expanding To Kootenays Taylor Hints

One year from now the University of Victoria may have a campus in the East Kootenay, it was learned today.

The matter is still in the preliminary planning stage and no definite decision is expected until the University Senate meets next month.

At that time plans will likely be presented to the Senate calling for an affiliated first-year campus in Cranbrook, B.C., with facilities for teaching 70 East Kootenay students freshman English, history, mathematics, chemistry, physics, biology and French.

Slated opening date would be September 1967.

The probable site of the campus is an abandoned armories building in Cranbrook, already equipped with small lecture rooms, and a common room. Mt. Baker secondary school would be tapped for laboratories and some scientific equipment.

NEGOTIATIONS

Negotiations have been proceeding for several months between Cranbrook school board officials and a Uvic delegation headed by university president Dr. Malcom Taylor and including Dean Alex Wood and Registrar Ron Jeffels.

A Cranbrook board spokesman today said "the University of Victoria is most enthusiastic. We hope to start in September of next year."

Dr. Taylor was somewhat more cautious. "The matter is under serious consideration," he said. "We are favourably disposed toward any advances in higher education in the interior of the province.

"We are receptive to the general idea," he added.

Escaped Youth Sought in City

He is described as being about five-foot seven-inches tall, wearing a khaki shirt, blue denim trousers and running shoes.

Ask The Times

Q. Has the United States Medicare program come into effect? How, briefly, does it work? S. H.

A. The federally-organized medicare program for people 65 years and over began July 1 last. On that date every American of that age automatically became eligible for up to 90 days' hospitalization and 10 days care in a nursing home with a major share of the cost borne by the social security system. About 17 million older citizens—those who had agreed to pay an extra $3 per month—would have a secondary benefit: government aid on doctor bills. Of the 7,300 eligible institutions in the United States, some 6,700 are co-operating with the program.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Hip Waders Become Floaters In Fisherman Life-Saving Test

By TERRY IZZARD

Among the styles displayed were hip-length waders, Indian sweater, heavy-duty parkas and fishing caps.

Led by director Dr. James Hatter, department officials splashed into the pool fully rigged for a day's fishing.

Complete with tackle bag, 45-year-old Dr. Hatter swam four breadths of the pool and then announced: "It's not as bad as I thought."

A casual onlooker would have thought he was the Mad Hatter rather than an expert conservationist.

But in fact he was experimenting in saving lives.

The full-dress swim was designed to test the problems of fishermen who accidentally fall in the water.

Prompted by several drownings over the past few years, it proved one thing: that panic is probably one of the major causes of death.

Although conditions were ideal for today's tests, every swimmer was able to manage several breadths of the swim pool.

The hip-length waders, which were thought to be responsible for dragging people under, actually served as a float.

Said Dr. Hatter: "With a belt round the waist, the waders remained full of air and helped keep me afloat.

"So did the sweater until it became waterlogged."

"Once the clothes became soaked with water," he said, "it was virtually impossible to drag my arms out of the water.

However, all the swimmers admitted the problems would be greatly accentuated in a cold, swift-flowing stream.

On hand to witness the experiment — first of its kind — was deputy recreation and conservation minister, Dr. David Turner.

Department officials will hammer out the findings of their swim and make suggestions on ways of improving chances of survival.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Madland of North Surrey announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Sharon Grace, to Mr. Donald Albert Jellison of Vernon. The wedding will take place on Saturday, August 27, at 8 p.m. in the Westminster Gospel Chapel at New Westminster. Mr. D. Wallace will officiate. (Chevrons Studio.)

Harknett-Massick Service

White lace and taffeta formed the floor-length gown worn by Carroll Jeannette Massick when she became the bride of Carl Anthony Harknett in St. Aidan's Church. The full hooped skirt was caught at the front with a self-fabric bow and three smaller bows held the detachable train at the back. The bodice featured a sweetheart neckline and lily point sleeves. Her veil of illusion net misted from a coronet of pearls and she carried a bouquet of pink Rapture roses and stephanotis.

The church was decorated with baskets of pink and white gladioli and Esther Reed daisies when Rev. A. G. MacLeod heard marriage vows exchanged between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Massick 4758 Spring Road, and the son of Mrs. F. Harknett, 814 Mann Avenue, and the late Mr. Harknett. Mr. Massick gave his daughter in marriage.

White lace trimmed the empire waistlines of the turquoise peau de soie gowns worn by the bride's attendants. They were maid of honor Miss Yvonne Day, bridesmaids, the Misses Louise Massick and Christine Harknett, and flower girl Tanya Nobbs, the bride's niece. Self-fabric bows, trimmed with veils, were in their hair and their jewelry was the bride's gift of black Alaska diamond pendants.

John Gray was best man and the groom's brothers, Bob and Rick Harknett, were ushers.

The pink and white color theme was carried out in the decorations on the head table at the reception following in the White Eagle Hall. The three-tier wedding cake which centred the table was made by the bride's mother and decorated by Mrs. Roger. A. F. Nobbs proposed the toast to his sister-in-law.

The couple is now making their home at 831 Selkirk Avenue following a honeymoon trip to the provincial interior and Banff. For travelling, the new Mrs. Harknett chose a three-piece suit of pink lightweight wool, accented with a pink hat, white accessories and a gardenia corsage.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Divorce Won't Solve Problem

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What do you do about a husband who can't keep his big mouth shut? Every time we have company he talks, talks, talks! Nothing is too personal for him to talk about, and he's never heard a secret. When our guests leave, they know how much we owe, which relatives we don't get along with, and how much we paid for everything in the house.

No one tells us THEIR business, and of course we are seldom invited anywhere. My big-mouthed husband refuses to believe it's because he can't keep anything to himself. How can I wake him up short of dragging him through the divorce court?

DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: And if you dragged him through the divorce court, what would you have accomplished? Dumping a man with all those lovely qualities you saw in him before you married him, who finally learned how to keep his mouth shut. But he wouldn't be yours any more. Try to educate the blabbermouth.

DEAR ABBY: I have a girl friend who is in trouble. Just about everyone in the neighborhood knows about her. Well, I feel I shouldn't desert her now as we have been friends for a long time and I really like her.

My problem is people say I am getting a bad reputation from being her friend because she is bad. Should I stick with this girl, although everyone says, "Birds of a feather fly together"?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: "Birds of a feather may or may not always fly together," but I am reminded of another saying: "One swallow doesn't make a summer," And one mistake does not make a girl "bad." If she is your friend, she is your friend. Stick with her.

DEAR ABBY: My father passed away last year and this friend of my mother's has been coming here a lot lately trying to make friends with me. I just can't accept him because I have an idea that he and my mother were more than just friends before my father died. I can't talk to my mother about it, but I just can't like this man either.

I go to Sunday school and know right from wrong, and I don't think I will ever be able to forgive my mother and this man for what they have done and are doing. Can you give me some advice? I am 14.

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: The Bible says, "Judge not, lest ye be judged." You could be mistaken.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WINTER WEDDING IN SALT LAKE CITY: I think every girl should marry for love. If she loves money, my advice goes double because the girl who loves money and marries without it is sure to make both herself and her husband miserable.

Never Clean or Press— It Ruins This Dress!

By Penny Saver

Pinch me—I'm in a dream!. The housewives' prayers have been answered! Float on up to cloud nine, and join the rest of us who have discovered how to shirk work. Enjoy your summer, and your vacation, with no washing . . . no ironing . . . no clothes lines . . . no hemline alterations to keep you glued to your sewing machine when you can be out having fun. A whole wardrobe can be created for your teen-age daughter in just a few minutes—mini skirts with halters, micro dresses, shifts. These swinging fashions need never be washed or ironed. The fact is—they can't be!

This is the new "love 'em and leave 'em" trend in fashion —wear them, then throw them away. (No, Penny has not just inherited $1,000,000. She has invested . . . $1.25!) Nor has she been madly cutting paper dolls—she's been dolling up in paper dresses!

These dresses are the greatest news in print—two prints, a red and yellow paisley, and a black and white geometric design that is "opsolutely opple"—it's op art! The style is shifty —a sleeveless A-line shift is the starting point.

These paper dresses are bound to "catch fire" in your neighborhood at $1.25 each. Actually, they are fire-resistant, made of triple-ply paper reinforced with rayon. They have thread seams at the neck, around the arms and on the giant side pockets.

These firm tissue dresses are made by a tissue firm. Order forms for these way-out dresses are in stores now, where you buy the tissue. Simply fill out the form indicating your choice of print and size, along with two front panels from any of the tissue products. There are four sizes—petite, which includes sizes three to six; small, from sizes seven to 10; medium, sizes 11 to 14, and large, sizes 15 to 18. Order now for this boost to your summer wardrobe.

There's a lot of fun in store for you if you give Penny a call at 382-3131. She'll tell you which store carries these order blanks.

Hockey 'Great' Weds Here

Some of the most outstanding figures in Canada's sporting world were in Victoria last weekend to attend the wedding of Deborah Suzanne, daughter of Lt-Cmdr. Frank Hindle, RCN (Rtd.) and Mrs. Hindle, 3710 Quadra Street, to Terrence Matthews O'Malley, son of Mrs. Andrew O' Malley, Toronto, and the late Mr. O'Malley.

The groom is the well-known captain of Canada's national amateur hockey team.

Fr. David Bauer, the team's founder and former coach, came from Toronto to perform the ceremony in Sacred Heart Church. Two of the groom's teammates, Barry McKenzie and Kenneth Broderick, travelled from Winnipeg to be ushers.

The church was decorated with white gladioli and chrysanthemums for the noon-hour service. Organist was Don Neilson.

Entering the church on her father's arm, the bride was lovely in a full-length gown of white organza over satin, fashioned on simple lines. A Spanish tortoise-shell comb held her mantilla of delicate lace. Pale pink roses formed the cascade bouquet.

Lt.-Cmdr. Ron Hayes, RCN, proposed the toast to the bride's happiness at the reception which followed in the wardroom of the Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt.

A buffet luncheon was served, the tables being bright with silver candelabra and arrangements of white summer flowers.

Approximately 30 out-of-town guests attended. They included the groom's mother, his brother, Michael O'Malley; his sister, Miss Maureen O'Malley; his two aunts, Mother Francis Clare of Loretto Abbey and Sister St. John, and Mother St. Martha, all of Toronto.

After a honeymoon at Long Beach, V.I., the couple will make their home in Winnipeg, where the hockey team is based.

Wed in Metropolitan United Church

COUPLE TO MAKE HOME IN PARIS

Following a honeymoon trip touring the British Isles, newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Robert William Alexander are now making their home in Paris.

The bride, the former Brenda Maude Hatch, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon W. Hatch, 4331 Tyndall Avenue, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Alexander, 1421 San Ardo Place.

Metropolitan United Church was decorated with baskets of pink gladioli and white chrysanthemums for the service at which Dr. S. J. Parsons officiated. Mr. Hatch gave his daughter in marriage and the groom's father sang "My World" and "Because" during the signing of the register.

An engagement ring that belonged to the groom's maternal grandmother was "something old" and "something borrowed" for the bride. Her gown of ligada was fashioned with an empire-line bodice of embossed lace. A full detachable train swept back from the waistline. Her tiered veil of illusion net misted from a floral rosette, outlined with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations, pink sweetheart roses and ivy. Jewelry was a single strand of pearls.

Sky-blue crystal charm formed the empire line gowns worn by the bride's attendants, matron of honor Mrs. Robert Fretter and bridesmatron Mrs. N. Wilf Hatch. They wore self-fabric bows in their hair and carried pink and white carnation bouquets. Jewelry was the bride's gifts of crystal necklaces.

The junior bridesmaids, the bride's sister, Nancy Hatch, and her cousin, Cathy Land, were in powder blue gowns with matching bow headpieces. Their jewelry was the bride's gifts of pink and blue heart-shaped lockets and they carried colonial bouquets of pink and white carnations.

N. Wilf Hatch was best man and ushering guests to pews marked with pink carnations and ribbon were John V. Ball and Martin Hatch.

Norman Land proposed the toast to his niece at the reception following in Holyrood House. The tiered cake which centred the head table was topped with bells, lily of the valley and doves holding wedding rings.

For travelling on honeymoon, the new Mrs. Alexander donned a princess-line dress of aqua linen, topped with a matching wool coat. Completing the outfit were an aqua floral hat, egg-shell beige accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Evans travelled from Edmonton to attend their niece's wedding, and other out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. K. McKibben of Dawson Creek; Mr. and Mrs. D. Silver of Kamloops and Mr. and Mrs. D. Alton, Janet and Charles of Nanaimo.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Hold Line Once You Have Reached That Ideal Weight

Lowman

My readers are always asking me how to hold that line once they have reached their ideal weight. They are certainly wise to give thought to this before they slip back into their old eating habits. This is so easy to do.

There are so many items which you like but which you denied yourself while losing weight. Now that the pressure is off you can have some of them occasionally but not as a daily habit. Be moderate. Don't have dessert every night or soak every potato in butter or go haywire with fried foods, whipped cream, or candy.

Remember this! After denying yourself many of the calorie laden foods, you don't crave them now as you once did. You have at least partially broken the habit. Actually some of the very rich foods may now even seem unattractive or cloying to you.

It's sort of like the heavy smoker who stops for some time and then decides to have a cigarette now and then, only occasionally. The first one tastes like straw, but it takes only a few more to taste like they always did.

The same thing is true about habits in food. You can have desserts now and then, more seasoning and butter, a roll now and then, a moderate amount of gravy occasionally, reasonable amounts of salad oils and some cream in your coffee. Remember your reducing period and use it as a guide. Eat fresh fruit more often at the end of a meal than dessert, drink skim milk instead of whole milk, broil or bake rather than fry food, and — take smaller amounts of everything than you did before you lost that overweight.

Also, for the benefit of your health as well as your figure don't drop the habit of exercise. Even if you don't take the special figure molding exercises try to work a good brisk walk into your every day.

I have a leaflet which will be helpful to you if you are leaving the non-reducing world and want to hold that line. I have planned menus for six days which give you more food and some of the trimmings, but in moderation. If you would like to get started on the right track, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

THERE ARE OFTEN TIMES when feminine irregularity calls for a special mild laxative — particularly one that will avoid upsets that may occur with some all-purpose laxatives. To meet this need, Pharmaco (Canada) Ltd. has developed CORRECTOL* — a laxative that is remarkably effective in a new gentle way. Instead of producing a heavy bulk, Correctol combines a simple waste-softening agent with a laxative ingredient so mild and predictable it may be used even after childbirth. Ask for Correctol at all drug counters. In pink tablets: 24 for $1.25. *Reg. T.M.

IF YOU ARE AFRAID OF EXTRA CALORIES — but still have a sweet tooth, the answer to your dilemma is so easy and so good! — it's SWEETA, the no-calorie sweetener that gives you honest-to-goodness sweetness with no after-taste. Yes, it's good — and when I say it's easy, I'm thinking particularly of Sweeta in its liquid form. It sweetens hot or cold drinks instantly — and it's so handy for cooking or baking. Two drops of liquid Sweeta equal one teaspoon of sugar in sweetness! Ask for Sweeta, made by Squibb, in liquid, cube or granulated form . . . it's the most delicious way I know to satisfy your taste for sweetness . . . with a calorie-clear conscience!

Beach Boys Don't Go 'Gronk'

By BOB DONAHUE

It only hurts when I try to listen.

Otherwise I'm fine following the rock and roll session at the Memorial Arena Wednesday night.

By volume in decibles and ticket sales the show produced by the five Beach Boys, Britishers Chad and Jeremy and the Sunrays quintet was a huge success.

Well, some would call it a success.

An electrical fault in the special sound system added to the volume of the performers instruments and turned the arena into an ear-torture chamber.

The huge speakers aimed at the audience began emitting ominous electronic gronks even before the show started and it is almost certain several of the louder guitar twangs will be embedded in the concrete rafters for several days.

RESTRAINT

Only one broke ranks to rush the stage but it was only to get a close-up photograph of the Beach Boys. She slipped by the burly policeman twice only to find her flash camera wouldn't work.

Other young nubiles lost their cool only to a degree that allowed them to do a silent jerk in their seats and wave to the performers.

FEW SHOUTS

There was little enthusiasm for the Sunrays, the first act, although their sounds were right (loud) and their shrieks somehow co-ordinated.

The crowd warmed-up for long-haired Chad and Jeremy. Chad was performing on a double guitar which he called his Chadavarius.

Dedicated to a gentleman Chad met in a Los Angeles men's room, it went something like this:

"Call me names; hurt me; beat me I don't care. But don't expect me to cut off my hair. I've got hair, Babe."

Another was a song called Colors.

There was another song, Cool Jerk. But it was hard to hear whether it was about a person or the dance.

Then came the big moment and the M.C. grandly intoned: "Here they are. We all know who they are. They have given us a lot of hits. The fabulous Beach Boys."

But alas, they were not there. An intermission was called.

Later the fabulous five arrived led by one of their numbers who watusied the group onto the stage.

This group was the most difficult to appreciate because their sounds were largely unintelligible and their voices weak.

BRIDGE LESSON

By JACOBY and SON

Let's see how you plan your play at four hearts in a duplicate game. To start with you see that the contract is so normal that everyone else will be in the same spot. You also see that everyone is going to make at least four.

You also note that there is a play for six. You can draw trumps; lead a club from dummy and finesse your jack. Then if the finesse works you can play your ace and hope to drop the king.

This is the way that most players handled this dummy at the Republic of Texas sectional in Fort Worth. They won the diamond lead; played three rounds of trumps and attacked the clubs in the above manner. When the king of clubs failed to drop they wound up losing a club and two spades to make their contract without any overtricks.

Opening lead—♦ 4

Five very expert South players gave themselves an extra chance for the overtrick. They started proceedings the same way but after the jack of clubs held they entered dummy with the other top diamond and led a second club. When East followed with the nine they ducked in their own hand. West had to win the trick with the ten so that East was unable to get in to lead through the king of spades. Thus, these experts managed to make an important overtrick.

When Brad Gibbs of Dallas, who won the open pairs with Don Reid of Dallas, sat West he almost was the victim of this excellent line of play. The play did not work against him because Brad saw no reason to hang on to his ten of clubs. He played it under South's jack on the first lead of the suit. After this play there was no way for South to throw him in the lead.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

There is growing agreement across the country that further regulation of the community antenna business would not be in the public interest.

Stephen

John Munro, parliamentary secretary to Immigration Minister Marchand, said in a July 28 speech that control of community antennas by the Board of Broadcast Governors is essential.

The government white paper on broadcasting has recommended BBG control, and Mr. Munro said in his speech that this is reasonable because CATV has all the possibilities of a separate medium. At present, they are regulated by the transport department.

Gilbert A. Allard, president of the National Community Antenna Television Association of Canada, does not agree. He said it must be recognized that CATV's function is reception and not transmission and it would be "a dangerous concentration of authority" to permit the same agency that controls transmission, the BBG, also to control that which may be received.

The national purposes of broadcasting had been drafted as guidelines for broadcasting and had never been intended as "an intrusion upon the rights of Canadians to receive whatever television or radio programs which present or advancing technology may make available to them."

The basic unfettered right of the public to receive stations of its choice should be recognized. Action to curtail this "is censorship and represents a fundamental and undesirable departure from the long-standing legislative traditions of this country."

From this angle, I agree, there is no real reason for control. The cablevision people do not originate programs, nor do they hold a monopoly on any channel. They do carry television programs to areas where stations are not available, thus providing a service.

To handcuff them with proposed BBG regulations would simply penalize those Canadians who are not as fortunate as we border-dwellers in receiving television signals.

Jazz Pieces Create Stir In Banff Ballet Program

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

Young dancers of the Banff School of Fine Arts Festival Ballet put on a performance with verve and sparkle Wednesday night.

And it was a question of who enjoyed the evening more — the audience or the dancers.

But the impression the dancers gave throughout their performance was equally warm — they liked the audience, they loved dancing, and they were delighted to be here.

Their varied program was young, adventurous and bold.

The company, all except for the star soloists, are summer students at the Banff School. Presumably they wanted to do something different, slightly experimental; they did, and they did it well.

Their opening number, set to a Sammartini Sonata, was stately, graceful and in the tradition of classical ballet.

From it they worked up to a finger-snapping, hip-swinging close in the final number, the jazz ballet Monday's Child, set to some very, very contemporary music.

Throughout it all the corps de ballet held its own admirably, setting off the soloists' sparkle. On the whole, the techinque appeared good. Although uncertain in places at first, they never faltered.

The first star to captivate the audience was a sunny blonde, Virginia Wakelyn of London's Royal Ballet.

REAL LINK

From the start, she established a real link with the audience in her part in Sammartini's Sonata, as the other dancers stepped in beautiful baroque procession to music of the Italian composer.

Miss Wakelyn danced a pas de trois in the Sonata but it was in Morceau de Concert to music of Saint-Saens that she really shone.

Well-matched with Eric Hampton, lead dancer of the New York Juilliard Dance Ensemble, her personality again dazzled the audience. The two were light of foot, and very pleasing to watch.

SECOND PIECE

A combination of dance and comedy, its action had the audience laughing time after time at the amorous adventures of the gods. Although mimed well by the dancers, the action was at times a mite confusing because of the large cast.

Sketches from Shakespeare was another innovation and the number which perhaps gave the audience the most food for thought. Four Shakespeare heroines were danced by young members of the company.

CONVINCING MADNESS

Most effective was Janis Dunning's Ophelia, when she gave a very convincing show of madness. Denise O'Brian, too, emoted well as Calpurnia, Caesar's troubled wife.

One flaw in the Shakespeare, for which James Clouser did both choreography and music, was that the costumes, though gorgeous and well-suited to a dramatic production, looked awkward to dance in.

The young dancers, too, may have lacked the maturity to depict the characters fully.

JAZZ NUMBER

Eva von Gencsy, dark-haired, petite and fair of face like Monday's Child, danced with fire and verve. Superlative at her work, she dances with her eyes and her flashing smile as well as every ounce of her body.

With Richard Jones, an American-born dancer now of Ottawa, whose controlled movements still communicated excitement superbly, she dances passionate duo, a contrast of intertwining limbs and individual dances separated by half a stage.

DANCE TALENT

The two Victoria dancers in the company, Paul Blakey and Maureen Lawson, acquitted themselves well, both performing solo dances and showing that Victoria, too, is not devoid of dance talent of a high order.

Costumes throughout the production were effective and the Festival Ballet is fortunate in having its own orchestra, also from the Banff School.

CAPTAIN YOUNG

Change of Command For Escort Squadron

After a three-year stint at Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, Capt. William P. Hayes, commander of the fourth Canadian escort squadron, will head east September 2.

He has been appointed to attend a one-year course at the National Defence College of Canada, in Kingston, Ont.

Commandant of the Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, from 1963 until last year, Capt. Hayes has formerly served at Esquimalt as commander of HMCS Cayuga and executive officer of HMCS Naden. He is a veteran of the Second World War and the Korean War.

Taking his place will be Capt. John B. Young, deputy chief of staff operations for Maritime command. Capt. Young, who attended university in Victoria, joined the navy as a cadet in 1941.

A veteran of the Arctic convoys during the Second World War, he received his wings after pilot training in Britain shortly after the war.

His only west coast service was between 1954 and 1958 when he commanded first the minesweeper Fortune and later the ocean-escort HMCS Sussexvale.

'Standards Lower With Unification'

TORONTO (CP) — Unification will lower the standard of Canada's fighting force, Robert H. Hilborn, president of the newly formed Tri-Services Identities Organization said at a press conference Wednesday.

Mr. Hilborn, a former Lieutenant-Colonel and commanding officer of the Toronto Scottish Regiment, said his organization objected to the idea of a one-uniform military force.

"The value of the change is questionable," he said. "There is no reason to jettison something that has been working successfully for something that may not work."

He said Trio was not intended to lead the fight against unification but to co-ordinate the different organizations now working to that end.

"We want a pause for thorough examination and study of unification," he said. "Possibly a royal commission could be set up. We think that this is a difficult request for him (Defence Minister Hellyer) to reject. We don't know of any pressures, except perhaps personal pressures, he may have for ramming this through.

"We feel that the identity of the three services should be preserved," he said.

Mr. Hilborn added that the organization agreed with the integration of commands and unification of the service, but not the combat, troops.

Real Reason U.S. in Viet Nam: 'We Need That Base' Says Writer

By AB KENT

An Arizona man twice-wounded as a Viet Nam correspondent said here Monday the U.S. should be more honest with the world about its fighting role.

Paul Dean, world-roving correspondent-feature writer for the Arizona Republic, has no time for protest groups and their demonstrations over U.S. intervention in Viet Nam.

"To me that is absolute nonsense," the 32-year-old reporter said.

"They miss the basic philosophies."

Dean claimed that under the Geneva Agreement of 1954 Indochina was partitioned and the people given the right to live under Communism in the north or "to pursue the democratic way of life in the south."

'INVITED IN'

Then-president Diem invited the U.S. into south Viet Nam to help the shattered country regain its feet. Dean said the U.S. had doubtless offered to help.

"But even the man in the American street thinks we are there to stop the spread of Communism.

'We're there to spread the growth of democracy, virtually imposing our doctrines as the Communists imposed theirs in other lands," Dean said.

There is no "civil war" in Viet Nam.

The Communists not only fired the first shot but the North Vietnamese crossed the north-south boundary and are fighting in south Viet Nam, a clear act of aggression, he said.

But he agreed it would sit better with the world if the U.S. were more candid with its reason for being in Viet Nam.

BASE NEEDED

"We need that base to complete the southeast Asia defence horseshoe," he said.

A new approach could include a departure from "carefully tailored news" which gives only the official viewpoint, he said.

This policy, like the old song, accentuates the positive, eliminates the negative in stories about the fighting.

Dean said he was in one engagement where both South Vietnamese and American soldiers suffered heavy losses at the hands of Viet Cong. Having seen it, he knew how bad it had been.

Two days later giving an official briefing for correspondents a U.S. officer knew nothing about the battle and after inquiring he was able to learn only the barest of details.

Dean was sent to Viet Nam as a war correspondent, not a political writer or to meet people in government.

THE UGLY ONES

There were the ugly ones like the men who became psychopathic killers, destroying the enemy not out of duty but because they enjoyed it.

And there were the funny things as the time Dean dove into a hole when his group came under fire, and landed on top of a marine little more than half his own age.

"The guy was dirt from head to foot, but he cracked this big grin at me and said, 'This sure beats working.' "

Now in a two-week cross country tour he is turning his critical eye on Canada to do a series on Doukhobors, prairie wheat sales to China, Saskatchewan medicare, separatism, Expo 67, and Canada as an economic and geographic paradox.

The less said about the story line of this film the better.

It was obviously made in high good humor and the story is secondary to the personality of the players and the ingenious color photography which, at times, is really fascinating.

Gregory Peck has a knack for making you believe in what he is doing, even when his escapades are far beyond the realm of logic or likelihood.

Then, of course, there is Sophia Loren. This Italian beauty makes almost any plot superfluous. She commands the screen with her smouldering personality and voluptuous physical presence — and women viewers at the Wednesday premier in the Royal were obviously enchanted by the splendor of her Christian Dior wardrobe.

As for the story, it never really takes itself seriously and barrels along with increasing involvement from one crazy situation to another.

First we are asked to believe that Gregory Peck is an American exchange professor of ancient languages at Oxford University; then that he is kidnapped by the prime minister of a Middle East country.

The prime minister wants him to spy on a sinister fellow countryman, played by Shakespearian actor Alan Badel. Badel offers Peck a substantial sum of money to translate an important document. Badel's mistess (Sophia Loren) warns Peck his life is in danger and helps him to escape.

Peck then falls into the hands of counter-plotter Kieron Moore, who also has a proprietary interest in Sophia Loren. Again he escapes and again he is contacted by the glamorous Sophia.

The plot is so involved it can scarcely be described on paper, but it bursts into explosive action quite often, so that audiences are kept in a proper state of excitement.

If you're looking for light lively summer entertainment, this is it. But keep your critical faculties in your pocket.

Hurt Driver In Fair Condition

The young driver of a car which plunged off the Mount Douglas Road Tuesday night is reported in "fair" condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital today.

Ronald Leskun, 18, of Windsor suffered a fractured pelvis and internal injuries in the 100-foot fall. Two girls and two boys in the car with him escaped with bumps and bruises.

The party was descending from the top of Mount Douglas when their small foreign car failed to negotiate a sharp turn and tumbled down the heavily wooded slope.

MOTHER HEARS HER SON SHOT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert E. Girard was chatting happily with his mother in Worcester, Mass., about his new job. It was a good one, he thought. Things were going well.

His mother, Mrs. John Johnson, remembered the animation in her son's voice. But her happiness for him became screaming terror when she heard a thump and then her son gasping: "Mums, I've been shot. Get help."

The 23-year-old Girard was shot as he made his call from a Washington telephone booth Wednesday by a holdup man. Girard had 70 cents in his pockets.

Police today credited luck and operator 52 for saving the young man's life. The operator came on the line to tell Girard his three minutes were up just after the shooting.

The operator calmed Mrs. Johnson and, having learned what happened, called police and an ambulance. Girard was taken to George Washington Hospital where his chances of surviving a bullet wound in the chest were considered good.

Operator 52 and her supervisor kept the line to Worcester open throughout the half hour or so it took for the ambulance to arrive, take her son to the hospital and receive a doctor's prognosis on Girard's condition.

By-Law Challenged Friday

NORTH COWICHAN — An appication to quash a recreation bylaw permitting the building of a $300,000 ice arena at the north end of the municipality will be heard in Victoria Law Courts Friday at 10:30 a.m.

Two taxpayers — Frank Blanc and Joseph Haddock — have issued a writ calling on North Cowichan municipality to show cause why the bylaw should not be quashed.

They will be represented by Victoria lawyer Cecil O. D. Branson. David Williams will appear for North Cowichan municipality.

Last May 4, North Cowinhan municipal council voted unanimously to put a separate recreation bylaw to the north end of the municipality.

Earlier this year a composite $700,000 bylaw was turned down by the whole municipality.

FLYING HIGH on kite is Vancouver's Harvey Lowland, ace trick water skier, warming up for Western Canadian Open water ski championship at Shawnigan Lake this Saturday and Sunday. Lowland is defending champion at international event drawing 70 to 80 competitions from British Columbia, Alberta and Pacific Northwest. Some 3,000 spectators are expected to view performance from Victoria Aqua Ski Club property on east side of lake.

LOOK MA! One hand is all Victoria's Cliff Johnson needs as he flies 98 feet through the air to win second place in ski-jumping at Kelowna Regatta last week. Top jumper and top over-all skier was Rod Tiplow, expected to figure prominently in this week-end's Western Canadian Open Water Ski Championships.

Ship Crashes Island Wharf

The British ship, Pacific Princess was making a dock landing at about 2:30 a.m. when it crashed bow first into the north end of the wharf.

He said: "I think the ship's engines were already going astern when she hit.

"But a 24,000 ton ship 600 feet long doesn't need to be moving too fast to do a lot of damage."

No one was hurt and the Pacific Princess was able to back off and make a proper dock landing.

Later today regular loading of lumber was going ahead.

A CNR suveyor this morning estimated it would cost $25,000 to repair the damage to the dock.

The Pacific Princess almost cut the dock in half as it swathed through 60 feet of timber in the centre of the dock near the agent's office.

Fair Opens Tonight

NANAIMO — L. W. Johnson, chief administrative officer of the agriculture department, will officially open the Vancouver Island Exhibition tonight at 7 at Exhibition Park.

Fair president Cyril Edginton said Wednesday every booth in the Centennial Building will be occupied and there are a large number of entries in the livestock section.

Cattle and horse judging started Wednesday morning.

The talent show honors performance will be staged Saturday night.

The major prize draws will also be made Saturday. One is for a car and a trailer and another is a trip for two to Harrison Hot Springs.

Deadhead Cleanup Proposed

DUNCAN — Chamber of Commerce president Sam Keeble Wednesday labelled as "hogwash" a provincial government reply to a request to have Cowichan Bay cleared of deadheads.

The letter from Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said he fully appreciates the concern of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island, but his department's jurisdiction in the matter was limited.

Mr. Williston said the forest service made no provision for compulsory recovery of half-submerged logs or logs on beaches.

The Forest Service recently made a substantial reduction in the stumpage rate for deadheads.

Mr. Williston said: "It appears not much more can be done, particularly as a log salvage permit doesn't authorize removal of logs from any foreshore privately held.

MAJOR OWNER

The minister referred the chamber to the Canadian National Railway as owners of one of the major lots at Cowichan Bay.

Mr. Keeble said the minister was posing the chamber the hopeless task of contacting each individual foreshore lessee.

Director Will Dobson said CNR could be of value in getting a list of a portion of the lessees.

Mr. Dobson suggested Robert Strachan might be asked to introduce a bill in the legislature making foreshore lessees responsible for the aesthetic value of the property.

Director Fred Green, a lawyer, undertook to obtain a list of all the foreshore lessees on Cowichan Bay.

Luxton Fair Horse Show Winners Listed

A record number of entries, plus keen competition in both junior and senior classes, made the Luxton Fair horse show last weekend one of the outstanding events of the two-day exhibition.

The show was organized by a committee of representatives of horsemen's clubs of the Greater Victoria Area.

Show chairman was R. G. Shanks. Donalda Mahan of Kirkland, Washington, was judge.

TWO NAMES PUT FORWARD FOR SOCRED NOMINATION

NANAIMO — Realtor Frank Ney and marine surveyor Mike Murray will contest the Social Credit nomination at a convention Monday night.

In Port Alberni the Socred nomination will be contested by publisher Fred Duncan and Carl Hastings. Local Liberals will hold a nominating convention next Thursday.

DUNCAN — The Better Business Bureau has 63 members in the Duncan area.

And the BBB processes an average of 50 calls a week from Duncan businessmen and the shopping public.

These figures were given to Duncan Chamber of Commerce Wednesday by Ross Douglas of the bureau.

Mr. Douglas said the BBB processed 700 calls a month in its Victoria office, and only 27 per cent of these are complaints.

A majority of calls are from people checking on the reliability of stores and business agencies.

Mr. Douglas said it is easier for the BBB to warn people about fly-by-night operators than get them out of strictly legal contracts.

He said the bueau setup in North America is presently being studied by the United Kingdom with a view to it being copied over there.

Attorney-Gneral Robert Bonner has said government supervision of business eithics could only be one-third as effective as the bureau, and would cost more through a special tax.

DUNCAN — There is no magic formula for bringing new industry to a district.

Mr. Hawthornthwaite is the chamber director currently working on the production of an industrial development brochure for this area.

He said representatives of Duncan and North Cowichan councils have been invited to assist in the project.

Mr. Hawthornthwaite said attracting new industry meant thinking big.

Information on local facilities must be disseminated as far east as New York.

He said Cowichan Indian Band, owners of 55 acres available for industrial development, is to be invited to membership of his committee.

Mr. Hawthornthwaite said he is getting tremendous help from Ray Kersey of the department of industrial development.

Four Seek Election To Council

A councillor is needed to complete the unexpired portion of the term of Mrs. Elaine Dobbyn, who died last week.

Former councillor Stan Dyke of Crofton, Mrs. Mildred Turney, Crofton; Mrs. Margaret Robertson, Duncan, and G. R. Lennox, Westholme, will contest the seat.

Mr. Dyke operated a family business in Crofton from 1932 until last year and was postmaster for many years.

He served one two-year term on council in 1957-58 and has been a candidate twice since. He has also served on the district school board.

Mrs. Turney is active in a number of local organizations. She is secretary of the Cowichan Valley Athletic Club and secretary for the official opening of the Cowichan Valley Forest Museum.

Mrs. Robertson is employed as a secretary in the district office of the agriculture department.

Mr. Lennox is a protection officer for B.C. Forest Products.

Provincial Campsite at Duncan Urged

DUNCAN — A government campsite in the immediate vicinity of Duncan is an urgent necessity, Sam Keeble, president of Duncan Chamber of Commerce, said Wednesday.

The government should be asked to make a campsite here next summer, he said.

Many out of town tourists missed visiting Cowichan Valley Forest Museum because of the lack of an overnight stopping place, he added.

Mr. Keeble said Bamberton to the south and Ladysmith to the north, each about 17 miles away, are presently the nearest government campsites.

Director Jim Hawthornthwaite said the recreation department is against having campsites too near a built-up area unless there was assurance of adequate police protection.

Mr. Hawthornthwaite said: "I'm in favor of a campsite near Duncan but there's no easy answer to the kind of vandalism experienced at Goldstream Park."

An approach for a campsite will be made to the recreation department.

LONG WAY FROM SLEEPING IN CAR

Success Means More Time to Paint

By DESMOND BILL

Arnold Burrell has come a long way from the time when he lived in a car for two years and sold his paintings to strangers he met in cocktail bars.

He has an exhibition this week and next at Pandora's Box and it has turned into one of the most successful ever held at the gallery. Since the opening last Saturday 20 works have sold.

Burrell is 42 now, and he is becoming established. They are taking his paintings into their permanent collection (Greater Victoria Art Gallery has two of them).

Growing success has enabled him to give up teaching in order to work full time on creating. He is buying a 34-acre farm outside Duncan on which to settle down.

Plays Drums

He lives alone in the farmhouse and has adapted an old apple storage shed as a studio. His only company is a dog, two banties and three cats. He relaxes by playing on the drums for an hour every day, or listening to progressive jazz on records.

But mostly he paints — the only thing he really wants to do. "If I was the last person on earth and there was no one else to see my work, I'd still paint. It has become my way of life."

It was not always like that. He started out to be a musician and became a sailor instead. The obsession for painting came later.

He was born in Winnipeg, grew up in Vancouver, studied music under the tutelage of his musician father. But after high school graduation, during the Second World War, he was deflected from musical studies by the RCAF in which he served for two years as an air gunner.

Air Sickness

Discharged because of air-sickness, Burrell joined the merchant marine. It was then that he first seriously started to try to paint, although he attempted to be a writer in that period too. He ended up by jumping ship in Panama and spending the next six months alternately painting and writing.

By then he was 26 and had decided he wanted most of all, to be a painter. He went back to Vancouver, enrolled at the Vancouver School of Art, and bought a gill-netter in which he went fishing every summer to earn the money to finance his studies.

When he graduated from the Vancouver School of Art in 1956 he won the first scholarship awarded by the Leon and Thea Koerner Foundation. He used the money to go to northern B.C. For two years he lived in a Ford Prefect from which he had taken the back seat.

Work Stored

For two years he drove, camped and painted without once returning to Vancouver. When a canvas was finished he sent it back to the city where friends stored his work.

On his return, he had his first show and sold every one of the canvases he had painted while up north. He rented a studio and, unknown to the landlord, lived in it as well as painted in it. It was during this time that he started selling his work in the bars.

"I'd go into a lounge carrying these canvases. Someone was sure to ask me what they were and did I do them and so on. Usually someone would end up by buying one."

Colin Graham, curator of Greater Victoria Art Gallery, was one of the first experts to recognized Burrell. It was through him that Burrell came to Vancouver Island six years ago to teach art classes at the gallery and up-Island.

Quits Teaching

He has now given up teaching and hopes to be able to live solely by painting. Before he heard of the sales at his exhibition in Pandora's Box he said, "I'm taking a risk in giving up teaching. I hope I'll be able to make it without it."

He apparently has little need to worry.

The first critic who came to review his show ended up by buying one of his drawings. And within two days 19 other patrons each purchased one of his works.

Teachers Ask Share In Planning

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's teachers are tired of being in the background, says Harley Robertson, president of the B.C. Teachers' Federation.

He made the remark Tuesday and called for the federation to have a larger share in long-range education planning.

Mr. Janzen, a former president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation said on returning from a teachers' conference in South Korea that teachers' groups in many European and Asian countries play a major role in shaping education in their countries.

Mr. Robertson said the provincial department of education does not regularly seek advice and participation from the teachers' federation in improving the educational system.

"Only lately have we got into the field of curriculum development," he said.

RCAF Band Featured In PNE Stage Show

A major highlight of the 1966 Pacific National Exhibition will be daily free performances by the 60-piece Training Command Concert Band of the Royal Canadian Air Force from Winnipeg.

The world-renowned band, which comes to Vancouver directly from a tour of European and African countries, will be heard at all 19 performances of the new free Empire Stadium show.

It will also take part in the spectacular PNE parade in downtown Vancouver on Saturday, and will participate in official opening ceremonies the same day.

The 1966 PNE runs from Saturday, Aug. 20, to Sept. 5, and will celebrate the B.C. Centenary with a "Centennial Jamboree."

The Training Command Concert Band—which has travelled triumphantly throughout Canada, the United States, Europe and Africa—will be directed by Flight Lieutenant Howard Woods, CD, LRAM, ARCM, a native of Kamloops.

In addition to the band, the free stadium shows will also be headlined by three well-known performers:

Frank Fontaine, the "Crazy Guggenheim" of television's Jackie Gleason Show, will star in the first four days' performances; teen-age idol Frank Sinatra, Jr., will be featured the next five days, and crooner Nelson Eddy, with Gale Sherwood, will be heard the final five days.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy send a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Michael Reynolds, age 11, of Veradale, Wash., for his question:

Is it true that a bee dies after it stings?

"This hurts me more than it hurts you," may be the words spoken by an adult who has to punish a child, and if the adult happens to be a loving parent, they may be true. If a bee could talk, she really would mean it. A painful jab with her stinger hurts her far more than it hurts you.

People who tease the bees sooner or later get stung. The jab of venom is very painful, and the swelling may last for hours or even days. Your wound, however, costs the bee her life. The worker bee attacks with all her might, giving one fierce stab, then off she flies and dies within a few hours.

If you get stung by a bee, examine the stab closely. The chances are you will see that the bee left her stinger in the wound. Scrape it off and remove it quickly, for the nasty little weapon is adding more poison to the wound every second. As a rule, the bee leaves behind her poison-making glands and a small sac of venom along with her stinging dagger.

The bee's stinging weapon is the tail end of her abdomen. It has a pair of sharp darts encased in a sheath. There are grooves down the sides of the darts and they are fed by venom manufactured in the bee's abdomen. Two glands create a strong acid chemical, and a third gland manufactures an alkaline. Venom supplies are stored in a small venom sac.

Stings Other Queens

When the bee stings, the two chemicals come together and form a poisonous liquid. This venom runs down the grooves of the stinger which is worked by two sets of muscles. At the tip of the stinger are small barbs that hook backward. As one set of muscles jab the dagger in your flesh, the barbs dig deeper and deeper. The worker bee, who has a straight stinger, cannot withdraw them. Meantime, other muscles pump more poison down from the venom sac. After one fierce jab, the bee jerks loose and leaves her barbed stinger behind. This rips out her poison glands and her venom sac, her muscles and often part of her intestines. She may live for a few hours, but no longer.

The stinger of the queen bee is curved and less barbed. She uses it only to sting other queens, and she can withdraw her poisonous weapon to sting again and again. A bee's stinger actually is a modified ovipositor for placing eggs. The workers are unfertile females and their stingers are less developed than the fertile queen's. The drones of the hive have no stinging organs at all.

Wildcat Strike Spreads In Montreal Rail Yards

Police Ring Airport

Third Suspect In Murders

LONDON (AP)—Armed police sealed off London Airport today in the hunt for Harry Roberts, 30, "the third man" sought in the killing of three Scotland Yard detectives.

Every one of the thousands of passengers leaving the crowded airport was put under police scrutiny after a tip that Roberts had been seen in airport departure lounges.

The tip came from an airport employee who once shared a room with the fugitive. Other British and European airports were alerted in case Roberts had slipped through the net.

Across London, hundreds more police combed the undergrowth of Epping Forest, a 6,000-acre playground bordering the eastern suburbs.

A woman who spent Sunday night with Roberts in a Bloomsbury hotel told police she travelled with him to a pub in the heart of the forest.

She said Roberts told her he intends to hide-out in the forest until the hunt died down. Police established that before taking the bus out of London he bought a tent and other camping gear.

ROBERTS
. . . through net?

As spotter planes were called in police warned that Roberts almost certainly is armed and that private citizens should not try to bring him in alone.

A massive dragnet that stretched into Scotland Wednesday led to the arrest of another suspect, John Duddy, 37.

Duddy was grabbed without a fight in a Glasgow slum tenement just 27 hours after John Edward Witney, the first man arrested in the manhunt, was ordered held without bail on charges of murdering the three detectives "with others."

TEXAS FIGHTS MOSQUITO WAR IN EPIDEMIC

DALLAS (UPI) — Three air force planes will take off Friday in an assault on the culex mosquito, the carrier of encephalitis, a fatal disease that has spread across Dallas county in epidemic proportions. Three persons have died and at least 64 others have been stricken with the disease.

28 KILLED, 123 HURT BY VIET CAFE BOMB

SAIGON (Reuters) — A plastic bomb ripped through a crowded restaurant in the northern city of Hue Wednesday night, killing 28 South Vietnamese in the blast and during the panic-stricken rush for a single exit. Reports said 123 persons were wounded.

VIET NAM HEARINGS TOLD

'Yellow-Bellied Cowards' Trying to Stop Trains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the U.S. House Committee on Un-American Activities said today Americans who try to stop troop trains and munitions shipments to Viet Nam are "yellow-bellied cowards."

Rep. Edwin Willis (D—La.) sat in on the third day of hearings on legislation to make it a federal crime to impede military operations or to aid forces opposing U.S. troops.

In contrast to the first two days of tumultuous hearings in which some 40 persons were taken from the committee room and arrested, today's morning session was quiet. There were no incidents before the panel recessed for lunch after hearing two hours of testimony by a California law official on the war protest movement in his state.

Willis commented during testimony of Edwin Meese, deputy county attorney for Alameda County, Calif., who resumed testimony on the Viet Nam Day Committee of Berkeley, Calif.

Meese said the VDC steered clear of actually urging law violations in preparations for demonstrations Oct. 15-16, 1965, but made clear in their discussions that such incidents might be planned.

Willis interrupted Meese to say he wanted to make clear that the committee was not aiming its hearings at dissent against the Viet Nam war, but against overt acts.

"In my humble opinion people who do those things fall short of loyalty to the United States," he said. "Let's call them what they are — yellow-bellied cowards."

Orbiter Gets Shot Of Moon's Back Side

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Lunar Orbiter clicked its shutter at the bright surface of the moon today and snapped additional pictures as it ducked around the mysterious dark side to process the film.

Telemetry from the spacecraft confirmed that the 90-minute processing was satisfactory and that the film had cycled through the sensors.

"The processing went well but the proof of the pudding is in seeing the pictures when they come back this afternoon," said a spokesman at the jet propulsion laboratory.

He said the camera snapped about four degrees of what is considered the back side of the moon.

Hydro Reinstates Driver, Others Out

B.C. Hydro has reinstated one truck driver whose dismissal caused two work stoppages on the Arrow Dam project but will not rehire 29 others who supported him.

The reinstatement of Thomas Easton, on the order of an arbitrator, was announced Wednesday by Columbia Hydro Constructors Ltd., representing the crown corporation and Foundation-Dravo Ltd. which is building the Arrow Dam on the Columbia River.

Mr. Easton was fired July 26 for an alleged infraction of the work hours and 29 other teamsters subsequently walked off their jobs July 27 and July 29.

The company said "Mr. Easton's reinstatement will not affect their position."

E. R. Peck, general manager of the company, said he was not unhappy with the decision "as I believe that Tom Easton's reinstatement is a vindication of the grievance proceedure.

"In other words, by following the agreed proceedure for settling disputes, the union has achieved something which the men failed to achieve through wildcat action."

LINKED WITH MAO IN PEKING

. . . gaining

PEKING (Reuters) — Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung and Defence Minister Lin Piao today stood side by side to acknowledge cheers at one of Peking's biggest-ever mass rallies.

Observers said the occasion appeared to have been staged to present 59-year-old Lin to the people as Mao's heir-apparent.

It was the first time Lin was among Chinese leaders addressing a mass rally from the high balcony of the golden - roofed Tien An Man (heavenly peace) Gate and also his first public appearance in the capital for three years.

About 1,000,000 persons took part in the rally which lasted more than seven hours and was officially held in honor of China's "great proletarian culture revolution" — the campaign of criticism of alleged opponents of Mao's ideology which has been accompanied by sweeping purges of Communist party officials and intellectuals.

The army and its official newspaper have played the role of pace-setters in the campaign during which Lin, one of the Communist party's five vice-chairmen and first-ranking of China's 16 vice-premiers, has emerged as Mao's righthand man and supreme interpreter of his ideology.

FOREIGNERS BANNED

Contrary to usual practice, foreign correspondents were not invited to today's rally and those who tried to approach the Tien An Man Square to get glimpses of the proceedings were turned back by lines of civilian officials.

The entire rally was televised, with closeup pictures of Mao and Lin, invariably close together, each of the dozen or so times they came out on the balcony to spend a few minutes with other Chinese leaders.

Both wore army uniforms and both looked in good health.

WINDSOR WALKOUT LIMITED

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A walkout by members of Local 185, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers Union, today seemed to be confined to the city of Windsor, and even three freight and passenger services were continuing, a Canadian National Railway spokesman said.

One hundred and twenty members of the non-operating rail union struck Windsor facilities at 12:01 a.m.

A company spokesman said workers at Chatham and Wallaceburg, members of the same local, had voted to remain in the job for the time being.

1,000 Non-Ops Take Up Pickets

MONTREAL (CP)—Some 1,000 non-operating railway employees left their jobs here today, swelling the ranks of a wildcat walkout that began Wednesday when 95 members went on strike at the CNR Point St. Charles yard to protest slowness in contract negotiations.

Picketers from the yard, watched closely by police, walked up and down before yard entrances calling on other of Pointe St. Charles 3,000 employees to join the strike and set up lines before the railway's 800 - man Bonaventure freight centre.

The strike spread after lunchtime to 100 electricians at the Canadian Pacific Railway's Angus repair shops who refused to return to work saying they were fed up in delays in contract negotiations.

Work at the CPR's 200-acre depot which normally employs 4,000 workers, continued as usual despite entreaties from the electricians who milled around outside the gates.

A CNR spokesman said none of the railway's daily operations at either yard had yet been disrupted by the strike since half of the basic day staff of 2,000 have so far failed to join the walkout.

Most of those on strike are members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers or of seven unions belonging to the associated shop-craft unions and are not concerned with day-to-day maintenance of railway services, he said.

BAD LABOR MAN

CBRT spokesman J. A. Pelletier who went out to the Pointe St. Charles yards earlier in the day in an attempt to persuade the strikers to return to work was booed off the premises after he had been there only about five minutes.

"I was called every name under the sun," he said later.

"I won't go back there again. These men are behaving foolishly and there is no use trying to reason with them."

Mr. Pelletier said he was disappointed the men did not wait for the results of a meeting between union leaders to be held here Monday to set an official date for a nation-wide rail strike.

He said he hoped a walkout begun by some 120 men at the CNR's Windsor, Ont., depot early today will end soon as union officials there seemed to be having more luck in talking to the men.

HOUSE MEETING

Union Leaders Present Case To Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Five railway union leaders presented the labor viewpoint to Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday night as he and his cabinet began planning to meet a threatening national railway strike.

Mr. Pearson spent two hours with the group at his Sussex Drive home following a full day of cabinet conferences on the impending crisis, expected to break within the next three weeks.

A joint strike date will be announced next Monday or Tuesday by 18 unions representing almost 120,000 railway workers. Demanding wage increases averaging about 90 cents an hour, they have rejected conciliation board reports recommending a 40 - cent increase spread over two years.

About 100,000 of the workers involved are in non-operating categories with a present day average of $2.22 an hour. The rest are conductors and trainmen paid between $6,500 and $8,000 a year.

Mr. Pearson, Labor Minister Nicholson and the five union leaders emerged from the prime minister's residence just before 11 p.m. EDT.

"We had a very informative and helpful discussion," the prime minister told reporters. "No, we weren't talking about a settlement. It was just an informal exchange."

DECLINE COMMENT

The union leaders, who requested the meeting, declined to enlarge on Mr. Pearson's remarks.

On hand were Frank Hall, executive assistant with the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks; William J. Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers; W. P. Kelly, Canadian head of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; R. C. Smith, chief negotiator for one of the three non - operating union groups; and T. W. Read, negotiator for the shop craft unions.

Inventor Torpedoes Own Story

LONDON (CP) — The Daily Mirror says Joseph Papp has confessed that his tale of crossing the Atlantic in a home-made submarine was a hoax.

The paper, in a Paris report, says the 33-year-old Hungarian-born Canadian flew to Amsterdam on the Dutch airline KLM last week, then travelled by rail to Brest, France, via Paris.

It says he dreamed up the stunt because he couldn't bear to admit to his friends that a submarine, which he had spent six years of his spare time and all his savings building, wouldn't work.

Another London paper, The Daily Express, says in an editorial Papp will leave Europe "a little more exhilarated for his visit."

The Express says:

"A story so bold and so engaging, backed by such an unblushing lack of evidence, puts Mr. Papp in the class of the great hoaxers of the past. And, like them, he has caused much hilarity and done no

PGE Employees Vote On 50c Wage Boost

About one-quarter of the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway's work force began voting today on a conciliation board recommendation that they receive a 50-cents-an-hour wage increase spread over two years.

The report delivered by board chairman Magistrate Les Bewley of Vancouver was handed down in a dispute involving the railway and its 400-member federation of PGE employees including carmen, machinists, pipefitters, clerks and electricians.

There was no immediate comment from either side regarding the report's suggestion aimed at ending the traditional pattern in which PGE wages were automatically tied to those paid by the national railways.

Magistrate Bewley said there were "no easy answers in this dispute" because both sides had valid but irreconcilable arguments.

He summarized the crown corporation's position as being a willingness to pay the national railway scales but no more because it would harm the PGE's already damaged competitive position.

The company pointed out it could not unilaterally raise its prices to meet higher costs and that it suffered a built-in disadvantage as Canada's third-largest railway because it did not share in the $105 million annual grants to the CPR and CNR by the federal government.

The report said that after careful examination of a recent wage survey and recent settlements for woodworkers and longshoremen, it recommends a 25-cents-an-hour wage increase retroactive to Jan. 1 and another 25-cent boost next Jan. 1.

Other recommendations called for: Annual vacation of two weeks after one year service and three after 10 years; union dues check-off; eight statutory holidays; overtime at 1½-time for the first three hours and double-time thereafter with 2½-time for work on statutory holidays; and accumulative sick leave allowance of one day per month to a maximum unused accumulation of 120 days.

POLICE DOG CAUSED FATAL PANIC

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) —A magistrate said today that police taking a dog into a packed dancehall caused a stampede of the Negro crowd in which 10 persons died.

At an inquest, Magistrate L. W. Moster found that 10 persons, including six women, died of asphyxia in a mass exodus down the stairs of the club in February.

He found there had been illicit dealing in liquor by the organizer of the dance and many people in the hall at the time were under the influence of liquor.

But the situation had not justified police taking a dog into the crowded hall nor ordering it to bark at and bite people present, he said.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Mine Issues Take Beating

Dynasty skidded .75 to a new 1966 low of $8.55. Cascade Moly tumbled $1 to $2.45 and Brenmac struck a new low of .90, down .10 from Wednesday's close.

Brenda lost .35 to $8.35 and Croydon was off .04 to .80.

One of the few to gain was Native, up .10 to .90.

In the industrials MacMillan Bloedel was at a new 1966 low, dropping $1.12 to $24.87.

Loses were not confined to any single group but spread across a wide range of issues. Bank of Nova Scotia dipped 1 to 66½. Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce 1 to 58, CPR 1 to 57¾, Jefferson Lake 1½ to 26⅝, B-A Oil ⅝ to 30½ and Algoma Steel ½ to 27½.

In senior mining issues, Inco sagged 2½ to 87, Cominco 1¼ to 36, Falconbridge 1¾ to 89¼ and Denison 1 to 56.

Home A fell ⅜ to 21¾ and Hudson's Bay ⅜ to 17⅞ as western oils were weak.

Airlines were among losers but prices weakened across the board.

Trading was halted in Xerox as it plunged 15⅜ points to 200⅛. IBM was down more than seven points. Fairchild Camera lost four.

Off two points or more were Texas Instruments, Mallory, American Airlines and U.S. Smelting.

AT MONTREAL the market drifted lower today after morning trading had produced a partial halt in the current decline.

International Nickel dropped 2 points to 87 and Bell Telephone ¾ to 49½. Home Oil A eased ⅜ to 21¾ and Alcan ¼ to 32.

AT LONDON the market lacked a positive trend today.

Gilts, however, went ahead, though sometimes appearing a little uncertain, with gains which ranged to ¼. Dollar stocks were mixed.

International Nickel was dull despite opening higher and other Canadians to ease by up to a point including Algoma, B.A. Oil and Consolidated Mining. Noranda lost 1½ points.

Firm spots included Canadian Pacific, Canadian Husky, Consolidated Paper, Hollinger, Trans-Canada Pipe and Brazilian Light and Power.

Hollinger Shows Net Profit Drop

TORONTO (CP) — Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Ltd. had estimated net profit of $2,822,000 or 57.25 cents a share in the first six months of this year, compared with $3,187,000 or 64.75 cents in the similar 1965 period.

Operating profit dipped to $2,750,000 from $3,588,000, an interim report to shareholders shows.

Bridge Officials Head for Pakistan

VANCOUVER (CP) — J. S. Prescott, general manager of Dominion Bridge Co., of Vancouver, said Monday a team of company engineers and superintendents will leave shortly for Pakistan to supervise construction of a $3,000,000 bridge being fabricated and erected by Dominion Bridge.

Industrial Division For Dominion Bridge

MONTREAL (CP)—Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd. has announced the formation of an industrial products division for production of industrial cranes, water control gates, pressure vessels and nuclear reactor components.

Manitoba Lifts Mine Receivership

WINNIPEG (CP)—The provincial government has lifted receivership on the San Antonio Gold Mines at Bissett, Man., and returned full control of operations to the mines' new management.

Mines Minister Gurney Evans said an agreement has been reached with the management of the mine, headed by R. D. Skogsberg of Calgary. The agreement involves covering the repayment of the government's $240,000 loan to the company.

Bell Telephone In Stock Offer

MONTREAL (CP) — The Bell Telephone Co. of Canada has announced plans to offer Bell Telephone stock to shareholders of both the Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. and the New Brunswick Telephone Co., in exchange for a portion of their holdings of common shares in those companies.

The company announcement said this would bring Bell Canada ownership of voting stock of these companies to about 51 per cent, providing the offers are accepted and approved by the appropriate regulatory authorities.

U.S. Housing Starts Drop

WASHINGTON (AP)—Housing starts in the U.S.—a major economic barometer — dropped again during July to the lowest level since the depths of the 1960 recession, the commerce department has reported.

Starts dropped 16.4 per cent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1,064,000, the lowest since December, 1960.

Soviet Advances Production Date Of Big Airliner

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia's projected supersonic airliner, the 120-passenger TU-144, is due to enter service before 1970, the Soviet news agency Tass says.

The jet aircraft, expected to fly at speeds of up to 1,500 miles an hour, will rival the Anglo-French Concorde, due to be test-flown in February, 1968.

Production of the TU-144 will form part of the plans by Aeroflot, the Soviet airline, to develop an all-jet fleet.

The plans were made public to Tass by Nikolai Bykov, deputy minister of civil aviation. All the new planes will have tail-mounted engines, he said.

PGE BOND ISSUE

Speculation On Interest Rate

Local bond dealers are divided on speculating Premier Bennett's interest offering for his PGE parity bond issue next month.

Some feel the $50,000,000 issue will have to bear a healthy 5½-6 per cent rate to be competitive in today's bond market.

Others believe there will be no problem selling the parities even at 5 per cent because they are secure.

"He's going to have to pay more on this issue," one said.

Another commented:

"I can sell them. The investing public has become attuned to them. They are a comfortable thing."

The dealer has already taken orders even though the interest rate will not be known until the premier announces it Monday and the bonds will not likely be available until Sept. 15.

HAS PROBLEM

"He'd face with the problem of deciding what interest rate to place on them," a dealer said.

"If he puts them out at 6 per cent people would sell the ones they are holding and he'd be no further ahead.

"An investor is better off with parity bonds than buying high-yield bonds in the market because the money is always there."

Another dealer pointed out the long-term yields of 6½ and 7 per cent on government and corporate bond issues are also attractive.

Whatever the premier decides must be attractive before it will sell, he said. "The bond dealer won't take it if he can't sell it."

A dealer spokesman pointed out a problem the premier faces in deciding to offer bonds at a high rate of interest.

"It would mean his outstanding parity bond issues of 1967, 1968, 1969 and 1970 would have to be raised, perhaps to 5½ per cent, in order to sell," the bond man said.

But the premier also could offer a premium to purchasers provided they held their bonds to maturity, he said.

Meanwhile, a bank securities spokesman said there had been no difficulty in disposing of the current federal government bond issues yielding as much as 5.9 per cent.

The three-year $250 million issue at 5¾ per cent has been especially attractive, he said.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Grain prices showed considerable irregularities in active trading on the Winnipeg grain exchange today. Export interest was good.

All commodities rallied briskly in early trading aided by broad advances recorded in Chicago. Soybean prices in particular, recorded broad gains prompting good buying in flax and rapeseed.

However, early advances on U.S. markets were reduced or eliminated in later trading and the declines were reflected in the prices of commodities here.

Lakhead prices for IWA, class two and domestic wheat were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP)—Prices in the grain futures market moved rapidly and broadly today but mostly toward weakness.

August soybeans, which appeared to be the most heavily traded, ranged from 9¼ cents a bushel higher to 4¾ cents lower by early afternoon.

The grains traded in a mixed range most of the time but shifted quickly from firm to slightly weak on spurts of buying and selling which brokers said seemed to have been limited to a few relatively major speculators and commission firms.

Import Car Sales Boom Across U.S.

DETROIT (AP) — Import car dealers did record-breaking business in the first six months of this year as they topped the 300,000 sales mark in the United States for the first time.

The first-half registration total of 304,275 broke the old mark of 291,772 set in the January-June period of 1959. That year marked the current high for import sales as U.S. buyers bought 614,131 foreign made cars.

Arthur Mayse

Out Colwood way, we have a recent arrival by the name of G. K. Martini ("like the drink, but without the olive," says he) who is trying hard to be a good Canadian.

When he observed a traffic crackup from the window of the apartment where he was visiting, he decided a witness might be needed and went to offer his services.

I could see myself in a car accident and needing a witness," Mr. Martini explained. "Besides, it seemed the right thing to do."

In due time, he continues, the RCMP notified him that a summons had been received.

"I offered to pick it up at their office, but the Mounty said, "Oh no, I have to deliver it at your door. It is very important'." So the summons was delivered, and on the day appointed, Mr. Martini took himself off to magistrates' court.

There, he claims, he was not only told that no such case was listed, but laughed at by a policeman.

"Later," he concludes, "they hunted around and discovered the case had already been disposed of. In common decency, they should have let me know. It is hard enough to get witnesses — and then to treat one like that!"

Most certainly, someone should have let him know. As for the laughter, though, Mr. Martini should be advised that the Canadian laugh is a ploy frequently used to cover embarrassment and confusion, or to gain time for thinking.

It is, so to speak, the olive in our national martini.

Into this quiet corner have bounced beefs of a sort which warrant speedy and thorough federal investigation.

There, while Canadian sport fishermen troll for springs and coho in accord with federal catch regulations and with the single-lure outfits required by our laws, a few American boaters are alleged to be having themselves a lawless jamboree.

"They whip over in fast boats," one disgusted witness told me. "Most of them come from Bellingham.

"On the grounds, they fish without regard for bag and size limits (four salmon per person per day, and no grilse under 12 inches) and with any number of lures or baits they can hang on a line."

Another informant asserts that while department officers can ask the outlaws to go ashore, they are not permitted to make arrests.

A call to Pacific area headquarters in Vancouver confirmed that while alien fishermen in Canadian waters must obey our laws, suspected offenders afloat can be detained only on justice department authority from Ottawa.

In the East Point foulup, we can only hope that fisheries patrols get a prompt go-ahead. This sort of cheating should be checked!

There are bounds to what a fellow can do in his back yard — unless, of course, it is occupied by a smoke-dispensing sawmill — but it does seem to me that Oak Bay Municipality has dealt roughly with boat-builder Harry Runer.

Mr. Runer, whose 32-footer is several months from completion, has been ordered to dismantle the shed that shelters his craft.

Far from dropping the boom, it seems to me that Oak Bay should lean over backward to oblige any citizen with enough skill and gumption to undertake such a glamorous and exacting task.

That is that his activities have interfered with neighborhood television reception. Personally, I think we could stand a lot more interference with the squawk-box, especially during these summer doldrums when most TV fare is gosh-awful.

That's it: and off now to Montreal for a preview of Expo 67. Be back, I hope, next Tuesday.

IT WASN'T there three days ago says 15-year-old Clarissa "Kis" Baxter of 2918 Lansdowne who found 13-inch across-the-crown mushroom in front garden. Specimen of highly edible agaricus augustus, is, says Provincial Museum fungi expert Adam Szczawinski, of near-record size. Baxter family has found others around house, including 12 incher last September. They also have puffballs in back yard, "but" says Kis, who likes nothing better than good mushroom breakfast, "they're poison." (Times Photo).

HIGH DRAMA?

That's Why They Call It Stage-Coach

By GLEN ALLEN

Galoop galoop went the mid-morning raider.

A daring young highway-woman on a high horse named Charlemagne swooped down on B.C. Centennial Committee chairman Lawrie Wallace's office this morning, dropped a note on his desk, and galooped off into the wilds of James Bay.

A highly distraught Mr. Wallace held up a ransom note for the eyes of reporters minutes after the brazen daylight raid.

It told Mr. Wallace, in script cut out from magazines and newspapers, that his Bakerville to Victoria coach had this morning been hijacked in Burnaby.

"The Centennial stagecoach and its personnel are being held incommunicado," it said, further demanding a gold nugget for the coach's return.

REEVE JAILED

Man of action Wallace called the trusty RCMP and had Reeve Allan "Mark of Zorro" Emmott of Burnaby, whose Sons of Burnaby are known to have committed the foul deed, arrested and jailed.

And jail, says Mr. Wallace, is where Emmott will stay until the coach turns up.

"I'd love to see that man dangle," said Mr. Wallace.

A bit calmer later on in the morning Mr. Wallace had hopes for the coach's return and the continuation of it's 540 mile run, expected to end here Sept. 3.

CHURCH UNITY SOUGHT

Some Changes Needed, Island Catholics Tell Bishop

By DESMOND BILL

Catholics on Vancouver Island are fed up with fund-raising, bored by many sermons they hear, greatly concerned about birth control, and worried about the state of Catholic schools.

But they are enthusiastic about recent liturgical changes, delighted that their church is "on the move at last," and anxious to be better informed about developments.

A sizable number are mildly disturbed by some trends in the Catholic Church but most of them highly approve other developments, particularly the ecumenical movement and the search for unity among Christians.

The questionnaire was devised by Bishop Remi J. De Roo to "help us see where we stand."

He thought it was time to ask his people "What do you think?" of everything that is going on in the Church. He explained, "This survey will enable us to approach our problems from life, not from theory."

No one was required to sign the questionnaires but 497 of the 662 put down their names. They have been invited to public meetings Thursday and Friday night in Duncan at which they will be able to state their views more fully.

"The conference will likely result in study and action groups to deal with problems.

More than 6,000 questionnaires were distributed but only about 10 per cent were returned. Those who took the trouble to answer appear to be the more active Catholics: 286 of the 662 are members of church organizations.

About one third of the answers came from persons with a college education and 59 of them had done post-graduate study. The educational level of those answering is obviously higher than the average in the diocese.

While the answers came from a group that does not form a statistically accurate cross-section of the diocese, it is generally accepted that the survey does reflect the thinking and concerns of the majority.

The survey showed that one of the most unsettling aspects of Catholic life centres on the birth control issue. A majority expressed disappointment that this issue has not yet been settled.

It is under study by an advisory commission set up by Pope Paul which is considering whether advances in medical science and theology permit any development of the traditional thinking about artificial contraception.

Bishop De Roo said he has long known that birth control is a serious issue among Catholics "but this response shows the need to tackle it before we can come to grips with other problems of married life. It is a critical issue but it is also one of the most complex."

Some of the replies were inconsistent. Many admitted they are both pleased by some developments and bothered by others. For example, most approve the use of English in the Mass but some object to the priest facing the people during Mass. Until fairly recently he faced the altar.

The replies showed that the more progressive Catholics, those with a commitment to Church renewal — are the most critical of the clergy. Many suggested that priests do not seem to be as committed to the idea of renewal as some lay people.

Certainly, the laity want changes. Two-thirds of the answers came from people who agreed "it's time things changed."

Bishop De Roo said this is "an indication we have sat around too long. It gives a positive picture of forward looking people."

The overwhelming majority, 517, said they liked the liturgical changes which, among other things, involve the use of English instead of Latin in most of the Mass.

The survey showed that the Second Vatican Council had one big effect on 392 persons: it brought them closer to the Protestants. And 582 of those polled said they approve this.

One question asked was: Are Catholic schools doing a good job? A total of 334 answered "yes" but practically all of them qualified their approval.

Many referred to the financial difficulty in operating Catholic schools and said they do not have enough money to provide a really excellent education. Some questioned the wisdom of imposing a financial strain to educate only a limited number of the Catholic school population. Others wondered if separate schools are a good idea, even if Catholics can afford them.

The survey showed resentment of the time and energy spent on fund-raising, particularly by such activities as bingo. Everyone seems to be fed up with fund-raising but no one had any suggestions for alternative sources of income.

Many said they would like to be able to go to their priests to talk over problems but the priests are too busy to see them.

Several of the comments suggested more sermons to explain recent developments in Catholic thinking.

Several persons stated, the sermons need to be preached "by good preachers."

Death Reaches For Fisherman Asleep at Helm

By TERRY IZZARD

Ten minutes meant the difference between life and death for fisherman Dick Ericson today, when he fell asleep at the helm.

With only 100 yards to go, the gillnetter Cynthia sank low in the water and stopped.

DAWN DRAMA

The timely end to what had been a two hour drama, came shortly before dawn.

Keeping a parallel course with the fast-moving gillnetter, he tried whistles and a loud hailer to waken the sleeping skipper.

But his efforts were in vain.

'IT WAS HOPELESS'

"It was hopeless," he said today. "The boat was going too fast for us to even keep up with."

Carried by the strong current, the 35-foot fishboat edged closer and closer into shore.

With each turn, water poured over the stern and into the open hatch.

Ironically, it was the very water which threatened to swamp the boat, taking the sleeping skipper with it, that saved his life.

At the very moment when a collision seemed inevitable, the sea water got to the motors and stalled them.

Said Capt. Irving: "Another two turns and he'd have hit the breakwater. He's a lucky man."

"I didn't know what was happening," he said as he surveyed the damage later.

"The shore was only a hundred yards away and there were two other boats close by. I got the biggest shock of my life."

The New Westminster skipper looked sadly at water pouring out of the $10,500 vessel as it stood on the ways at McKay Cormack shipyard today and said:

"I was going to pay my last installment on it this weekend. Then it would have been mine."

A fisherman for the past 22 years, he is no newcomer when it comes to sinking boats.

Only last summer he sank his last vessel the Pat Lynn, when he ran aground.

And several years ago he sank the Pat Lynn I under similar circumstances.

However, he's not going to be discouraged and will set off again as soon as his boat is repaired.

Of his falling asleep, he said: "I hadn't slept for two days and I guess I just dropped off."

Sub-Trades Resume Work At University

Victoria carpenters today agreed to let sub-trades resume work on University of Victoria social sciences complex.

It will be available when classes resume next month.

But the two-week carpenter-contractor lockout dispute means continuing on a split campus basis for several weeks into the winter term.

Carpenter and university spokesmen met this morning to reach an agreement to avoid a critical classroom pinch when the university vacates its Lansdowne campus.

Work on the Gordon Head building program will proceed wherever possible without carpenters.

MEETING TODAY

Carpenters were scheduled to hold a similar meeting this afternoon with Greater Victoria school district representatives so that work could resume on nearly-finished public school additions in time for the new term.

Major contractors including Burns and Dutton Ltd. at Uvic have locked out carpenters in their dispute over a new contract.

When carpenters put up picket lines in protest, other organized trades were unable to carry on and projects came to a halt.

Union president John Schibli said pickets were removed on condition that no carpenters would be employed on the university projects until a contract settlement is reached, and that the union would have access to the site to ensure that no carpenters are working.

"What carpenter work remains to be done won't affect use of the building," he said.

Work on the unpicketted arts-education complex continues but occupancy will not be possible by term opening.

3,000 STUDENTS

Greater Victoria school district is committed to occupy the Lansdowne campus buildings known as the Paul and Ewing buildings as the university moves out.

"The university is delighted with the spirit of co-operation shown by the carpenters and joiners' local 1598 of the United Brotherhood in removing their pickets from the social sciences building," Uvic president Dr. Malcolm Tayolr said.

"Although our second building will not be completed by the start of term we will be able to take other emergency measures to accommodate our classes and make it possible for the school board to move into Ewing and Paul buildings on schedule," he said.

CRANBROOK SITE?

Uvic Expanding To Kootenays Taylor Hints

One year from now the University of Victoria may have a campus in the East Kootenay, it was learned today.

The matter is still in the preliminary planning stage and no definite decision is expected until the University Senate meets next month.

At that time plans will likely be presented to the Senate calling for an affiliated first-year campus in Cranbrook, B.C., with facilities for teaching 70 East Kootenay students freshman English, history, mathematics, chemistry, physics, biology and French.

Slated opening date would be September 1967.

The probable site of the campus is an abandoned armories building in Cranbrook, already equipped with small lecture rooms, and a common room. Mt. Baker secondary school would be tapped for laboratories and some scientific equipment.

NEGOTIATIONS

Negotiations have been proceeding for several months between Cranbrook school board officials and a Uvic delegation headed by university president Dr. Malcom Taylor and including Dean Alex Wood and Registrar Ron Jeffels.

A Cranbrook board spokesman today said "the University of Victoria is most enthusiastic. We hope to start in September of next year."

Dr. Taylor was somewhat more cautious. "The matter is under serious consideration," he said. "We are favourably disposed toward any advances in higher education in the interior of the province.

"We are receptive to the general idea," he added.

Girl Guides Become Girl Guards

They were among 52 girls in the province to receive four days of specialized conservation instruction at the camp and take part in special tests and manoeuvres.

Camp activities included tree identification, map and compass work, nature trail activities, weather forecasting and fire prevention.

Escaped Youth Sought in City

He is described as being about five-foot seven-inches tall, wearing a khaki shirt, blue denim trousers and running shoes.

UVIC SUMMER SESSION ENDING WITH TWO DAYS EXAMINATIONS

Nearly 1,000 University of Victoria summer students are facing the days of reckoning today and Friday.

A two-day exam session winds up the university's seven-week summer session. Students are writing exams in the Clearihue Building and the gymnasium on the Gordon Head campus, and in the Young Building on the old Lansdowne campus.

Academic activity resumes September 19 when fall term lectures begin.

Hip Waders Become Floaters In Fisherman Life-Saving Test

By TERRY IZZARD

Among the styles displayed were hip-length waders, Indian sweater, heavy-duty parkas and fishing caps.

Led by director Dr. James Hatter, department officials splashed into the pool fully rigged for a day's fishing.

Complete with tackle bag, 45-year-old Dr. Hatter swam four breadths of the pool and then announced: "It's not as bad as I thought."

A casual onlooker would have thought he was the Mad Hatter rather than an expert conservationist.

But in fact he was experimenting in saving lives.

The full-dress swim was designed to test the problems of fishermen who accidentally fall in the water.

Prompted by several drownings over the past few years, it proved one thing: That panic is probably one of the major causes of death.

Although conditions were ideal for today's tests, every swimmer was able to manage several breadths of the swim pool.

The hip-length waders, which were thought to be responsible for dragging people under, actually served as a float.

Said Dr. Hatter: "With a belt round the waist, the waders remained full of air and helped keep me afloat.

"So did the sweater until it became waterlogged."

"Once the clothes became soaked with water," he said, "it was virtually impossible to drag my arms out of the water.

However, all the swimmers admitted the problems would be greatly accentuated in a cold, swift-flowing stream.

On hand to witness the experiment — first of its kind — was deputy recreation and conservation minister, Dr. David Turner.

Department officials will hammer out the findings of their swim and make suggestions on ways of improving chances of survival.

Ask The Times

Q. Has the United States Medicare program come into effect? How, briefly, does it work? S. H.

A. The federally-organized medicare program for people 65 years and over began July 1 last. On that date every American of that age automatically became eligible for up to 90 days' hospitalization and 10 days care in a nursing home with a major share of the cost borne by the social security system. About 17 million older citizens—those who had agreed to pay an extra $3 per month—would have a secondary benefit: government aid on doctor bills. Of the 7,300 eligible institutions in the United States, some 6,700 are co-operating with the program.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted [illegible]

Yugoslavia Trying Evolution To 'Open' Communist Society

By ANATOLE SHUB
The Washington Post

The country and its "revisionist" Communist party are simultaneously in the throes of a political purge, a socio-economic reform, a change of generations and an ideological crisis.

A "revolution from above," with Marshal Tito personally giving a strong lead, has now begun to gather momentum "from below" from the thousands of honest Communists and ordinary citizens hurt and disillusioned by the crimes and blunders committed over the years in the name of Communism.

The great question in the months ahead is whether the "liberal" Communist faction, now in clear command after six years of bitter inner-party struggle, will be able to control the process. Can they, as they hope, gradually combine one-party tutelage with an open society and the rule of law? Or will they have to yield, as in Hungary and Poland a decade ago, either to resurgent hard liners or to a popular movement for western-style democracy?

Yugoslavia is already far more open, in nearly every way, than any other Communist country. The Western tourists now enjoying the glories of the Adriatic coast are being counted in millions. Hundreds of thousands of Yugoslavs cross back and forth daily into Italy, Austria and other neighboring countries. Nearly 300,000 are now working in Western Europe.

Western newspapers, magazines, books and films are freely available. In June, too, the regime made peace with the Roman Catholic church by restoring relations with the vatican.

The Yugoslav federal assembly has increasingly been criticizing the executive branch, rejecting or amending government proposals, and voting along lines of regional and economic interest. One amendment, the press reported casually the other day, was passed by a vote of 68 to 51 with 13 abstentions.

Private enterprise, too, has gotten a new deal. On the coast, banks are giving "privatniks" loans to spruce up their rooming houses, restaurants, fishing boats and other tourist facilities. In the fertile valleys, individual farmers finally encouraged by higher prices, easy terms for fertilizer, and the promise of new credits for tractors — have just produced a record wheat harvest.

Yet all of these developments essentially preceded the two decisive victories of the "liberal" faction.

● At the third plenum of the party central committee on March 11, there came the decisive breakthrough for the long-disputed economic reform — which provides greater independence for enterprises, strengthens the localities and regions against the Belgrade bureaucracy, welcomes Western capital into Yugoslavia, and pledges a convertible dinar by 1970.

● At the fourth plenum on Brioni Island July 1, the central committee formally ousted "heir apparent" Aleksandar Rankovic, declared war on the "invisible government" and "strong-arm methods" of the UDBA (State Security Service), and appointed a blue-ribbon commission to rethink the organization of the party and its role in society.

The fall of Rankovic itself remains a mystery. Particularly in Serbia, which was his home base and which traditionally has controlled the police in Yugoslavia, the feeling is strong that "we have not yet heard the real story." There is skepticism with regard both to the charges — that Rankovic's UDBA planted microphones in Tito's apartment — and to the official timetable, according to which the anti-Rankovic movement began only a month before his outer.

High Communists privately have already begun to de-emphasize the "bugging" story as "unimportant" and to insist that Rankovic was ousted primarily because of his resistance to a political and economic "new course."

Whatever the causes, the consequences of Rankovic's ouster have already been considerable. The high drama on Brioni has been followed by dozens of lesser dramas almost every day. Meetings all over the country have exposed, attacked and removed a host of alleged petty tyrants and racketeers. The charges have included rape, police brutality, smuggling, forced labor and a hundred forms of corruption.

Many Cases

The cases are breaking thick and fast, as the initial probe of the UDBA has uncovered links with Communist party functionaries, government officials, directors of factories and other enterprise. A very conservative estimate is that hundreds will be prosecuted and jailed, thousands will be removed from office and expelled from the party, and tens of thousands of others (who "went along") will be demoted, pensioned, warned or otherwise disciplined.

It has been announced that the UDBA itself will be sharply reduced in size — although neither the old nor the new figures have been disclosed. The biggest changes, however, are due in the economy, and an index of how sweeping they may be was the first set of re-elections this month for factory directors in Serbia. Of 546 directors, 70 were removed. "Far too few," a high Serbian Communist remarked. "We'll do much better in the next round."

The stated purpose of the purge movement is to replace primitive, inept old partisan warriors whom "life has passed by" with professionally qualified younger men who enjoy the workers' genuine confidence. Yet the dramatic meetings also appear to have begun to break the spell of fear instilled by the UDBA over the years among rank-and-file Communists, workers and ordinary citizens.

The movement thus clearly works two ways. On the one hand, it has opened a Pandora's box of old injustices and resentments which may get out of Communist control. On the other hand, it has also, undeniably, released a surge of new hope, idealism and critical thinking among sincere Communists long discouraged by bitter compromises.

The reformers themselves stress that the scandals and purges "are not the main point." The real task, they say, is to create new conditions in the country and inside the party itself which will make the old bossism, fear and corruption impossible and fulfill the old Titoist promise of "workers' self-management."

Only 118,185 'Canadians' According to the Census

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA—Our national census is taken every decade. The last was in 1961. Until the subsequent one, a shelf-bending series of reports issues slowly from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This week there came one of the reports with information which blights one of my nationalistic hopes.

Fisher

The report is titled: The Origins of the Canadian Population. Remember that this refers to the situation in 1961. Our total population then was 18.2 million.

Before the 1951 census, that is from 1870 to 1941, the census taker asked the citizen what the ethnic origin of his or her father was. For example, if the citizen's mother was English in origin and the father German, he would be classed as having a German ethnic origin.

This is all in the feudal tradition: From father to son to son. Knowing as we do the influence of mothers on children, we tend to discount this kind of tracing of ancestral origin. But, wait, it isn't as superficial as it seems.

Beginning in 1951, DBS made it acceptable for a citizen to reply that his ethnic origin was "unkown." This makes sense, especially for the native born with several generations of forefathers who were native born. In addition, if a citizen insisted that he was a Canadian, the census takers were instructed to accept it.

OK! So the census planners wanted this analysis of ethnic origin. They sought it through this question of what your father was. In addition, they asked what your mother tongue was, i.e., the first language you learned.

How did we respond to this opportunity we had to insist we were Canadian? Not worth a damn! In 1961, over 84 per cent of our people had been born in Canada. In numbers, some 15.4 million. Only 118,185 reported their origin as Canadian. This figure does not include Indians and Eskimos.

That is, much less than one per cent of Canadians had the persistence to assert their Canadianism. Another 70,163 claimed their ethnic origin was unkown.

This is striking evidence to support the old mosaic jazz about Canada. We accept the hyphenated Canadian line so thoroughly that those of us who deplore it or who long for a clean identity are obviously baying at the moon.

It's understandable why the French Canadians are touchy about this aspect of the census. There was a pre-census hassle in 1959 and 1960 over the census forms. It was created by French-Canadian nationalists who insisted that this question must be retained so that their input to or share of the total population could be clearly marked. On the other hand, the rest of us did have the chance to wipe out hyphenated status and rejected it.

This rejection is even more discouraging when you look at the dropping percentage of our people with a British ethnic origin. In 1871 it was 60.5 per cent, in 1911 55.5 per cent. In 1961 it was down to 43.8 per cent. The French have hung fairly steady at the 30 per cent range.

Thus the two striking changes in ethnic composition, i.e., a dwindling British stock and a growing European stock, particularly Italian, German, and Dutch, has not increased the demand to be unhyphenated.

This contradicts a feeling I got as a politician that the strongest clamor for a straight Canadian identity, for something like the embracing American which covers everyone in the U.S., came from non-British stock people, especially the Italians. In contrast I'd felt that those of British origin, especially the Scots and Irish, were the most intent on remembering the old traditions. It is clear now that almost everyone remembers and prizes them.

★ ★ ★

Another factor is apparent from the statistics on mother tongue. A definite minority (I'd guess about one-third of those born in this country of other than British and French stock) had a mother tongue other than English. Only the Italian Canadians born here had over a 50 per cent figure of learning Italian as their mother tongue.

That is, the integration by language into the dominant two languages goes very well with second and third generations. But this integration doesn't apparently encourage them to slough off their ethnic origin.

I tried to soften the blow of these figures by arguing to myself that since adults answer for children and wives so often for husbands when the census taker comes around, therefore the emphasis upon the older tradition was bound to have an inordinate influence.

But I keep returning to that measly 118,185 conscious Canadians. There's no use being despondent. Those of us who assert Canadianism must begin to spread the word for the next census. In 1971, next time; insist on Canadian, be Canadian!

Pacific Intertidal Areas Exceedingly Rich in Life

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Intertidal areas and adjacent parts of our coast are often exceedingly rich in marine life, richer even than the depths of the ocean. The main reason for this is that food in some form or other is abundant in these shallow waters. Even in quiet places such as lagoons and estuaries where the bottom tends to be muddy life is prolific for here great quantities of organic debris collect to form an almost limitless supply of nutriment.

Dr. Carl

Here the disintegrating animal and plant remains from mats of scum on the surface of the mud or become mixed in the bottom deposits. Layered material is easily gathered by creatures equipped with scraping devices or with sticky tentacles; buried substances are extracted by those which swallow mud and sand during the feeding process. Thus most of the organic detritus is harvested by mud inhabiting animals after it has settled.

Material still in suspension is also utilized but only by animals that have special devices for filtering out the fine particles. Most clams are adept at this and depend to a large extent upon this source of food. Associated with clams is another group of filter feeders including the mud shrimp and ghost shrimp which are often found in burrows in these muddy habitats. Since these are crustaceans and much more complex in body organization than molluscs they have evolved an entirely different system of food gathering.

Both kinds of shrimps are lobster-like in general appearance but small in size; the ghost shrimp, the larger of the two, seldom exceeds four inches in length and many mud shrimps are less than two inches. They each bear a pair of pinchers or claws but in the ghost shrimp these are rather large, particularly in the male, and one is very much bigger than the other.

The exaggerated structure is a multipurpose tool. It can be used in offence and defence, probably in sparring with rival males, and in this connection it may serve to identify males from females as in the case of fiddler crabs in which the husbands also have outsized hands. The big claw also functions as a digging tool in excavating the burrow much as a cutting blade or scraper on a bulldozer. Finally this extraordinary appendage can be used for plugging the entrance-way to the tunnel to keep out intruders.

Other structures associated with the mouth and the gill chambers combining to form a pumping and filtering system used for gathering the microscopic bits of food suspended in the water above the burrow. Of course a certain amount of circulation is maintained to bring dissolved oxygen to the gills, but when feeding the flow of water is stepped up by increased activity of the pumping mechanism. This creates a visible current of water carrying food particles into the burrow and into the mouth region where the edible material is extracted by specially designed appendages. The water is then forced through the gill chamber exit shaft constructed by the shrimp for this purpose.

Ghost shrimps are usually dead white in color, hence their common name, but sometimes individuals may be pinkish or iridescent. Their cousins, the mud shrimps, are fairly drab and live up to their name in general appearance. Both are edible but have a definite muddy flavor. Since their body covering is relatively soft both species are preyed upon by fishes and other searchers of the mud flats. Consequently they seldom leave their individual burrows.

Air Pollution and Man

By Dr. P. J. LAWTHER
An Article in Spectrum, British Science Review.

Dirty air has been blamed at one time or another for causing almost every ill suffered by man.

Today we know it to be capable of producing distress, or even death, in patients suffering from advanced diseases of lungs or heart and it is suspected of playing an important part in the development of chronic bronchitis. It may also be a factor in the production of lung cancer. It certainly causes annoyance and material damage and the pollution which was accepted during the last century as a sign of affluence is now regarded by society as an intolerable nuisance.

The nature of air pollution is hardly less complex than its known or suspected effects on health.

"Traditional" pollutants are the smoke and sulphurous compounds which are the result of burning coal and oil. Newer pollutants arise from chemical industry and from motor vehicles.

Figures representing the gross emissions of various pollutants from different sources are often quoted but these are of much less relevance to clinical effects than are the ground level (or lung level) concentrations.

Most coal, coke and heavier oils contain compounds of sulphur as impurities. When burned most of this is emitted as sulphur dioxide, a small percentage comes off as sulphur trioxide and in the case of coal and coke some remains in the ash. In high concentrations all these pollutants can irritate the breathing passages.

Lid on Town

Usually turbulence in the air ensures that the pollutants put into it are rapidly diluted and removed. This scavenging mechanism fails during temperature inversions when, in still weather, cold air near the ground comes to underlie warmer air aloft. The effect of this is to put a lid on a town; under this lid accumulate the smoke and gases emitted from fires, industrial processes and motor vehicles.

During such fumigations the effects of air pollution are most clearly manifest. Pollution, usually measured in terms of smoke and sulphur dioxide (which are but indicators of pollution by a myriad compounds) rises to heights oved twenty times the "normal" winter average.

Fog often appears, too. During these "smogs" (smoke polluted fogs) death rates rise sharply. Analyses of the deaths show that the brunt is borne by the infirm, the very old and very young.

People suffering from advanced respiratory or cardiac disease may find the irritation provided by this pollution to be a final intolerable burden; the inadequate systems of such people, of the aged and of premature infants, fail under the stress.

Less dramatic increases in pollution produce measurable effects on chronic disease. When statistics, such as applications for hospital beds or sickness absence, are studied in relation to indices of air pollution it can be seen that increase in morbidity follow increase in pollution to over 1mgm.-cu. metre smoke and over 0.25 perts per million SO2 fairly consistently.

From clinical observations it would seem reasonable to attribute much of the effect of pollution to its ability to cause increase in the resistance of the airways. In other words, people start wheezing.

Obviously it is of prime importance to identify the pollutant or combination of pollutants which cause this. Much experimental work is being devoted to the search. Sulphur dioxide and sulphuric acid are corrosive chemicals which in high concentrations, and in sensitive subjects, can produce acute respiratory irritation and distress. Not unnaturally, there, these compounds have been held suspect for many years and much research has been done on their effects.

More Subtle

However, no experiemental work published to date has demonstrated consistent effects when these compounds have been inhaled in concentrations such as are found in town air. The irritant is likely to be a more subtle compound or combination of contaminants.

Air pollution may be an important factor in chronic bronchitis. This disease shows itself by a chronic cough which at first produces clear mucoid phlegm. Later the phlegm becomes purulent and the patient suffers from recurrent bouts of acute bronchitis. Ultimately irreparable damage is done to the lungs from which emphysema and heart failure result.

There is good reason to believe that cigarette smoking is the most potent factor in producing this hypersecretion of mucus and that the changes described die down if this irritant is withdrawn.

The second stage in the development of chronic bronchitis — the establishment of bacterial infection — is serious because changes take place which cannot be reversed. The damage to the airways and to the lung is accompanied by increasing breathlessness and, ultimately, by strain on the cardio-vascular system.

Urban Factor

There is good evidence from epidemiological studies that this phase is related more closely to some urban factor than to the smoking of cigarettes. The urban factor may well be air pollution in which case it would probably act by facilitating the establishment and persistence of infection of the respiratory tract. The effect of various pollutants on the behaviour of bacteria is being studied.

Lung cancer is found more commonly in towns than in rural districts and coal smoke has properly been suspected of causing the disease because it contains polycyclic hydrocarbons. Some epidemiological studies supported this view. Thy demonstrated a close relationship between the smokiness of some towns and the mortality from lung cancer in them.

There are, however, some serious obstacles to the acceptance of the hypothesis that air pollution is the cause of lung cancer we see in our midst. The relationship between lung cancer and benzopyrene content of town air is far from uniform even in Britain; high figures for towns are also seen in countries such as Norway and Finland where the cities are relatively unpolluted by polycyclic hydrocarbons.

Probably the most serious blow to the argument is the fact that lung cancer has become increasingly common as pollution from coal smoke has been declining. The disease has rapidly increased in prevalence in this century as pollution has gone down and it is so closely associated with the habit of smoking cigarettes as to leave little reasonable doubt as to its main cause.

Many have sought new pollutants which might be blamed for causing this recent rise in lung cancer deaths. Some have accused the diesel engine, with little reason. The smoke from badly adjusted or ill-kept diesel engines may contain traces of polycyclic hydrocarbon but there is no evidence from extensive surveys of people and environments that this engine is a cause of lung cancer.

Good Candidate

The petrol engine is a better candidate for suspicion in that it has been in use longer. Yet there is, happily, no evidence from the study of mortality or morbidity statistics to associate the petrol engine with lung cancer.

The petrol engine, unlike the diesel, emits carbon monoxide which is a dangerous asphyxiant which, in concentrations too low to cause dramatic symptoms may yet cause impairment of judgement and the performance of skilled tasks.

Interior Carpenters In Revolt

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Kamloops Local 1540 of Okanagan District Council of Carpenters along with locals in the Okanagan, revoked their agreement with the Provincial Council of Carpenters on all bargaining matters

Harry Embleton, president of the Kamloops local, said today that letters were sent Tuesday to the Labor Relations Board and to Art Leam, executive secretary of the Provincial Council of Carpenters, advising that members here voted to revoke any agreement with the provincial council.

The statement came following a report from Vancouver that the provincial body said the agreement reached between contractors and carpenters in Kamloops for an eight-hour day had no legal status because of the province-wide certification of the union.

SMILING in middle of ticklish situation, Prime Minister Pearson appears with railway union leaders in front of his home Wednesday night after a late two-hour meeting on threatened rail walkout. Mr. Pearson declined to disclose details of the discussion. (CP Wirephoto.)

VIET NAM HEARINGS TOLD

'Yellow-Bellied Cowards' Trying to Stop Trains

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chairman of the U.S. House Committee on Un-American Activities said today Americans who try to stop troop trains and munitions shipments to Viet Nam are "yellow-bellied cowards."

Rep. Edwin Willis (D—La.) sat in on the third day of hearings on legislation to make it a federal crime to impede military operations or to aid forces opposing U.S. troops.

In contrast to the first two days of tumultuous hearings in which some 40 persons were taken from the committee room and arrested, today's morning session was quiet. There were no incidents before the panel recessed for lunch after hearing two hours of testimony by a California law official on the war protest movement in his state.

Willis commented during testimony of Edwin Meese, deputy county attorney for Alameda County, Calif., who resumed testimony on the Viet Nam Day Committee of Berkeley, Calif.

Meese said the VDC steered clear of actually urging law violations in preparations for demonstrations Oct. 15-16, 1965, but made clear in their discussions that such incidents might be planned.

Willis interrupted Meese to say he wanted to make clear that the committee was not aiming its hearings at dissent against the Viet Nam war, but against overt acts.

"In my humble opinion people who do those things fall short of loyalty to the United States," he said. "Let's call them what they are — yellow-bellied cowards."

Orbiter Gets Shot Of Moon's Back Side

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Lunar Orbiter clicked its shutter at the bright surface of the moon today and snapped additional pictures as it ducked around the mysterious dark side to process the film.

Telemetry from the spacecraft confirmed that the 90-minute processing was satisfactory and that the film had cycled through the sensors.

"The processing went well but the proof of the pudding is in seeing the pictures when they come back this afternoon," said a spokesman at the jet propulsion laboratory.

He said the camera snapped about four degrees of what is considered the back side of the moon.

Hydro Reinstates Driver, Others Out

B.C. Hydro has reinstated one truck driver whose dismissal caused two work stoppages on the Arrow Dam project but will not rehire 29 others who supported him.

The reinstatement of Thomas Easton, on the order of an arbitrator, was announced Wednesday by Columbia Hydro Constructors Ltd., representing the crown corporation and Foundation-Dravo Ltd. which is building the Arrow Dam on the Columbia River.

Mr. Easton was fired July 26 for an alleged infraction of the work hours and 29 other teamsters subsequently walked off their jobs July 27 and July 29.

The company said "Mr. Easton's reinstatement will not affect their position."

E. R. Peck, general manager of the company, said he was not unhappy with the decision "as I believe that Tom Easton's reinstatement is a vindication of the grievance proceedure.

"In other words, by following the agreed proceedure for settling disputes, the union has achieved something which the men failed to achieve through wildcat action."

Inventor Torpedoes Own Story

LONDON (CP) — The Daily Mirror says Joseph Papp has confessed that his tale of crossing the Atlantic in a home-made submarine was a hoax.

The paper, in a Paris report, says the 33-year-old Hungarian-born Canadian flew to Amsterdam on the Dutch airline KLM last week, then travelled by rail to Brest, France, via Paris.

It says he dreamed up the stunt because he couldn't bear to admit to his friends that a submarine, which he had spent six years of his spare time and all his savings building, wouldn't work.

Another London paper, The Daily Express, says in an editorial Papp will leave Europe "a little more exhilarated for his visit."

The Express says:

"A story so bold and so engaging, backed by such an unblushing lack of evidence, puts Mr. Papp in the class of the great hoaxers of the past. And, like them, he has caused much hilarity and done no harm."

POLICE DOG CAUSED FATAL PANIC

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters)—A magistrate said today that police taking a dog into a packed dancehall caused a stampede of the Negro crowd in which 10 persons died.

At an inquest, Magistrate L. W. Moster found that 10 persons, including six women, died of asphyxia in a mass exodus down the stairs of the club in February.

He found there had been illicit dealing in liquor by the organizer of the dance and many people in the hall at the time were under the influence of liquor.

But the situation had not justified police taking a dog into the crowded hall nor ordering it to bark at and bite people present, he said.

ROBERTS

Police Ring Airport

Third Suspect In Murders

LONDON (AP)—Armed police sealed off London Airport today in the hunt for Harry Roberts, 30, "the third man" sought in the killing of three Scotland Yard detectives.

Every one of the thousands of passengers leaving the crowded airport was put under police scrutiny after a tip that Roberts had been seen in airport departure lounges.

The tip came from an airport employee who once shared a room with the fugitive. Other British and European airports were alerted in case Roberts had slipped through the net.

Across London, hundreds more police combed the undergrowth of Epping Forest, a 6,000-acre playground bordering the eastern suburbs.

A woman who spent Sunday night with Roberts in a Bloomsbury hotel told police she travelled with him to a pub in the heart of the forest.

She said Roberts told her he intends to hide out in the forest until the hunt dies down. Police established that before taking the bus out of London he bought a tent and other camping gear.

As spotter planes were called in police warned that Roberts almost certainly is armed and that private citizens should not try to bring him in alone.

A massive dragnet that stretched into Scotland Wednesday led to the arrest of another suspect, John Duddy, 37.

Duddy was grabbed without a fight in a Glasgow slum tenement just 27 hours after John Edward Witney, the first man arrested in the manhunt, was ordered held without bail on charges of murdering the three detectives "with others."

Non-Ops Picket Montreal Yard

MONTREAL (CP)—Some 1,000 non-operating railway employees left their jobs here today, swelling the ranks of a wildcat walkout that began Wednesday when 95 members went on strike at the CNR Point St. Charles yard to protest slowness in contract negotiations.

Picketers from the yard, watched closely by police, walked up and down before yard entrances calling on other of Pointe St. Charles 3,000 employees to join the strike and set up lines before the railway's 800 - man Bonaventure freight centre.

The strike spread after lunch-time to 100 electricians at the Canadian Pacific Railway's Angus repair shops who refused to return to work saying they were fed up in delays in contract negotiations.

A CNR spokesman said none of the railway's daily operations at either yard had yet been disrupted by the strike since half of the basic day staff of 2,000 have so far failed to join the walkout.

Most of those on strike are members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers or of seven unions belonging to the associated shop-craft unions and are not concerned with day-to-day maintenance of railway services, he said.

BOO LABOR MAN

CBRT spokesman J. A. Pelletier who went out to the Pointe St. Charles yards earlier in the day in an attempt to persuade the strikers to return to work was booed off the premises after he had been there only about five minutes.

"I was called every name under the sun," he said later.

"I won't go back there again. These men are behaving foolishly and there is no use trying to reason with them."

Mr. Pelletier said he was disappointed the men did not wait for the results of a meeting between union leaders to be held here Monday to set an official date for a nation-wide rail strike.

He said he hoped a walkout begun by some 120 men at the CNR's Windsor, Ont., depot early today will end soon as union officials there seemed to be having more luck in talking to the men.

PGE Employees Vote On 50c Wage Boost

About one-quarter of the government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway's work force began voting today on a conciliation board recommendation that they receive a 50-cents-an-hour wage increase spread over two years.

The report delivered by board chairman Magistrate Les Bewley of Vancouver was handed down in a dispute involving the railway and its 400-member federation of PGE employees including carmen, machinists, pipefitters, clerks and electricians.

There was no immediate comment from either side regarding the report's suggestion aimed at ending the traditional pattern in which PGE wages were automatically tied to those paid by the national railways.

Magistrate Bewley said there were "no easy answers in this dispute" because both sides had valid but irreconcilable arguments.

He summarized the crown corporation's position as being a willingness to pay the national railway scales but no more because it would harm the PGE's already damaged competitive position.

AT DISADVANTAGE

The company pointed out it could not unilaterally raise its prices to meet higher costs and that it suffered a built-in disadvantage as Canada's third-largest railway because it did not share in the $105 million annual grants to the CPR and CNR by the federal government.

The report said that after careful examination of a recent wage survey and recent settlements for woodworkers and longshoremen, it recommends a 25-cents-an-hour wage increase retroactive to Jan. 1 and another 25-cent boost next Jan. 1.

Other recommendations called for: Annual vacation of two weeks after one year service and three after 10 years; union dues check-off; eight statutory holidays; overtime at 1½-time for the first three hours and double-time thereafter with 2½-time for work on statutory holidays; and accumulative sick leave allowance of one day per month to a maximum unused accumulation of 120 days.

HOUSE MEETING

Union Leaders Present Case To Pearson

OTTAWA (CP)—Five railway union leaders presented the labor viewpoint to Prime Minister Pearson Wednesday night as he and his cabinet began planning to meet a threatening national railway strike.

Mr. Pearson spent two hours with the group at his Sussex Drive home following a full day of cabinet conferences on the impending crisis, expected to break within the next three weeks.

A joint strike date will be announced next Monday or Tuesday by 18 unions representing almost 120,000 railway workers. Demanding wage increases averaging about 90 cents an hour, they have rejected conciliation board reports recommending a 40 - cent increase spread over two years.

About 100,000 of the workers involved are in non-operating categories with a present day average of $2.22 an hour. The rest are conductors and trainmen paid between $6,500 and $8,000 a year.

Mr. Pearson, Labor Minister Nicholson and the five union leaders emerged from the prime minister's residence just before 11 p.m. EDT.

"We had a very informative and helpful discussion," the prime minister told reporters. "No, we weren't talking about a settlement. It was just an informal exchange."

DECLINE COMMENT

The union leaders, who requested the meeting, declined to enlarge on Mr. Pearson's remarks.

On hand were Frank Hall, executive assistant with the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks; William J. Smith, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers; W. P. Kelly, Canadian head of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; R. C. Smith

LINKED WITH MAO IN PEKING

Lin Second, Tries Harder

PEKING (Reuters) — Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung and Defence Minister Lin Piao today stood side by side to acknowledge cheers at one of Peking's biggest-ever mass rallies.

Observers said the occasion appeared to have been staged to present 59-year-old Lin to the people as Mao's heir-apparent.

It was the first time Lin was among Chinese leaders addressing a mass rally from the high balcony of the golden - roofed Tien An Man (heavenly peace) Gate and also his first public appearance in the capital for three years.

About 1,000,000 persons took part in the rally which lasted more than seven hours and was officially held in honor of China's "great proletarian culture revolution" — the campaign of criticism of alleged opponents of Mao's ideology which has been accompanied by sweeping purges of Communist party officials and intellectuals.

The army and its official newspaper have played the role of pace-setters in the campaign during which Lin, one of the Communist party's five vice-chairmen and first-ranking of China's 16 vice-premiers, has emerged as Mao's righthand man and supreme interpreter of his ideology.

Contrary to usual practice, foreign correspondents were not invited to today's rally and those who tried to approach the Tien An Man Square to get glimpses of the proceedings were turned back by lines of civilian officials.

The entire rally was televised, with closeup pictures of Mao and Lin, invariably close together, each of the dozen or so times they came out on the balcony to spend a few minutes with other Chinese leaders.

Both wore army uniforms and both looked in good health.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

Disgruntled salmon fishermen may find comfort in knowing that complaints at the fishing in local waters were being registered 120 years ago.

Captain, the Honorable John Gordon (whose name was given to Gordon Head), commander of HMS America, 50 guns, was bitter.

"What a country," he said, "where the salmon will not take the fly."

And when a deer escaped him in the woods of Cedar Hill, he said he "would not give one inch of the barren hills of Scotland for all he saw around him."

The historian Walbran said his views were significant in the subsequent treaties which resulted in Oregon and the San Juans being ceded away by Britain. Gordon had sent unfavorable reports home on the whole west coast area.

The moral of the story is directed at the powers who permit destruction of spawning beds and over-harvesting of salmon by commercial interests. Never underestimate the anger of a skunked fisherman.

Vancouver Island can now claim it is the hometown of four movie stars. There they were on the screen at Capitol Theatre the other night, C. C. "Carpy" Carpenter, Victoria businessman who "ranches" at Prospect Lake, and Dave Bowron of Duncan and their horses, Fanny and Quiz. (Quiz actually was borrowed from local trainer and farrier Roy Jewel.)

The foursome appeared in Run Appaloosa Run, a Disney production about the famous spotted Indian horses. California friends led Carpy and Dave into rough-riding parts in a suicide race sequence—a chance they jumped at—and the filming was done some months ago at Omak, Washington.

The busy couple were Carl and Elly Andriessen who had just arrived from Fort Frances, Manitoba. They were living out of their station wagon while house-hunting.

George had a friend with a house for sale. Carl and Elly moved in next day.

Good Samaritan George was taken to dinner. Carl and Elly think Victoria is the friendliest city anywhere. George thinks Fort Frances must have a great deal to offer too.

"There is a swing towards comedy and escapist entertainment," he said, "and I think sex is here to stay. There seems to be no substitute for it at the box office."

Mr. Price is married to the former Mary Grant of Victoria and their four-year-old daughter is named Mary Victoria.

Grass, Brush Fires Busy Fire Fighters

Saanich firemen battled a stubborn outbreak on Oak Hill in the vicinity of Cedar Hill and Cedar Hill Cross Road for five hours.

They had kind words today for high school students who helped them run about 1,500 feet of hose around the blaze.

A department spokesman said today one of the problems in fighting fire in such rocky and brushy land is that it requires such a thorough soaking to ensure no further outbreak.

There were no damages nor injuries. Children are suspected of starting the fire.

FOUR IN CITY

City crews fought four grass fires in Victoria Wednesday, two of them on Gladstone.

About one acre was burned over at Merritt and Cook and firemen were almost two hours dousing it. The other fires, in the 1200 block and the 1400 block on Gladstone and at Fernwood and Kings, were minor.

Deputy chief Eric Simmons said today children are probably responsible for most of the outbreaks "but nobody talks."

The occasional fire will be set in tinder-dry brush by the sun reflecting through broken glass, he added.

A false alarm at The Bay department store on Douglas late Wednesday brought four fire trucks and police to the scene. The alarm was blamed on a faulty circuit.

Yellowhead Closed

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A B.C. highways official said today the Yellowhead route through the Rockies from Jasper, Alta., to Kamloops will remain closed to tourists this summer and possibly next summer as well.

He said construction on the new 151-mile road is progressing well but most of the route is still under heavy construction with no gravel on the old road. Scheduled completion date for the highway is October, 1968.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Warm sunny weather was the order for southwestern B.C. again today. Meanwhile, only brief cloudy periods marred an otherwise bright day elsewhere in the province. Scattered showers were predicted in the northern interior this afternoon. The large area of high pressure responsible for the generally fine weather is expected to hold firm off the B.C. coast for at least the next two days.

chief negotiator for one of the three non - operating union groups; and T. W. Read, negotiator for the shop craft unions.

None of the men would comment on the subject of the meeting.

Following the cabinet meetings Mr. Pearson told a press conference no effort would be made at this time to bring union and management sides together. But the cabinet was making preparations for "various contingencies."

Asked whether Parliament would be called to deal with the situation, he replied: "I hope not. But if it is necessary, that will be done."

Cabinet mediation could not begin until the unions involved had completed their strike votes and set a deadline for the walkout.

U.S. marines dragged, pulled and threw demonstrators out of the paths of trucks delivering napalm at Concord Naval Weapons Station in California and a group of 20 Negroes infiltrated some army recruits and shouted anti-war slogans inside 12th Army headquarters in Atlanta.

LONDON (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Kosygin was quoted Wednesday as warning the U.S. that further escalation of the Viet Nam war could bring "the immediate danger of military conflict beyond the limits of Southeast Asia."

The warning was contained in a letter from Kosygin to British philosopher - pacifist, Bertrand Russell, and released by Russell's Peace Foundation.

Russell, 94, has asked that the Soviet air force defend Viet Nam against American air attacks.

In his letter Kosygin said: "If the Americans do not give up their criminal policy and proceed in increasing their aggression, there will be immediate danger of military conflict beyond the limits of Southeast Asia."

A foundation spokesman said Soviet charge d'affaires, Vladillen Vasev, told Russell Wednesday Kosygin's letter means the Soviet Union stands ready to supply North Viet Nam with planes and military personnel if requested by the North Vietnamese.

The spokesman added that Kosygin offered full support for Russell's plan to stage a tribunal in Paris to try U.S. President Johnson for war crimes.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel.
